FORD LAYS STRIKES TO WALL STREET IN CLOSING PLANTS

Detroit Automobile Manufacturer Will Stop Operations in Factories Sept. 16 Because of Fuel Shortage.

105,000 LOSE JOBS IN SHUTDOWN

Closing Affects Also Several Hundred Thousand in Industries Supplying Material to Ford.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—Industry, the country over must "throw up its hands in surrender," within a few weeks if the rail and coal strikes continue, Henry Ford declared today in announcing the decision of the Ford Motor Co. to close its plants here and in many other cities on Sept. 16, because of the fuel situation.

Ford held financial interests responsible for the industrial tie-up, declaring the "money barons" were manipulating the labor unions and that public officials, state and national, were impotent in the crisis.

The strikes would end, he continued, "when the majority of the people are cold and hungry enough to resort to drastic action."

Continuance of these disturbances to the economic life of the nation is due simply to the "greed and avarice of Wall Street," Ford asserted, adding that these interests "dominated the railroads, coal mines and public utilities of the country."

The deadlock in strike negotiations indicated, he declared, the existence of "a plot to unload the demoralized and rundown railroads onto the government at their own price and to mulct the people through excessive coal prices."

One hundred and five thousand employes of the Ford Motor Co. throughout the country will be without jobs and several hundred thousand other workers employed in industries furnishing materials for the Ford plants will be affected, Ford said.

The announcement was the most severe blow that industrial Detroit has sustained since the industrial depression of two years ago. It means, according to Ford, that 75,000 men employed in the Highland Park, River Rouge and Dearborn plants of the company here would be without work. Thirty thousand others now working in the various assembling plants scattered throughout the entire country will be thrown out of employment.

Cannot Set Reopening Date.

How long the machinery in the Ford plants is to be stilled will depend entirely upon the coal supply of the future, the Detroit manufacturer said. The statement issued by Ford announcing the proposed shutdown was the story of his losing fight during the last few months to insure a fuel supply sufficient to keep his workers at their machines.

Ford declared he "had not the remotest idea" when the plant would be re-opened. It was announced that the normal daily consumption of coal in the Ford industries was 3,800 tons and, although declining to state the amount on hand at this time, officials said it would be impossible to do more "than keep the furnaces and ovens warm."

Only a comparatively small number of the employes of the Ford plants will be retained in service during the shutdown, it was announced. Crews sufficient to keep the furnaces warm will be held.

Ford's statement follows:

"The coal situation has become impossible. For the last several weeks we have seen a situation approaching that we feared would force us to close. We greatly regret having to take that step. Edsel (Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co.) and I returned from our Eastern trip and, night before last, with every possible data and information bearing on the subject before us, we strove until daylight trying to find some way out without closing down.

Cannot Run All Departments.

"Every way we turned we were confronted by the situation that under the present handling of coal there never could be a time when we would have enough coal to operate the several departments of the plant simultaneously.

"We, therefore, decided that of necessity we must close down sooner or later. We wish to keep enough coal on hand to keep our furnaces and coke ovens warm; to let them get cold would cause us a loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars. At the rate we are getting coal now, Sept. 16 will mark the time when we

18 HURT IN KATY FLYER CRASH AT BELLS, TEX.

M. K., T. Freight Hits Rear of Passenger, Probably Injuring Three Fatally.

By the Associated Press.

DENNISON Tex., Aug. 26.—Eighteen persons were injured, three seriously, when a freight train crashed into the rear end of the Katy Flyer train of the Missouri, Kansas, Texas road at Bells, 14 miles east of here, at 9:15 o'clock tonight. The three seriously injured persons were brought to Dennison in ambulances.

The Flyer was pulling out of the Bells station when the freight, running extra, smashed into it. The impact threw nearly all of the passengers in the rear coach out of their berths. The freight engine did not, however, telescope the sleeper. None of the cars was derailed and the track was blocked only a few hours.

The 18 persons injured were struck by flying glass and bruised by the jolt of the impact.

W. F. Benion, 30, of Commerce, is thought to be the most seriously injured. A list of the other injured could not be obtained tonight.

The "Katy Flyer" is No. 5, running from St. Louis to San Antonio, Tex. It left St. Louis at 9:03 p. m. Friday and was at Denison at 3:40 p. m. today.

GIRL ORPHANED BY KILLING OF MOTHER BECOMES BRIDE

Husband Earning $24 a Week Will Support Five Children Whose Mother Was Slain by Father.

PEARL HEMBREE, 17, CLAIMED SHE WAS 18

Salvation Army Conducts Funeral Services for Mother; Father Held Charged With Homicide.

The problems of the six children left orphans by the shooting of their mother, Mrs. Albert E. Hembree, at 1406 North Thirteenth street, by their father last Thursday night, when she had refused to go to Springfield, Mo., to live, are settled. Pearl Hembree, the 17-year-old "little mother" of the children, was married yesterday at Venice, Ill., to John Harris, 22, a shoeworker, who lived in the tenement above the Hembree family. And Pearl and John are going to take the place of father and mother to the five little ones, remaining in the little three-room tenement for the time being.

Salvation Army relief workers had promised to take care of the children, and neighbors had offered Pearl help, suggesting she allow them to adopt her younger sisters and little brother. They are Mabel, 14; Daisy, 11; Eethel, 8; Andrew, 3. and Dorothy, 1. The "little mother" proudly refused all proffered aid, only asking that she be allowed, with the aid of Mabel, to care for them all.

Baby Taken to Hospital.

Yesterday morning Miss Selma Johnson, commandant of the St. Louis Relief Workers of the Salvation Army, came to see Pearl. She found the baby very ill, and took it to the city hospital for treatment. While at the Hembree home, she told Pearl she was going to see that the children were taken care of, proposing first to take them to the fresh-air camp of the Salvation Army at Ferguson. Pearl, fearing that she would be separated from her sisters and brother, was desperate. She confided in Johnny, to whom she was engaged. The marriage followed.

"They can't take them away from us now," said Pearl defiantly. "We will be able to care for ourselves."

John has agreed to care for the entire family.

"Mabel shall return to school," he said. "I don't want her to work in the factory. She needs a rest now, anyway. So does Pearl. And for the time, we are letting the three girls (Mabel, Ethel and Daisy) stay at the Ferguson camp. Pearl won't ever have to work again," and he patted her frail little hand tenderly.

Makes $24 a Week.

John is making $24 a week at the shoe factory, and says that will be sufficient to support them all handsomely. He is a steady worker, and thinks he will be a much better father to them all than was Hembree, who worked but occasionally.

The mother was buried yesterday afternoon at St. Peter's Cemetery, the Salvation Army conducting the services at an undertaking establishment at 2735 Cass avenue. The father is awaiting trial on the charge of homicide, the Coroner's verdict yesterday.

After the inquest yesterday, Hembree requested that he be allowed to see the baby, Dorothy, whose condition is very serious today at the city hospital. A deputy coroner asked Pearl, who was in charge of the younger children at the inquest, if her father might see the child. She refused, saying that she had then control of the children, but that they might want to stay with the father should he see them, and again start crying. The request was refused.

Nothing was left to the children except insurance amounting to less than $200. Of this, almost all was used to defray funeral expenses. But now the worry of finances is over. The girls will return from the camp in two weeks, to live at home with their married sister, and help keep house for "Johnny." The Harris family lives in the tenement above, and there is a married brother, Oscar, and his wife and another brother, Albert, who live next door. Albert and Mrs. Harris, his brother's wife, were witnesses at the marriage yesterday.

Claimed She Was 18.

Although Pearl told a little "white lie" about her age, saying she was "18, going on 19" when the Justice asked her about it yesterday, she feels justified in the great good she

MACMILLAN'S OWN STORY OF EXPEDITION TO BAFFIN LAND, NOW ON WAY HOME

Artic Explorer Tells of Being Frozen In for 274 Days—Two Islands Discovered, Untraveled Land Covered.

(Copyright, 1922.)

BOSTON, Mass., August 26—Donald B. MacMillan, most daring of Arctic explorers, is homeward bound from Baffin Land.

After having been frozen in for 274 days, the little schooner Bowdoin broke out of the ice on August 1, and is now coasting southward.

MacMillan's first act, when he reached an outpost of civilization, was to dispatch to the Boston Globe and St. Louis Post-Dispatch an account of his adventures and new discoveries in that strange ice-bound wilderness, 150 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Three new islands discovered, 2000 miles of travel by dog team into regeions never before explored by a white man, reports of a tract of 625 square miles so white with geese that the land appears as if covered with snow, contact with the last big walrus herds in the north—these are chapter headings in the thrilling yarn which by courier and cable MacMillan has sent to civilization. His dispatch, which is printed below, was started by courier from Makkovick, a bleak, isolated trading post on the coast of Labrador, 150 miles north of Battle Harbor, and was relayed by cable from Fogo Island, off the northeastern coast of Newfoundland.

It is the first complete record of the expedition.

The last narrative from MacMillan was dispatched a year ago this month, when he and his fellow adventurers went into winter quarters. That dispatch, sent back by courier, did not reach America until last December.

Now MacMillan sketches vividly the experiences of the Bowdoin's crew through the long winter. It is a story of new triumphs for the intrepid Maine scientist and his comrades.

Entire Party Safe and Well, They Expect to Be Home Sept. 15

By Donald B. MacMillan

Exclusive Dispatch by Courier and Cable to the Boston Globe and St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

ON BOARD THE BOWDOIN, Makkovick, Labrador, via Fogo, N. F. (where this dispatch was sent), Aug. 26.

ALL safe. No sickness, and not even an accident to report. When this reaches America the Bowdoin will be sailing southward, well on her way to Battle Harbor. We ought to be home by the 13th of September.

The Bowdoin seems to feel the joy of motion. No wonder! For 274 days—from the 9th of November until the first of August we were frozen in solid. We found an excellent haven, putting in for the winter in a good harbor just south of Trinity Islands. I named it after the vessel, and the place where we wintered and took valuable observations will be know as Bowdoin Harbor on the maps of the future.

We made satisfactory progress before we pulled in for the winter, and explored the west coast of Baffin Land to a point 78 west longitude, 64 north latitude.

We made a quick run last summer to the Arctic Circle without encountering a single pan of ice. The shores of Melville Peninsula were blocked with heavy ice, 40 feet thick, and we could get no nearer than 30 miles.

Two New Islands Found.

We had to retreat southward, but our effort was by no means wasted. We discovered two new islands.

While attempting the passage northward between Spicer Islands, Bowdoin ran aground, and for a little while we were in a bad pickle. But we worked hard and succeeded in getting the vessel off before we were hung up by low water.

We speeded the vessel southward but again we encountered difficulties. We were forced by strong tides and prodigious ice fields on to shoal ground. In attempting passage east of Spicer Island, we reached a point 150 miles north of the Arctic Circle. From this point to Fury and Hecla Strait, my objective, would only have been a 12 hours' run under favorable conditions. But the tides were too strong, and the ice barrier was impenetrable. Again the Bowdoin went aground. We discovered another large island 30 miles north of Spicer Island, but we had to give up the passage. Both the western and eastern shores of Fox channel were impossible of attainment. We gave up the attempt, and turned southward.

Sailed Over Supposed Land.

We laid our course southeastward and made some important discoveries for the purpose of cartography. According to the maps we carried we should have struck land on this course, but we failed to do so. We sailed over area indicated as land on all the latest and most authoratative maps, and, indeed, 15 miles into a hypothetical interior.

More strong tide rips and shallow water forced us to retreat again. We estimated that, according to the maps in our possession, we must have sailed in the Bowdoin over 60 miles of land.

At this juncture we sighted big herds of magnificent walrus, beyond question the last remnant of the great walrus herds to be found in the North today.

Finally we made a harbor called Cape Dorchester. It was named 291 years ago by an explorer named Fox. Here we found a large settlement of Eskimos.

The Eskimos asserted that there were no safe winter quarters along that coast, and strongly advised us to give up plans for the establishment of winter quarters near the magnetic north pole, which I was reluctant to do.

Channel Blocked by Ice.

However, we took the advice of the Eskimos and again turned westward across Fox channel, intending to try the passage of the strait. But it was blocked by solid pack ice at 83 west longitude. Progress was impossible. There was danger of freezing in the pack for the winter.

Retreat was the only course. We proceeded in an easterly direction to the western shores of Baffin Land and turned south.

We selected the harbor I have named Bowdoin after the most painstaking examination of every bay and inlet along the coast. On the ninth of November we were settled for the winter.

We were not idle at Bowdoin Harbor. Under the superintendence of Prof. Goddard of Dartmouth College and Carnegie Institute, we built a magnetic observatory and carried on for a period of 10 months an uninterrupted observation of terrestrial magnetism. We took meteorological observations throughout the year.

The lowest temperature recorded was 60 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

For two months we took tidal observations.

Moreover, my men with dog teams traveled more than 2000 miles, going north to Cape Dorchester, south and east to Lake Harbor and inward to Madjaak Lake, a body of water which never hitherto had been explored by white men.

We found the land very different from the current delineations on the latest maps. Nearly all points are incorrect, astronomically.

Breeding Place of Geese.

The waters of Chorbak inlet reach nearly to Fox Channel. We discovered a land of uncharted lakes, the breeding place for innumerable ducks, geese, swans and shore birds. Here also lay the hitherto undiscovered home of the lesser snow goose and the blue goose.

Eskimos gave us vivid descriptions of an area of about 625 square miles, so white with geese that the land appears covered as if it were covered with snow.

I have recorded 50 species of birds, and have a good collection of bird skins and eggs. Prof. Robinson has a fine botanical collection of 60 flowering Arctic plants. We are bringing a collection of rocks for the petrological department at Washington.

Late in July we began to think of home. The ice was broken. On the first day of August, the Bowdoin was free. We had a fine run through Hudson Strait. Fortunately we escaped a big gale between the 14th and 16th of this month. We had good weather down the Labrador coast, which was packed with ice as far south as 57 north latitude.

SLAYER OF ACTOR SAYS HE DEFENDED HIS WIFE'S HONOR

George F. Cline, Held After Killing at Edgewater, N. J. Declares Wife Told of Attack.

CHANGED STORY AFTER NIGHT IN JAIL

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Admitting his first story of the killing in Edgewater, N. J., Friday night of John Bergen, moving picture actor, was a lie invented under the influence of liquor, George F. Cline, "location man" for the Fox Film Co., held without bail in Hackensack, N. J., charged with the murder, gave a new and even more dramatic version today of what appears to be the latest triangle tragedy in filmdom.

The version is punctuated with the flash of pistols in a dark room where, Cline says, he defended the honor of his wife, who was attacked six weeks ago by Bergen and insulted by him with bitter language in her husband's presence Friday night just before the shooting. Cline's new story, however, does not agree in every detail with other discloures following investigation by the police and Bergen County, N. J., authorities.

Both Expected Trouble.

Developments indicates that both Cline and Bergen had expected trouble with each other for some time and each had spoken to others about the possibility of being killed. In a note found in Bergen's pocket, he had written:

"If by chance I am shot in the next few weeks, it will be done by a George Cline, alias George Watz, of Edgewater, N. J., for reasons unknown to me. He is threatening me and will use a German Luger, caliber .25, as it is a favorite of his many guns. I am John Bergen, No. 21 East 115th street."

Another note read: "George Cline killed me."

Cline, on the other hand, told Capt. Dinan of the Edgewater police Friday afternoon: "I've had trouble with that actor, Bergen. If anything happens to me or if I should be killed, look up John Bergen."

Cline's First Story.

Cline's first story was that his wife told him Bergen attacked her about six weeks ago when they were at Saranac Lake "on vacation" and when Cline was away. He said he talked with his wife and her two brothers, Charles and Lawrence Scullion, who live next to the Cline home, where the shooting took place, and they all agreed to get Bergen over there.

When Bergen came, Cline said he admitted he had attacked Mrs. Cline, whereupon Cline invited him to fight a pistol duel upstairs. They started up, and Bergen, to whom Cline had handed a pistol, turned at the head of the steps and seemed about to fire. Cline fired at once, and killed Bergen, the latter "slumping" past him downstairs. The wife and her two brothers were said to be witnesses of the shooting, according to this story.

Changed Version.

Today, however, under questioning by Prosecutor Hart of Bergen County and Detective Allyn, Cline is quoted by the Prosecutor as having told still another story. "He said he took his wife and Bergen with him to Saranac Lake," said Hart, "and left them there together while he went to Standish, 40 miles distant. When he returned the following day he found his wife in tears and acting strangely. He asked her what the trouble was, and she replied she had seen so many 'lungers' (consumptives) that she had become unnerved. He did not suspect her of any wrong doing.

"She continued to act unnaturally after that and finally he got her alone Friday and quizzed her for about two hours. She then told him, he said, that Bergen had brought her a bottle of wine at Saranac and persuaded her to drink it with him. She admitted she became intoxicated, but insisted Bergen attacked her and that he indulged in no familiarity with her consent.

"Yesterday he had her telephone Bergen and, when she failed to get him, called him up himself and told him to come over and 'clear up' the matter. When Bergen arrived at the home in Edgewater Friday night about 9 o'clock, he was waiting for

MAIL BOXES OR DOOR SLOTS MUST BE PROVIDED BY ALL WHO EXPECT HOME DELIVERY

Four Months Allowed by Postoffice Department for Regulation to Speed Up Service to Be Complied With.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—INSTRUCTIONS were sent to all postmasters today by First Assistant Postmaster-General Bartlett to require all householders within four months to install mail boxes or cut slots in doors to facilitate the delivery of mail. Those who do not meet the requirement may have the delivery of their mail discontinued, Bartlett said.

"On account of the delays caused to carriers at dwelling houses where no door slot or mail receptacle is provided and the fact that a large majority of dwellings are thus equipped already," the Assistant Postmaster-General's instructions said, "it seems timely, within a reasonable period, to require all who are to receive mail by street carriers at their dwellings to provide such accommodations. The expense of the same being small, the length of the notice should not exceed four months, although there may be exceptional cases where the postmaster should use reasonable discretion or ask for instructions."

Bartlett estimated that more than 70 per cent of the dwelling houses of the country now have mail receptacles.

PRESIDENT WANTS POWER TO SEIZE ROADS AND MINES

Harding to Ask for Authority as Safeguard for Nation While Congress Is Taking Vacation.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—President Harding wants Congress to give him full authority for handling the railroad and coal situations before it adjourns over the election period. He desires power to take over the use of certain railroads and the anthracite coal mines as a matter of insurance, rather than in the belief that it may be necessary.

The legislation which Senator Cummins, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, will introduce Monday will have the full force of the administration behind it. When it is adopted, as the President hopes it will be, he will refrain from using it until it is the only course left open to prevent a national calamity. That this is the positive position of the President was learned authoritatively today. Mr. Harding feels Federal control will not be resorted to, but he is prepared to go the limit when the time is ripe.

Safeguard for Nation.

The President thinks Congress should not be absent from Washington over a considerable period unless he has ample power to meet any emergency. Congress wants a rest of at least 30 days. It is a safeguard for the nation during that period that is wanted.

Federal operation, provided Congress approves, is not contingent upon the situation growing worse. It will come, according to assertions of administration leaders, unless there is marked improvement.

Friends of the President think that the legislation he desires will go through Congress without much delay. Others were not so ready to concede that the railroad seizure bill will pass. There were prospects that it would lead to much wrangling in the House. Railroad labor leaders may attack the proposition. Their position is that should the Government take over only a few roads, it would become a strike breaking agency.

William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, returned to Washington from New York.

"We are going to continue the fight with renewed vigor," said Johnston. "I do not see how the Government can take over certain railroads without taking over all. If it did, the Government would simply be acting as a strike breaking agency. It could not take the lines affected by the strike and leave the others scot free, because it would only be helping the hard-shells who stood in the way of an agreement.

"Roads Will Never Go Back."

"It is my opinion that if the roads go into Government operation they will never go back. These people (the executives), are absolutely incompetent to operate the railroads. They have no social vision:

GUARANTEES BY GERMANY ARE REJECTED BY POINCARE

Independent Measures by French Against Germany Seem Assured After Failure of Mission to Arrive at Basis of a Compromise Acceptable to Her.

MORATORIUM IS CONSIDERED LIKELY

Expected to Bridge Remainder of Year — British, Gloomy, Express Belief That Germany Is Trying to Meet French View.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Premier Poincare has rejected the eleventh-hour guarantees offered by the German Government and independent measures by France against Germany seemed assured tonight after failure of the Reparations Mission to obtain in Berlin the basis of a compromise acceptable to France.

In well-informed French circles it is considered reasonably certain that the Reparations Commission will grant a moratorium for the rest of the year, with the final German proposals as an additional guarantee.

The German Proposals.

The German proposals, handed to the Reparations Mission just before it left for Paris, provided for a contract between the German Government and the biggest German industrialists, including Hugo Stinnes, for delivery during the period of a moratorium of products of the Ruhr mines and wood from the state forests. German industry would guarantee faithful delivery, and penalties would be enforced against the industrialists in the event the schedule was not lived up to.

Details of the scheme were to be submitted by Germany next week, but the French Premier rejected the plan this afternoon after a conference with Dubois and Mauclere. The Premier's opposition is said to be due to the fact that he believes the scheme made the industrialists more important than the Government, and since the business party in Germany is in a position to dictate to the Government, refusal to carry out the contract would leave the German Government powerless to act, and France would be as bad off as before.

British optimism which continued even up to this afternoon, had given way tonight to frank gloom over the situation after Poincare's refusal to accept the latest German proposals. The British think these proposals fairly meet Poincare's demand for the German mines and forests by actually giving France the products of these natural resources without handing the district over to political control. The district in possession of France, it is contended by the British, would only add chaos to the already critical situation.

British Member's View.

Sir John Bradbury, just before the meeting of the Reparations Commission, told the Associated Press he was convinced that Germany was really trying to meet the French view, and he urged that the French Government meet Germany half way. Sir John authorized the publication of the following statement:

"I am satisfied that the German Government is making a serious effort to meet the views of the French Government is so far as the actual situation in Germany will permit. I am strongly of the opinion that the French Government ought to do its best to meet the German Government half way."

He further informed the commission that the German financial situation is desperate and that social order in its entirety in Germany is threatened. Other members of the mission, including Mauclere, reported that they were equally impressed with the seriousness of the German crisis.

"Prosperity in Germany."

The French reported that they were amazed to see great evidences of prosperity in Germany, and declared that a large number of Germans who apparently had discarded their own currency, were using dollars instead.

The Reparations Commission held a two-hours' session to hear these reports, but it is not likely that any decision will be taken for several days.

Sir John Bradbury recommended

SUES WOMAN SHE SAYS MADE OFFER FOR HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Rodney Kendrick Asks for $30,000 From Mrs. Wakefield for Alienation of Affections.

FILES DIVORCE ACTION AT THE SAME TIME

Misconduct Charged—Complainant Tells of Alleged Offer of $100 a Month for Consent to Arrangement.

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 26.—Suit for $30,000 damages against Mrs. Edith Huntington Wakefield, divorced wife of the late John D. Spreckels Jr., capitalist, for the alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Rodney Kendrick, newspaper artist, was filed by Mrs. Nell Kendrick today. Mrs. Kendrick also filed suit for divorce, alleging misconduct as a result of her husband's acquaintance with Mrs. Wakefield. She asked for $100 a month alimony.

The suits were the outcome of incidents in the Wakefield home at Sausalito and elsewhere wherein Mrs. Wakefield was alleged to have urged Mrs. Kendrick to divorce her husband on the understanding that she and her 14-months-old daughter, June, would be well provided for.

Infatuation Alleged.

The alleged relations between Kendrick and Mrs. Wakefield began July 4, 1922, and continued intermittently to Aug. 20, according to the divorce complaint. The couple were married in Elizabeth, N. J., March 3, 1919, and separated July 15, 1922, the complaints said.

Mrs. Wakefield "became infatuated" with Kendrick in March of this year and sought by "arts, artifices and other means" to win him, according to the alienation complaint. On March 15 the plaintiff, by reason of her physical condition, went to a hospital in California and remained there until Aug. 1, "during which time the defendant lavished her affection and love" on Kendrick, the complaint continues. "In June defendant persuaded the plaintiff's husband to leave his home in Oakland and go to her home in Saulsalito and thereafter he ceased to be interested in the plaintiff's condition," Mrs. Kendrick's complaint added.

Says She Refused Offer.

When she returned from the hospital she found her husband with Mrs. Wakefield, according to Mrs. Kendrick. Mrs. Wakefield, the complaint avers, made the proposition that she should obtain a divorce from Kendrick and that "she would see to it that Mrs. Kendrick and the child did not suffer." An offer of $100 a month for maintenance of Mrs. Kendrick and the child was made by Mrs. Wakefield, according to the complaint.

Mrs. Kendrick said that she refused to be a party to the offer. Later Mrs. Wakefield and Kendrick went on a camping trip to the Sierras, returning Aug. 2, the complaint alleged.

John D. Spreckels Sr., San Diego capitalist, arrived in San Francisco a few days after publication of the details of the Wakefield-Kendrick "triangle," but would make no statement regarding the affair. Mrs. Wakefield admitted her infatuation for Kendrick, but denied making the $100 offer to Mrs. Kendrick, saying that this offer came from another source.

feels she is doing her family. And it is doubtful whether any steps will be taken to disturb the restored happiness of the children.

The Post-Dispatch has received several suggestions from persons interested in the case concerning methods of helping the children. One man, a carpenter, offers to build a cottage in the county for them without charge if others will provide material and the lot. A few small checks and some clothing have been given.

While they both protest that they do not need help, Pearl is in poor health, as is Mabel, as a result of overwork and undernourishment.

"Last night we wired 900 houses that supply us with material to stop shipment and this morning letters and telegrams were sent out to about 1000 more.

"We appreciate the great loss it will mean to these hundreds of supply houses, but it also will mean a tremenduous loss to us. At present we are producing 5200 cars a day and we can sell 5300 a day. We have to close down at a time when we are doing a greater business than ever before in our history."

Nation-wide Effect.

Effect of the Ford shutdown will be felt on industry in every part of the country, according to officials of the company. The number of workers employed by firms supplying the Ford company with various parts and raw materials, including iron and steel, was variously estimated at from "several hundred thousand to three million."

The Ford plants in Detroit's suburbs were closed for a number of weeks during the industrial depression nearly two years ago. Ford was one of the first manufacturers to shut down at that time, declaring reformic conditions forbade continuance of operation. He was the first Detroit automobile manufacturer to resume, however. He reopened with a comparatively small number of workmen, adding to them rapidly. For a time he placed the men on a three-day-a-week basis in order that suffering might be relieved among his employes. Later, as conditions improved, the employment figures rose to the height attained during the "peak period" days following the war. At present, it is said, the company is manufacturing automobiles and tractors at a greater rate than ever before in its history.

Announceemnt of the closing came as a distinct shock to the people of Detroit. Announcement was made recently that Ford had installed oil burning furnaces at one of his plants as an experiment and the hope was held by many workmen that the Ford company could weather the coal shortage. It developed today, however, that only the furnaces in the machine shops had been converted into oil burners.

The Ford plants, in the aggregate, constitute Michigan's greatest industry, from the standpoint of employment, and as such are among the largest in the country. Business men and manufacturers here were unanimous that the closing of these plants might have far reaching effects on the national economic situation.

GUARANTEES BY GERMANY REJECTED BY POINCARE

to the commission that a moratorium in cash payments should be granted until Germany stabilized the mark and balanced her budget, but the French solidly opposed this recommendation. The British view is that at most a moratorium can only act as a bridge until the whole question is again discussed at the projected November conference on inter-allied debts and indemnities. Such a meeting is imperative in the view of Sir John and the other British reparation officials.

Trying to Avoid Vote.

Despite the gloom in British quarters tonight the British representatives are making every effort to avoid a direct vote by the commission because they feel that occupation of the Ruhr or any other repressive measures against Germany at this time would only hasten the impending collapse of Germany and produce no cash for France.

On the other hand the French Government is convinced that Germany can find 150,000,000 gold marks for the August, September and October payments. By that time officials believe another allied conference will have to discuss a new general reparations agreement.

If the commission grants a moratorium with the guarantees just offered, France will reject the decision and assume her liberty of action, it is authoritatively declared tonight. If the commission refuses a moratorium France will also act, but in a different manner. The commission will meet again tomorrow morning.

A French official pointed out this evening that there has never been a question of a moratorium in the deliveries of merchandise which are to continue regardless of the decisions affecting cash payments.

BUYERS' STRIKE HERE DIVERTS COAL SUPPLY

Illinois Operators Prepare to Send Fuel to Northwest—Protest Against Prices.

The Illinois coal operators who supply St. Louis with fuel and who settled the long strike of miners last week only to find themselves confronted by a buyers' strike against high prices, are making arrangements, it was learned last night, to divert to northwestern and northern markets, where the demand is acute for coal, which, but for the buyers' strike, would find its natural market in St. Louis.

A week ago the big buyers of coal in St. Louis rushed in with priority orders for coal through the Fuel Distribution Commission, but as soon as mining was started these same buyers are reported to have gone out of the market, as though by concerted action, and presumably in protest against prices.

The action of the buyers is regretted by the Fuel Commission, members of which say it will not bring prices down, but may result in a reverse situation.

Mine prices since the strike terminated range from $3 to $5 a ton, carrying an average freight rate of $2 a ton to St. Louis. This price is considerably higher than the mine prices prevailing at the beginning of the strike, and from $1 to $2 in excess of prevailing prices last winter.

W. K. Kavanaugh, president of the Operators' Association of the Fifth and Ninth Districts of Illinois, said St. Louis should take the available supply of coal and not compel the operators to go elsewhere for a market.

"There is a huge market for all kinds of coal everywhere and it becomes only a matter of diversion to get teh price." Our company is gg get the price," said Kavanaugh. "Our company is at present engaged wholly in taking care of railroad contracts, and is not affected by the buyers' strike, but I have been told by other operators that since St. Louis buyers do not want the coal at prevailing prices, it will be shipped to other territory. Should this be done by the operators generally, St. Louis may face a serious shortage in the near future."

Wallace Issues Statement.

Fearing that withdrawal of the big buyers of St. Louis from the market will seriously affect this territory, E. J. Wallace, member of the Fuel Distribution Commission, issued a statement last evening in which he said it would be folly for buyers' to strike and force the coal into other territory.

they know nothing about the human side of railroad control.

"There is no chance of getting together right away. Some of the executives must change their attitude. We've got to show them we are in earnest."

Advocates of Government seizure of the railroads in the railway brotherhoods who expect to have the seniority rights of the striking shopmen restored in the event the roads are taken over, are due to receive a disappointment. The President, according to these authorities, has assured the representatives of the brotherhoods that in the event the roads are taken over, he would recognize the superior rights of the shopmen who refused to strike and of those who have taken the strikers' places.

This information has caused considerable surprise among the railroad workers organizations who have heretofore assumed the President favored restoration of seniority rights, the assumption being based on the suggestion of compromise put up by the President to the first conference of the executives and the brotherhoods representing the striking shopmen.

Unwilling to Stultify Board

It appears the President was willing to have an agreement of this character worked out by the executives and employes but would not undertake to stultify the ruling of the Railway Labor Board which declared the strike unauthorized and which advised the railroads to fill the places of the striking shopmen by bringing about recognition of the seniority rights of the shopmen through Government action.

In every move they made to advance pending legislation today, congressional leaders met with opposition and delay, although they remained confident that all the emergency measures introduced with administration backing would be enacted. In the Senate the Borah bill for a fact-finding commission in the coal industry, similar to one already passed by the House, met with such prolonged attacks that it flanlly was agreed to lay it aside entirely until a vote has been taken on the bonus bill, probably late Tuesday.

In the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, a second administration measure proposing to create a coal distribution agency and to extend the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission over priority of shipments failed of the immediate approval and further consideration was postponed until Monday.

Similar Bill in House.

A coal distribution and priority bill of a similar character to that under consideration by the Senate committee was presented in the House today by Chairman Winslow, of the Interstate Commerce Committee, but after a long discussion among committee members, it was decided that hearing on this measure also would be held on Monday.

Today the President was visited by John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, after Senator Watson had discussed the outlook in a telephone conversation with T. Dewitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives. The Indiana Senator indicated afterward that the President felt certain of a settlement of the anthracite strike in the near future.

Tonight still another conference was said to be in progress on the presidential yacht, Mayflower on her way down the Potomac for a week-end cruise with Secretaries Hoover and Fall, Attorney-General Daugherty and Senator Cummins among the guests of the President.

250 Missouri Pacific Trainmen Quit at Jefferson City.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 26.—About 250 railroad engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen quit work here today following the arrest of Mayor Paul Hunt and Chief of Police Joseph Bruns by a Deputy United States Marshal guarding the Missouri Pacific Railroad property, for crossing the railroad right-of-way.

A conference was held later in the day by Superintendent Merrifield of the railroad and representatives of the men, but efforts to induce them to return to work failed, because the railroad company would not accede to a demand of the men to remove armed guards from the property.

Freight service has been completely crippled by the walkout, which the men say is not a strike but merely a protest against armed guards. They have agreed to take care of the passenger train service.

The Deputy Marshal who precipitated the trouble drew a revolver and compelled the Mayor and Chief of Police to hold up their hands and submit to arrest for what he termed trespassing.

CHINESE IN STEW OVER MANAGEMENT OF CHOP SUEY SHOP

WANTS PROTECTION FOR $1000 INVESTED

Another of Partners Declares Trouble Is That Laon Fun Assumed "Dictatorship."

Too much Oriental finance, night joy riding and irreconcilable differences over chop suey sales have caused a new Eastern problem in a Chinese restaurant at 5659A Delmar boulevard, resulting in an application to the courts for a mandate or protectorate of finance.

Sung Lee, a Korean, 5715 Delmar boulevard, one of the seven partners in the restaurant, but who hasn't been working at it lately, yesterday filed a suit in circuit court for appointment of a receiver, collection of a $1000 investment and $229.10 in salary. Sung Lee, temporarily withdrew from the enterprise recently after three fights and a threat, he says, by the manager, Laon Fun, to shoot him.

Laon Fun, a discrett Chinese who will make no positive comment except on the excellence of his chop suey, last night refused to discuss the series of imbroglios which have mystified other business men in the vicinity of DeBaliviere avenue and Delmar boulevard. Laon could remember no investment by Sung Lee. Neither could he remember just when Sung had been in the restaurant and didn't care a chop stick for the receivership suit. He did concede that 32 years in America had taught him much of American business wiles and no "slick fella" could entrap him.

"Dictatorship" Alleged.

Sung Lee says the whole trouble started a couple of months ago, after Laon Fun bought out a couple of the partners who aided in founding the business in August, 1921, and became manager. Laon, he charges, began a dictatorship which overrode the wishes of the other partners, and about a month ago took over one of the two waiters paid by the firm to act as chauffeur for him in all-night automobile parties while the six other partners carried on with the chop suey. These ways, Sung says, changed Laon until at times his alleged overbearing manner was a "nuisance" in the dining room.

A remonstrance was made by Sung Lee, which, he says, brought an offer of fisticuffs from Loan, who took the view that he was running the business. Sung held out for an honorable peace that would result in more business. Another row ensued when Laon is alleged to have called Sung Lee a "Jap's slave," the ultimate in insult to a Korean proud of the province which happens to be under control of Japan.

The climax came the night of Aug. 7 in a row after Laon admonished Sung Lee "not to talk like a cow," a difference of opinion on seating a large party of guests provoking the remark. Sung said he was dropped for the count by an unexpected swing. Sung alleges Laon also threatened to shoot him. He put in a riot call for reserves and both were taken to a police station, where Laon declared Sung Lee was not a partner in his business but merely an employe.

Sung Takes Vacation.

To avoid further trouble Sung took a vacation and consulted an attorney who failed to reach a settlement with Loan and filed suit yesterday.

No stock certificates are held by Sung Lee, due to an ancient Chinese custom followed when the original company was formed in 1921. Each of the partners deposited cash and the names and amounts were written in a little book which was to be the sacred financial ledger of the firm. Sung says Loan has this book but told Sung's lawyer he knew nothing of the $1000 investment and that a Chinese custom hardly applied in America where "the papers" were what counted. The restaurant has an estimated value of $22,000.

Sung Lee expects to establish himself legally through the testimony of the other partners, Sam Lee, John Lee, Sing Lee, Lan Lee and Yun Leong, the latter of Quincy, Ill., and a former partner, Harry Yee, of Chicago. He is continuing his vacation pending court action.

Uniform Marriage Laws Favored.

A resolution favoring uniform national marriage and divorce laws and a single standard of morals for men and women was adopted at the recent convention of the Evangelical Brotherhood, which represents 255 organizations with a membership of 16,777, held at Elmhurst, Ill. Another resolution adopted favors Bible reading in the public schools. E. A. Kamp, of St. Louis, was elected secretary of the brotherhood and W. A. Ellersiek, of St. Louis, was made a trustee.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Maurice D. O'Connell, Solicitor-General of the Treasury Department during the Roosevelt and Taft administrations, died tonight at a hospital where he had been confined since April as a result of a street car accident. He was 82 years old, and a native of Fort Dodge, Ia.

CONGRESSMAN SUGGESTS THAT LABOR HAVE SHARE IN OPERATING INDUSTRY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.

AN appeal that laboring men have a voice in running industry was made today by Representative Macgregor, Republican, of New York, as a suggested basis for settlement of the railway shopmen's strike.

He advanced his proposal in a letter to T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

"Industrial peace," Macgregor said, "can only be attained by mutual harmonious relations. Peace can never be reached by force. The trouble seems to be that the basis of attempted settlement is wrong. Industry exists for man and not man for industry. Labor is not an adjunct of capital. The ultimate aim of the industry of a nation is not the power and luxury of a few but the happiness of the many. Capital and labor are both entitled to a share of the profits, but peace will never come as long as labor is not keenly interested in the profits. Labor must have as much incentive to make profits from capital as management. This status can never be attained until there is a close co-operation between labor and management and a proper division of profits.

"Why is it not feasible for railroad organizations to so organize their management that the men shall have a voice through representation upon the board of directors and the management so conducted that it shall be to the interests of the men to make a profit?"

MAYFIELD LEADS IN TEXAS RUN-OFF PRIMARY

Incomplete Returns Show Candidate for Senate 61,000 Votes Ahead of Ferguson.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 26.—Incomplete returns from 180 of 245 counties voting in today's Democratic primary indicated the nomination of Earle B. Mayfield for United States Senator over James E. Ferguson. The figures compiled by the Texas Election Bureau were: Mayfield, 218,223; Ferguson, 157,780.

The reports were from all sections of the State and Mayfield led consistently, each total giving him a greater lead. There was slight possibility, however, of his lead being overcome by Ferguson.

Mayfield is supposed to be receiving the Ku Klux Klan and the prohibition votes, while Ferguson is polling the anti-klan and the anti-prohibition votes. Politicians say that this accounts for Mayfield's lead, which has been steadily increasing since the first county was heard from.

In the other State races the candidates having the support of the anti-klan voters are leading. It is pointed out that in these races prohibition is not an issue, as it is in the senatorial campaign.

T. W. Davidson is leading Col. Billie Mayfield Jr. in the Lieutenant-Governor's race by 41,387 votes, the count being Davidson 132,896, Mayfield 91,509.

For State Treasurer, C. V. Terrell is leading George B. Garrett by 19,489 votes, the count being Terrell 118,059, Garrett 98,570.

S. M. N. Marrs is leading Ed R. Bentley, supposedly klan candidate, by 4858 votes in the State Superintendent of Public Instruction race. The vote is: Marrs, 113,327; Bentley, 108,469.

SEEMINGLY ENDLESS LINE FILES PAST BODY OF MICHAEL COLLINS

DUBLIN, Aug. 26.—The grief over the death of Arthur Griffith was widespread—the sorrow for the passing of Michael Collins appears overwhelming. Probably there has been nothing like it in recent history. The windows in practically every business establishment throughout Ireland have been shuttered and the blinds are drawn in all homes.

Messages of condolence continue to arrive from the provinces and from almost all foreign lands. A seemingly unending line of people waited to enter the city hall this morning to view the body; black curtains hung from the doors, and beneath the colored dome, where the body lay in state, the plinths of the statues of other great Irishmen long since departed were shrouded with black.

The coffin reposed on a catafalque in a railed-off circular space, surrounded with wreaths, many of which bore inscriptions in the Irish language. Hundreds of those who waited for hours were turned away in the morning, but they came back for the afternoon ceremony.

MASKED MEN STEAL AUTO

Albert Meyers Loses Car, Watch and $4 to Them.

Albert Meyers, 3957 Botanical avenue, started to open the doors of the garage in rear of his home at 11:30 last night to put up his Cadillac touring car, but two men saved him the trouble.

Meyers told police he had just stepped out of the car to unlock the garage when a masked man with a revolver appeared. While this man was searching Meyers' pockets a second masked man appeared and ordered Mrs. Meyers out of the car. The two men took Meyers' watch, $4 and the automobile.

EUROPE HAS NO WILL TO DISARM, TROTZKY BELIEVES

"FRANCE MAY CAUSE GERMAN REVOLT"

If This Occurs and Poland Aids France, Russia Could Not Remain Passive, He Says.

By SAMUEL SPEWACK.

A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World And the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MOSCOW, Aug. 26.—Leon Trotzky soviet minister of war sees no possibility of wholesale European disarmament. The soviet war minister believes Europe, suffering from the effects of the Versailles treaty, has not and cannot have any will to disarm. Consequently Russia, after the experience of Genoa, has abandoned hope of disarmament.

"What concrete disarmament plan has Russia to offer the world?" I asked this man who has whipped a mob of straggling workers into one of the best disciplined fighting forces of Europe.

Trotzky's Statement.

After some deliberation Trotzky wrote for me this statement:

"At Genoa our delegation had plans worked out in a spirit of complete pacifism. We were ready to adopt a complete military holiday or the lowest possible minimum armaments. We were ready to take any proposal made in good faith which would make impossible military attack by one nation upon another. We were ready and are now ready to discuss any proposal in this direction.

"To give here the possible varieties of disarmament proposals serves no purposes. The difficulty lies not in the details of the project, not in the technical circumstances, but in political willingness.

"Capitalistic Europe as it emerges from the forgery shop of the Versailles treaty is not compatible with disarmament. Europe does not want disarmament and cannot have it. In this lies the real difficulty, not in technical details. This was proven at Genoa where our opponents refused to include disarmament in the order of the day."

Trotzky's Appearance.

Later Trotzky was interviewed by all the foreign correspondents here. He received us in his office, smiling, fuller of face and stouter than his pictures would indicate, tanned and spectacled. His khaki uniform was without insignia of any kind, his collar was buttoned in military fashion about the rather full neck, one booted leg was twined about his chair leg. Only his shock of hair, neatly brushed and sprinkled with gray, was unmilitary, for the rest he was soldierly, even dapper. While talking he has a curious trick of lifting his right eyebrow at intervals.

Before him on his desk were two telephones and a large dictaphone. On a cabinet beside him were two miniature cannon. All about the room were large maps. Trotzky was in good humor, the interview afforded plenty of scope for his sardonic wit and he laughed frequently during his analysis of the foreign situation.

America, he thought, ought to call a conference on disarmament, which Russia would gladly attend if it were agreed that everyone should sign a formal contract for simultaneous disarmament.

Rusia Is Prepared.

The Russian army, he pointed out, has been cut to 800,000 from its maximum of over 5,000,000. But, he added the military schools and the army of demobilized soldiers could supply a vastly increased force in an emergency.

"Would recognition of Russia be necesary before she would attend such a conference?" he was asked.

"Recognition?" was the reply. "I breathe whether or not Mr. Hughes recognizes the fact that I breathe. We welcome recognition so far as it means resumption of trade, etc. But much has been said about recognition that does not mean anything."

When asked when complete freedom of speech would be restored in Russia, he retorted tersely:

"When we have overthrown grasping, greedy capitalism."

Deportation of social revolutionaries and bourgeois intellectuals, he said, was really a humane act but in case of war these elements would be linked with the foreign bourgeoisie.

"Still a Workers' Government."

"We would have an enemy within and then in self-defense we would have to shoot them," Trotzky explained. The war minister repeated the Communistic attitude that the era of capitalism which is now needed is only a passing phase. He firmly believes Communism has not been abandoned. Despite newly rich speculators and other evidences of capitalism, Russia remains a workers' government, he declared.

OFFICIALS MAN ONE TRAIN HELD UP BY ROODHOUSE STRIKE

Chicago and Alton Officers Enter Engine Cab After Walkout of Trainmen Following Explosions.

MANY PASSENGERS STILL MAROONED

Hotels Fill Up Rapidly When Trains Are Stopped—Some Travelers Go to St. Louis by Way of Taxicab.

By the Associated Press.

ROODHOUSE, Ill., Aug. 26.—Manned by officials of the locomotive department, one Chicago & Alton train succeeded in getting out of Roodhouse tonight, carrying a large number of passengers for points North, who had been marooned here all day. There are still over 100 persons here who were unwillingly detained when crews today refused to take their trains out following explosions in the vicinity of the roundhouse Friday morning.

The train which departed was the Hummer from Kansas City to Chicago. It was due at Roodhouse at 1:05 o'clock this morning, but did not arrive until 2:30 this afternoon. It was then held up until 7:15 tonight while officials hunted vainly for firemen and engineers. At that time the officials themselves entered the engine cab and steamed up the locomotive for the run to Bloomington, where the regular crew was to take the train on to Chicago.

Three Trains Held Up.

There were 200 marooned passengers here this afternoon, brought in by three trains which were unable to proceed. The hotels filled up rapidly and the sudden rush of business quickly depleted hotel larders.

The situation was gradually relieved, however. Many of the traveled sought automobiles to take them to nearby towns, some going as far as St. Louis by taxicab.

Two cars of live poultry and a number of cars of meat have been on the side tracks here for two days. The poultry is being cared for, but it is feared the meat will be spoiled, as the cars have not been iced since coming here.

Negotiations Begun.

Negotiations to send the firemen and engineers back to their jobs were opened today, but thus far have not been successful. Striking trainmen and shopmen held several meetings today and the men were kept closely in touch with developments.

The men maintain that conditions are such as to render operation of engines a danger.

The American Express Co. was making plans to transfer the great amount of express that had accumulated to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad.

MISSOURI PACIFIC TRAINMEN QUIT ON JOPLIN DIVISION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEVADA, Mo., Aug. 26.—The Pleasant Hill-Joplin division of the Missouri Pacific Railway was tied up today following the shooting here last night of Fireman Charles Vaughn by Lee Hatch, a Deputy United States Marshal, as Vaughn was on his way home after leaving his engine in the yards. Enginemen, firemen, conductors, brakemen, switchmen, callers and clerks numbering 500 men walked out, following the shooting, demanding the removal of all United States Marshals from the railway property.

Only two trains were run on the division today, one bound for Kansas City and one for Joplin. These will tie up at their destinations, employes say.

Vaughn was challenged by Hatch, who, according to Vaughn's statement, asked him, "Where are you going?" "None of your business," Vaughn says he replied. After a few more words Vaughn says he proceeded across the tracks. The Marshal again ordered him to halt, Vaughn says, and just as he was turning around, fired at him with a shotgun. One No. 4 shot entered the calf of Vaughn' leg.

Vaughn was arrested by the Marshal, but was later permitted to go to his home. Hatch was arrested by the county authorities. His preliminary hearing was set for Monday.

CHEAPER GAS UNLESS LACLEDE CAN JUSTIFY RATES

Company Ordered by Public Service Commission to Show Why Charges Shouldn't Be Reduced.

HEARING ON ALL RATES ON SEPT. 28

Company Has Been Earning at Rate of $600,000 Annually in Excess of "Fair" Return.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 26.—The Missouri Public Service Commission today ordered the Laclede Gas Light Co. to show cause why its rates should not be reduced. It set Sept. 28 for hearing in the matter.

The order follows the publication on last Thursday by the Post-Dispatch of the fact that the earnings of the Laclede now are at the rate of $600,000 annually above a 7 per cent return on a valuation set by the Public Service Commission as a fair basis for rate-making.

The commission announced that it had ordered its accountant to audit the books of the company from Jan. 1 to July 30, 1922, and had instructed the company to furnish a financial statement covering the period between July 1, 1920, and Jan. 1, 1922. The commission thus will have before it when the hearing opens an account of the Laclede's business from July 1, 1919, to last July 30, it previously having received a report from its accountant for the period between July 1, 1919, and July 1, 1920.

"All Rates" to Be Discussed.

The commission's order expanded a petition of the Aluminum Goods Co., a St. Louis consumer, for a reduction of rates to large industrial users of gas to include "all rates" of the Laclede. The order declares:

"Information has come to the commission that since the establishment of a maximum rate for said company there has been a reduction in operating costs to such an extent that an investigation of the operating revenue and expenses of the company should be made. It further appears that the issues in the complaint of the Aluminum Goods Co. should be enlarged to include an investigation of the reasonableness of all the rates of the gas company."

Rates Increased in April, 1921.

The last order of the commission increasing rates of the company was made in April, 1921, upon plea of the company that it was facing bankruptcy. Its financial statement for the second quarter of 1921 showed a deficit of $40,000, while its report for the corresponding quarter of 1922 showed a surplus available for interest and dividends of $721,000. Its earnings for the first six months of this year to 8.64 per cent on $10,000,000 of common stock, which the commission, in fixing a tentative valuation of $30,000,000, indicated it thought was largely water.

The unusually large return to the company from its rates has caused its common stock to jump from $43 a share at the beginning of 1922 to 93¾, the high bid on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday.

The present rate to household consumers is $1.05 per 1000 feet, the rate having been increased from 85 cents in April, 1921.

LOWER HOUSE AFTER DEBATE DECIDES ON WAR ON BUGS

"That's Practical," Says Senator Reed, When Announcement From House Interrupts His Tariff Speech.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—"War on bug"s around the Capitol was declared today by the House of Representatives. By a joint resolution passed after a rollicking debate, the House authorized the Capitol architect to proceed to the extermination of "insects" wherever found.

Representative Garner, Democrat, Texas, misreading the resolution, in a way to make it apply only to the Senate office building, made a parliamentary inquiry as to whether the "Senate is the only place where there are bugs?"

"Oh, no," replied Representative Ireland, Republican, Illinois, in charge of the measure, "there are a few in the House."

The resolution was sent over to the Senate just in time for its arrival to interrupt a speech by Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, against what he called "theoretical" provisions of the coal investigation bill. "Now that is something practical," remarked the Missouri Senator, when the House messenger announced the action of the House.

"AMERICA AND ENGLAND COULD RULE THE WORLD'

Lloyd George Tells James M. Cox Co-Operation Would Make These Two Nations Supreme.

STATEMENT BY COX ON REPARATIONS

America Holds Master Key to the Tangle, He Says, and He Strongly Advises Its Use.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, Aug. 26.—"If America would co-operate with Great Britain the two nations could rule the world."

Premier Lloyd George, expressed this opinion this morning while former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio and Judge George M. Maxey of Pennsylvania were his guests at No. 10 Downing street, the premier's official residence. Cox breakfasted with Lloyd George.

The conversation at the breakfast table was revealed neither by the man who ran against Harding for President nor in Downing street. But soon after Cox left the Premier, he issued a statement.

America Holds Master Key.

In it, he said, that as Europe is deadlocked on the amount of reparations to be paid and the manner of payment, America holds the master key to the situation. Further, Cox made the important proposal that Herbert Hoover become the representative of the United States on the reparation commission. Hoover, said Cox, possesses the confidence of all Europe and his decisions on reparations would be respected by all the allies.

Lloyd George's virility impressed his American guests; the Premier pulled away at his favorite briar while he talked after breakfast.

"I was impressed by his healthy appearance," said Cox. "He seems to me to be a man who sleeps well nights and who does not worry. He works without fatigue because his mind works easily. He makes you understand what true hospitality is and he has the homely qualities that every man likes. History will give him a very large place."

"Think Internationally."

Judge Maxey, in telling of the talk after breakfast, said: "The Prime Minister, after saying that America and Great Britain together could control the world, declared that we in America must learn to think internationally.

"I reminded him of a saying of Alexander Hamilton, that the people of America must learn to think continentally. Lloyd George said that maxim was good 100 years ago, but the people of America have outgrown it. In the twentieth century they must think internationally."

Judge Maxey presented the Premier with an illuminated address from the people of Welsh extraction who are living in Northwestern Pennsylvania and Lloyd George seemed highly gratified.

Former Gov. Cox is to be the guest of Lord Grey, one of the foremost liberal statesmen and formerly Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, at his country residence.

Cox's statement follows:

Statement by Cox.

"The storm center of the economic world is Central Europe. Those who have visited Austria and Germany are of one opinion as to the state of things now and the tragic point to which both countries are drifting. Austria has reached a stage of almost complete dissolution.

"The nations of Europe are deadlocked on the reparations question. There seems to be no relief on this side of the Atlantic. The master key is held by the United States. No decision by England seems likely to be accepted by the French. The French Government will not sanction a proposal from Germany which might approximate a readjustment of the figures now in the minds of French statesmen, because that circumstance might be regarded by the public opinion of France as a surrender to Germany.

"There is no respite, and every hour is fraught with danger. It is well to summarize the contentions of both France and Germany.

"Since the end of the war France has sold approximately $10,000,000,000 worth of bonds to her own people upon the reparations by which she would have been reimbursed by Germany in compliance with the terms of the peace treaty. Germany says she lost a fourth of her grain lands and altogether one-tenth of her territory. She issued about $25,000,000,000 worth of bonds during the war and a deficit of $10,000,000,000 remains as a floating debt. The fiscal state of both countries without economic stabilization portends but one result.

False Impressions.

"In the midst of this situation two false impressions obtain in Europe: First, that France is aggressively militaristic, and, second, that Germany is making munitions and preparing for war. The military policy of France is based upon the desire to protect herself against invasion. With assurances on this point she will reduce her army.

"The Government of Germany desires peace. The leaders are progressively democratic and the story of hidden arms, with the exception of unimportant sporadic community instances, is pure fiction. Germany has 20,000,000 more people than she can sustain except under high industrial stress. When the mark was 100 to 200 to the dollar there were certain trade advantages accruing to Germany, but in the present circumstances the banks of Germany cannot finance the industries of that country in the purchase of raw products and foodstuffs.

"Unless relief is granted shops will soon be closed, millions will be out of employment and the winter will bring the threat if not the certainty of starvation.

"With economic collapse the Government will go down too. If Germany fails, France is without reimbursement and cannot sustain the loss involved without serious consequences.

Interview With Wirth.

"Within the last week I had a long interview with Chancellor Wirth in Berlin. He summarized the situation by saying with deepest emotion:

"'Unless the United States interests herself in European affairs within a very short time all in Germany is lost, and all in Central Europe as well.'

"Recognizing that this statement broke the fetters of diplomatic usage in France, authority to repeat it in Chancellor Wirth's name to the people of the United States is given without reservation."

Cox said it is not too late to prevent disaster, that the American Government, acting in intervention on behalf of the United States could do it without any inconsistency with the existing policy.

Cox also advocates the designation of Herbert Hoover as an American representative on the Reparations Commission.

"Mr. Hoover holds the confidence of Europe," continued Cox's statement. "Peoples and Governments trust him. He can analyze the economic situation in Germany. His decision as to what Germany can pay beyond much question of doubt would be accepted by France—and that means by all parties. I believe every Chancellor in Europe would welcome his coming. The mere announcement of his selection would stabilize things.

Would Give Nations Credit.

"With the reparations adjusted, Germany and France—both are in need of large loans—would be given credit, and Austria, too. Then would come the dawn of a new day.

"Mr. Hoover is not of my political party, but anyone that is in close touch with continental conditions, as I have been, is thoroughly stripped of every partisan thought.

"The question of the interallied debt need not be considered; it is not necessary. Europe recognizes that discussion in America is unlimited now.

"Three considerations would cover every shade of American public opinion.

"First, if from a moral awakening we desire to relieve distress, the opportunity is presented.

"Second, if our desires are purely practical and a market for our products is to be gained, the necessary rehabilitation of Europe is guaranteed.

"Third, if our policy is to insist upon the ultimate payment of the interallied debts, we must remember who the world's debtors are and realize that if some of them are permitted to go to ruin now there is not even a remote chance of collection later.

"The fate of the world is in the hands of America. Days wasted in procrastination now will bring years of self-reproach later. From Europe, the base of our early ancestry, prayers go up that America will understand and, understanding, will not falter."

All Ready at Scott Field for 'Flying Circus' Today

Stunt Flying, Parachute Jumping and Other Features From 10 A. M. to 6 P. M.—Receipts to Go for Clubhouse.

Preparation yesterday for the "flying circus" to be held at Scott Field today amounted almost to an aerial pageant in itself. Not many civilians were at the field, but the airplanes that arrived from Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., and McCook Field, Dayton, O., to augment the lighter-than-air craft of the local station aroused the interest of the aviation-hardened veterans stationed there.

The "circus," which will consist of stunt flying of various kinds, parachute jumping and numerous other features, will run continuously from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. Its objects are to demonstrate the army's advancement in aeronautics and to raise funds for an enlisted men's clubhouse. The only fees charged will be 50 cents per person for those who come in automobiles, for parking space at points of vantage close to the center of activities.

The field is so large that there will be plenty of standing room. Refreshment concessions will serve soft drinks, sandwiches and lunches. The officers in charge promise that there will be something going on all the time, with continual changing. Among the things that have been planned is the wedding of a couple in a flying airplane, by Chaplain Frank MacKenzie of Scott Field.

How to Reach Scott Field.

Scott Field is 24 miles from downtown St. Louis. It may be reached by the Belleville car of the East Side lines, on a 7-minute schedule, from Eads Bridge to the Belleville square, going from there by jitney bus. Motorists will find an excellent road by way of Eads or the Municipal bridge, State street, East St. Louis, and with two routes from the Belleville square, indicated by signs.

A pony blimp flew over the business section of St. Louis at 1 p. m. yesterday to advertise the "circus," dropping hundreds of dodgers. It flew very low. In it were Col. C. G. Hall, commandant of Scott Field, and Lieut. H. H. Holland.

New Planes at Field.

The most interesting arrivals at the field yesterday were a Fokker "limousine" monoplane of unusual characteristics and a huge Martin bombing plane, both from McCook Field. It was about these that the khaki-clothed mechanics clustered most. They did not pay so much attention to the little Spads from Chanute, flivvers of the air, but civilian visitors likely will be more interested in these.

The Fokker, which made the 500-mile trip to Scott Field in three hours and 20 minutes—150 miles an hour—arrived at 1:45 p. m. It has an inclosed carriage in the fuselage, seating eight passengers in comfortable chairs, with small windows. The pilot, perforce, "sits out in the rain," just behind the 400-horsepower, 12-cylinder Liberty motor. The wings, which are made of steel tubing, have a spread of 65 feet.

This is the first exhibition of the army's new Fokkers. This one was assembled only a few days ago under the direction of Designer Fokker, who came to this country from Amsterdam to direct assembling of machines of his design for the army and navy. Germany used his machines in the World War.

The Martin bomber, a biplane built to carry up to two tons of bombs, but a 52-foot wing spread. Its power comes from twin Liberty motors like that of the Fokker. It could carry 20 persons.

Among the airplanes that flew down from Chanute were eight De Haviland biplanes and three Spads. Scott Field has one De Haviland, eight pony blimps and the large dirigible, the A-4, which recently flew there from Langley Field, Va. The A-4, which has been undergoing adjustments, probably will not be used today.

The great new hangar for dirigibles, which is nearing completion, is on the east side of the landing field, forming a good background for the events. Col. Hall said yesterday that it will be available for use by the navy's rigid airship, the ZR-1, being built at Lakehurst, N. J., for transcontinental and 'round-the-world flights. Notice of its coming will be all that is necessary, he said. Five mooring masts for smaller dirigibles are to be built at the field, but these will not be strong enough for the ZR-1, which, navy officials have said, would make St. Louis a "port of call" if a mooring mast was provided. The hangar is more suitable.

WOMAN, 80, STRUCK BY AUTO; DRIVER FLEES

Mrs. Margaret Reiman in Serious Condition—Car Owner Says It Was Stolen.

Mrs. Margaret Rieman, 80 years old, of 2842 Lemp avenue, suffered a fracture of the skull and possible internal injuries at 5 p. m. yesterday when she was knocked down at Gravois and Spring avenues by an automobile, the driver of which abandoned the machine and fled.

Mrs. Rieman was unconscious when picked up and taken to the city hospital where her condition was said to be very serious, due to her age. Identification was made by her daughter, Mrs. Emma Thierry, and the latter's husband, Clifton, of the Lemp avenue address, after they had been told by police that an elderly women had been injured.

Mrs. Rieman had stepped from the curb to board an eastbound Cherokee car when the automobile struck her. In her purse was found a number of tickets indicating she was selling chances on a quilt raffle. In a memorandum book were a number of names, evidently of persons who had purchased chances. Most of the names were of persons residing on Lemp avenue, which led to the identification.

The automobile was taken to the Magnolia Police Station where it was learned the license had been issued to Herman Rosenkranz of 3430 Missouri avenue. Police of the Magnolia Station requested officers at the Wyoming Station to question him.

Before police reached his home, however, Rosenkranz telephoned to the Magnolia Station that his car had been stolen. He said he had driven his brother-in-law to the loop at the end of the Cherokee car line and had gone into a soft drink parlor for a drink. The machine was gone, he said, when he left the place. He said he then went home on a street car before calling the police. Rosenkranz is being held until witnesses of the accident can be summoned.

Samuel Delgardo, 6 years old, son of Mrs. Mary Delgardo, 1003½ North Tenth street, suffered a fracture of a collar bone at 6 o'clock yesterday evening when he was knocked down by a truck driven by Christ Mantino, 22, 713 Biddle street, in front of 914 Wash street. Mantino, who said the lad darted in front of the automobile without warning, was arrested when police learned he had no chauffeur's license.

Mrs. Anna Duggan, 20 years old, of 2833 Victor street, and her cousin, Bernice Stevens, 14, of Evansville, Ind., were struck by an automobile driven by Fred F. Pollnow of 2710 Virginia avenue as they were crossing Lafayette avenue, east of Dolman street, last night, in front of the city hospital. Mrs. Duggan suffered a fracture of the right thigh, and her cousin suffered an abrasion of the head and temporary loss of memory.

MAN ARRESTED, CHARGED WITH $60,000 SWINDLE

Harry D. White, Held in Denver Said to Be Wanted by Postoffice Inspectors.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 26.—Harry D. White, said to be wanted by postoffice inspectors on a charge of swindling S. Tuch of Plainfield, N. J., of $60,000 at Miami, Fla., on March 17, 1921, was arrested late today by agents of the Denver District Attorney's office, who have been conducting raids on an alleged million-dollar "confidence ring."

White, according to District Attorney Vancise, is said also to be known as Sam Bernett, Harry Witting, H. Lafter and Harry Whitney. He was arrested when he attempted to cash a $100 money order said to have been sent him by another alleged swindler whose activities local authorities have been investigating.

31 Persons Still in Jail.

Thirty-one alleged members of the "confidence ring" arrested Thursday night still are in jail. Only two of the original 33 arrested and held by District Attorney Vancise on a blanket charge of conspiracy to operate a confidence game have been able to raise the $25,000 set by the court as the amount of each individual bond. These two, Lou Blonger and A. W. Duff, are at liberty.

J. Homer French, alleged leader of the "ring," who also is wanted under an indictment in Miami, Fla., was added to the list of prisoners today when he was brought to Denver from Estes Park, Colo., where he was taken into custody last night.

Twenty-nine of the men arrested Thursday night pleaded not guilty when arraigned in Criminal Court this afternoon. Authorities have been unable to determine the correct names of the four others, they explained, and for this reason their arraignments have been delayed.

J. Frank Norfleet of Hale Center, Tex., who sprang into fame when he ran down the notorious Furey gang, was the man around whom all the plans of the local officers revolved.

Norfleet, according to the District Attorney's story, came to Denver on Aug. 12 on the request of local authorities and posed as a wealthy "sucker" at a fashionable Denver hotel.

He did not have to wait long before he was approached by two alleged "confidence men" who unfolded to him a plan whereby he was to win large sums of money by speculating in oil stocks. To these men he gave the name of Frank Mulligan.

Norfleet, in constant communication with the District Attorney's office, pretended to fall for the bait and accompanied his new acquaintances to a room in a downtown office building.

"Sucker" Won on "Credit."

This office, Mr. Vancise explained, was rigged up with all the paraphernalia of a regular broker's office and while Norfleet was in the room the proverbial "come-on" man entered and "won" $10,000 on the same oil stock which Norfleet had been urged to play.

Norfleet was then allowed to play the market on a "credit" basis. He was successful, but was told he could not receive his winnings until he put up a certain amount of cash to show his good faith.

Norfleet's greatest difficulty was experienced at this time, when it was necessary to "stall" the alleged confidence men while the District Attorney's office perfected plans for the contemplated raid, Vancise said. In order to accomplish this Norfleet feigned a severe toothache and refused to take any action until he felt better.

French Indicted in Miami, Fla., for $100,000 Swindle.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 26.—Homer French was indicted here with two others by the grand jury last May for the alleged swindling of $120,000 last winter from Peter Nicholson, Middle Western banker and mine operator and bond in the sum of $50,000 was fixed for each of the defendants in the event of their arrest.

Nicholson came here personally to present his complaint to the grand jury and the authorities believe that his home is near Cleveland, O. The alleged swindle took place at a clubhouse here, which the authorities never were able to locate.

A secret indictment was returned which was not made public until nearly three weeks later, when State's Attorney Grambling told the court he had reason to believe the defendants knew the indictment had been handed down. The others indicted with French were Walter Madden, alias George Falo, alias George Falatico and Ed Harley, alias Walter Hayes.

REED WARNS UNION LABOR AGAINST 'FREEZING' PUBLIC

Missouri Senator Says if That Is Its Purpose He Will Vote to Subject Unions to Sherman Act.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Senator Reed, in a climax to a fiery speech in the Senate this afternoon against the Borah bill to create a fact-finding coal commission, warned union labor that if is purposed to "freeze" the people of the United States, an effort would be made in Congress to make labor organizations subject to the penalties of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Reed said that he spoke as a true friend of union labor who had voted for the amendment excluding labor organizations from the scope of the Sherman act. He hoped, he said, that he would not be driven to vote for the repeal of that amendment.

Insistence Would "Compel" Action.

"But," he added, "if the labor unions pursue a policy that will close the mills and send children supperless to bed, they will compel the line of action I have spoken of. It will come as sure as God is in heaven if they drive us to extremity. Mere stubborn insistence when fraught with frightful consequences will not be tolerated."

The President, he said, should have called the contending parties before them, and if he had found the mine owners in the wrong, should have demanded the reopening of the mines on the workers' terms. The owners, he said, would have not dared to disobey that injunction. On the other hand, if the President had found in favor of the operators and against the union, Reed said that public opinion would have supported him in the demand that the miners return to work. In that case, Reed said, the President should have said to the miners, "I will open the mines if it takes every soldier in the United States to do it."

Reed predicted that if the proposed commission were set up, it would fall under the control of the coal producing interests and in the end the representatives of the capital invested in the industry would have their own way.

He saw in the bill, moreover, an entering wedge toward State socialism. "If we are arranging to take this Government into socialism," he said, "let us do so in the open."

REFUGE OF 1000 STRIKE RIOTERS AT HAVRE TAKEN BY TROOPS

Three Persons Killed and About 50 Wounded in Fighting During the Day.

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE, Aug. 26.—The Franklin Club, in which a thousand rioting strikers had taken refuge, was captured by the troops late tonight. The total casualties for the day number three persons killed and about 50 wounded.

One regiment of infantry stationed in Havre threatened to take part in the fighting against the strikers. A number of soldiers have been placed under arrest by the military authorities.

The strikers are busy erecting barricades in the avenue Cours de la Republique, where they will make a stand tomorrow.

ONLY 3 OF 900 IN SUNKEN WARSHIP CREW ARE MISSING

Battleship France, One of the Prides of French Navy, Hits Rock Off Quiberon Bay.

By the Associated Press.

L'ORIENT, France, Aug. 26.—The battleship France, 23,000 tons, one of the prides of the French navy, struck a rock off Quiberon Bay in the darkness of early morning today and went to the bottom in 75 feet of water. All except three of the 900 officers and men and crew were rescued from rafts and lifeboats launched from the battleship before she took her final plunge.

The wrecked warship which was one of four battleships of the first line, returning from night maneuvers to her anchorage at Port Haliguen, when at one o'clock she ran on a rock 25 feet below the surface. A great gash was torn in the steel hull of the dreadnought. She remained afloat an hour, giving the crew sufficient time for a hurried escape in boats. Then the doomed craft slowly settled, turned on her side, and went down. She lies on the bottom and is regarded as a total wreck.

The wreck occurred in the tortuous waters of Quiberon Bay, about 20 miles southeast of here on the Brittany Coast.

The swift currents abounding there are supposed to have swept the warship slightly from her course.

The rescue required several hours and at noon today it was announced that 15 members of the crew were missing. Twelve of these were found later, and a final roll call showed that only three were absent.

The France and the Paris were the second pair of dreadnoughts of the same type, built in 1912.

72 AUTOMOBILISTS ARE CAUGHT IN POLICE NET

Most of Those Arrested for Failure to Make Boulevard Stops Ready With Excuses.

Seventy-two automobilists were arrested between 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 10 last night by the motor cycle police squad for failure to stop at boulevards and for using glaring headlights.

The drive was the first made by the police since the boulevard stop system has been in force and, they said, will be repeated until drivers comply with the regulations. Many complaints have reached police headquarters recently against strong headlights. All the arrests were made in the Newstead Avenue district, most of the violators having been arrested on Lindell, West Pine and Forest Park boulevards.

Most of those arrested wanted to argue or give excuses. One man who neglected to stop at a boulevard sought absolution with, "But officer, I blew my horn."

Here's about what another told a policeman: "Why, officer, this is the very first time I ever ran past a boulevard without stopping. Honest, I have stopped at every one this evening, but I was in deep study and just forgot all about this one. Really it will never happen again."

And then all the drivers were sure their lights were all right—until they drove to the testing board established in front of the station. The beam of light is not to go over four feet from the ground. Most of those arrested had light beams at least eight feet above the ground and some of them went entirely over the testing board.

One man who stopped at the station to see what the crowd had gathered for began to tell about the lights on his car. They were wonderfully strong, he said, and he would like to test them out on the board. An officer standing near told him to go to it. He did. Another officer then started to place him under arrest, but after 10 minutes of hard talking the man was permitted to depart.

The drive against violation of the boulevard stop ordinance began at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and continued until 8. Then the drive against glaring headlights was taken up and continued until 10 o'clock.

FEDERAL PRIORITY FOR LACLEDE GAS CO. COAL IS URGED

Chairman of State Commission Acts After Being Informed of Diversion of Fuel From Kentucky.

ONLY 75 CARS OUT OF 175 ARE RECEIVED

Householders Urged Not to Start Laying in Winter Supply Until Middle of September.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 26.—Chairman Hugh McIndoe of the Missouri Coal Distribution Commission today telegraphed to Federal Coal Distributor H. B. Spencer, insisting the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis be placed on the Federal priority list for 1200 tons of high volatile or gas coal and 188 tons of low volatile or coking coal, daily. McIndoe had been informed late this afternoon that coal from Kentucky mines of the Consolidation Coal Co. for the Laclede Company, under a contract, was being diverted, with the result that instead of receiving 175 carloads a week, as required, the Laclede Company has been getting only 75 cars a week.

McIndoe also made public a bulletin on fuel conditions addressed today to members of county coal distribution committees, in which he urged householders not to begin storing their winter coal before the middle of September, so as to allow that lapse of time in which railroads, utilities and other business industries could get back on a normal basis of supply.

Profiteering will not be tolerated, McIndoe intimated, pointing out that although the commission has not statutory price fixing power, it will not be difficult to organize community purchasing organizations to supply coal to consumers at fair prices. He predicted a sufficient supply of coal unless the transportation system breaks down.

Laclede's Telegram.

The telegram to McIndoe from the Laclede company was as follows:

"We are definitely informed that Federal Fuel Distributer at Washington has ordered Consolidation Coal Co. to ship coal to firms not having contracts with Consolidation, thus reducing our already inadequate shipments. Please take up vigorously with H. B. Spencer, and if possible arrange to have our shipments from Consolidation mines given class 1 priority. We require 175 cars per week, but shipments for the last three weeks only averaged about 75 cars."

Theft Admitted, Police Say.

Thomas L. Brown, 26 years old, a salesman living at the La Salle Hotel, who was arrested at noon yesterday, according to the police, confessed to sawing a lock off the door of the cigar store at 507 North Eighteenth street last Monday night and taking $220. Police found $155 in bills in a satchel in the hotel room and Brown was carrying $17 when arrested at Eighteenth and Olive streets.

CARTHAGE WOMAN NAMED PROBATE JUDGE

MISS EDITH KERR

WOMAN NAMED PROBATE JUDGE WAS COURT CLERK 18 YEARS

Father of Miss Edith Kerr of Carthage, Mo., Served as Judge and Named Her to Clerkship.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Aug. 26.—Miss Edith Kerr, appointed Probate Judge by Gov. Hyde, has a record of having served 18 years as Probate Clerk, beginning when her father, D. D. Kerr, was elected to that office.

In the August primary, she received the Republican nomination over two strong contestants for Probate Judge. She lead the Republican ticket, receiving a majority of more than 700 votes over her nearest opponent. As a result of the years that she served as Probate Clerk, Miss Kerr accumulated experience making her thoroughly familiar with all procedure and citizens of the county having business in that court looked to her for advice and direction.

Miss Kerr's parents are dead, and she has no immediate relatives. While always a Republican, Miss Kerr had taken no active part in politics prior to her entrance into the race for Probate Judge.

A spring tour of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, to begin March 19, 1923, has been mapped out in advance of the opening of the symphony's 1922-23 season.

S. E. Macmillen, manager of the orchestra, who returned yesterday from a tour of the St. Louis trade territory, announced that the places to be visited by the orchestra in its tour will include in Missouri, Mexico, Columbia, Kansas City and Springfield; in Kansas, Hutchinson, Wichita and Emporia; in Oklahoma, Okmulgee, Tulsa and Oklahoma City; in Texas, Fort Worth, Dallas San Antonio, Houston, Beaumont and Denton; in Louisiana, New Orleans, Monroe and Pineville; in Mississippi, Jackson and Meridan; in Alabama, Birmingham and Montgomery; in Iowa, Des Moines, Burlington, Davenport, Iowa City and Marshalltown; in Nebraska, Omaha and Lincoln; in Illinois, Champaign; and in Tennessee, Memphis.

Rudolph Ganz, conductor of the orchestra, has written from Switzerland to the manager that he has nearly finished compilation of the symphony's programs for next season. "I have spent days and hours reading scores," Conductor Ganz writes, "and have purchased enough music to last us for two seasons. I have several new symphonies, and have found some wonderful material for our 'pops' and children's concerts.

"Several of the scores include organ parts so I hope it will be possible to have the organ in the Odeon overhauled and put in perfect condition. I am planning also a new stage arrangement, which I believe will prove very effective. The management of the Odeon promised me before I left that they would put the stage in such shape that it would seem like 'home, sweet home.' They also promised to muzzle that wonderful gray rat which was my constant companion in the dressing room last season."

Conductor Ganz recently attended the Ganz family reunion in Zurich, to celebrate the seventy-fourth birthday of his father. One of the younger sons is engaged in composing an opera. Ganz writes of his intention to attend the musical festival in Salzburg, Austria. "There will be 13 concerts," he says. "The price of the whole 13 was so many hundred thousand crowns that it took me some time to figure out that it amounted only to $35."

Ganz plans to sail from France about Sept. 20, and to reach St. Louis about Oct. 15.

MISSOURI LABOR CONDITIONS NEARLY NORMAL, REPORT SAYS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—In a report issued today on labor conditions throughout the country, the Department of Labor has this to say about Missouri:

"Despite curtailment through rail and coal strikes, labor conditions in Missouri are near normal. Shortages are reported in all the building crafts. Shoe workers are employed full time. Lead and zinc mines are more active. Coal mines are reopening. The railroads have an abundant supply of common laborers but only a few skilled shopmen. The State highway program is absorbing much common labor."

MILK FUND BENEFIT BY LEGION NETS $1500

Brings Post-Dispatch Fund Past Half-Way Mark Toward $10,000 Goal—An Excellent Revue.

The benefit revue presented last night by the Fred W. Stockham post of the American Legion in the Orpheum Theater realized approximately $1500 for the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund and an inestimable amount of entertainment for a crowd that filled the parquet, boxes and half the balcony. The receipts carry the fund past the half-way mark toward its goal of $10,000.

The show opened with a Greenwich Villagesque "Art Scene," introducing a number of dialogues and dances. Among other worthy performances were those of the dark and romantic Spanish dancer, Art Nushan, and the wicked Bowery dancers, Jerry Murphey and Albert Lowe. The latter took the part of the somewhat dashing lady of the Bowery and pirouetted through a later number with a great deal of abandon as Mademoiselle Jazz.

Overseas Note.

An overseas note, reminiscent of the Parisian phase of the war, appeared in the Cafe Mandelon, which was visited by a Market street slumming party, including the inevitable sentimental blond who loses her heart to the haunting strains of a cabaret violinist and regains it to the snappy syncopation of the following jazz. A waiter who, whatever was ordered, yelled, "roast beef sandwich" in the general direction of the kitchen until somebody ordered one, whereupon he gasped that they were all gone and fainted, was received with applause.

"Sham," a one-act piece of current social criticism, presented the predicament of a discerning burglar, who on his rounds reached the last house of a fashionable and fertile block only to find that it contained nothing worth stealing.

Singers Applaunded.

Raymond Koch, baritone, was applauded for his "Toreador Song," as was J. Glenn Lee, tenor, for several selections and Richard Keane, who is on the opening bill of the Orpheum Circuit this week, for his delivery of "Gunga Din."

Lack of space makes it impossible to mention the number of other skits that were cordially received. The production was directed by Frank Moulan and Arthur W. Proetz, and was written and acted entirely by members of the post, the women in the cast all being overseas veterans, including Jack Bell, erstwhile Oriental dancer with the Passing Show of the 35th Division, A. E. F. The theater was donated for the occasion by the management and the orchestra was lent by the Musicians' Union.

SLAYER OF ACTOR SAYS HE DEFENDED HIS WIFE'S HONOR

Said Wife Repeated Charge.

"In Bergen's presence, Cline informed me, Mrs. Cline repeated her story, saying Bergen had attacked her. Bergen said sneeringly:

"'Oh, well, all women are naturally traitors.' Thereupon, Cline said he told Bergen: 'We will see now who is the better man.'

"At this point, it appears, Bergen started for the door, but Charles Scullion rushed upstairs and returned with a pistol, which he handed to Cline. Cline said he pointed the pistol at Bergen and ordered him to go upstairs, following him up with the drawn pistol. In Cline's bedroom, on the second floor, he said he gave Bergen a German Lueger pistol, which he took from a dresser drawer, telling Bergen: 'Now, we will fight this thing out in the dark.'

"Bergen (whose relatives say he is a crack pistol shot) took the gun. Cline claims he then reached up to turn off the light and saw Bergen level the pistol at him. Each man then grasped the pistol hand of the other and the fight for life was on. Cline succeeded in wresting the pistol from Bergen's grasp and they then fought in the dark for the pistol Cline still held. During the struggle the pistol was discharged and Cline's story is that he does not know whether the trigger was pulled by him or Bergen."

No Charge Against Others.

Hart was asked why, since Charles Scullion admitted handing the pistol to Cline, and he, James Scullion and Mrs. Cline all admitted talking the matter over and agreeing to get Bergen over to Edgewater that night, he did not hold someone on a charge of conspiracy. He replied that if "mutual agreement" were conspiracy, then the brothers and wife were guilty of that. He added he does not expect to make any more arrests just yet, if at all.

The statement of David Landau, Edgewater taxicab driver who drove Bergen to the Cline home on the night of the killing, is interesting:

"Bergen was a handsome man, with blond, wavy hair, and well dressed. I was at the Fort Lee Ferry when he came up and said he wanted to go to Mr. Cline's home.

"When Bergen entered the Cline home he told me to wait. I had not waited five minutes before I heard a shot and a woman's scream. I turned my car quickly intending to notify patrolman Ferry, who, I knew, was only a few blocks north of the house. As soon as I got the car turned around the door opened and Bergen, hatless and shouting loudly to me to wait for him, rushed out.

"He did not seem wounded and I thought he might be a hold-up man who would make me drive him anywhere he wanted to go.

"I speeded up and he ran like a deer for nearly a block, almost catching up with me. I passed Patrolman Ferry and shouted to him there was a shooting scrape and told him to get the guy without a hat. Then I drove on to Police Headquarters to get more aid."

An odd feature of the affair is that although Cline described the shooting as having occurred at such close quarters, during a hand-to-hand struggle, Bergen's coat, which was pierced by the bullet that entered his left breast above the heart, showed no powder burns. On the doorsteps of the Cline home, on the doorbell and upon the lower landing of the stairs inside and their fourth step were bloodstains.

Edward E. Rudolph Wins Championship at Croquet

Touches Buckeye Talisman in Pocket at Crucial Moment and Makes Keen Carom Shot at Chautauqua Tournament.

With the help of a buckeye and a keen caron shot, Edward E. Rudolph of 5088 Cabanne avenue, former Alderman and former Assistant Circuit Attorney turned his luck in the final of the super-championship croquet tournament at Piasa Chautauqua yesterday and won the title, defeating L. C. Haynes of East St. Louis, after three hours of play.

The contestants in the tournament, which lasted all day, were the champions of the last six years, as follows: D. W. Caughlan, East St. Louis, 1917; L. C. Haynes, East St. Louis, 1918; C. E. Chamberlain, Chautauqua, 1919; E. E. Rudolph, St. Louis, 1920; Dr. F. K. Dillman, East St. Louis, 1921; E. J. Byron, Alton, 1922.

In the lagging for position at the beginning, Byron gained the privilege of staying out of the first game, which was won by Haynes, closely pressed by Rudolph with only one more arch to go. Chamberlain's score was 10, Dillman's 4 and Caughlan's 3.

In the second game, with Haynes out, Byron won, with Chamberlain, 12, Rudolph 7, Dillman 5 and Caughlan 4.

With Byron and Haynes out, Rudolph won the third game easily, staking out when Caughlin had four arches, Dillman 3 and Chamberlain 3.

Ah, the Buckeye!

In the fourth, with the three low men dropped, Haynes walked away from Rudolph and Byron, making the round trip while Rudolph was negotiating 3 arches and Byron 2.

That eliminated Byron and left Haynes and Rudolph to fight it out in the final.

In the ellmination bouts each man played only one ball. In the final each played two balls and the limit of five arches to a turn was taken off.

Haynes took the lead, working his two in the first hour of play down the court and back to the center arch, while Rudolph was stalled at the same arch, outbound. For an hour they battled for the center arch. Then Rudolph put his hand in his pocket and his fingers touched the buckeye which had been loaned to him by his friend, Fred Armstrong of Springfield, who guaranteed its talismanic powers. He had forgotten all about the buckeye, but when he touched it he determined to make a desperate effort to change his luck.

Referee Reverses Ruling.

The way he was placed, the only chance was a carom shot. He tried it and his ball made the double arch. He maneuvered the other into position and put it through and held the court for 25 minutes and was almost up with Haynes on the return trip when he missed. Haynes was unable to do anything in his turn. On his next play Rudolph tied the score. Haynes, with three shots, cleared the center arch and No. 13. Rudolph, on a see-saw play, cleared the last arch and brought his other ball up, and after driving Haynes to the far end of the court, staked out with one ball. Haynes, although excelling in long shots, missed the one upon which the issue of the game depended. Rudolph, with only one ball left to play against Haynes' two, hit one of them, which gave him two shots. On the first one he staked out.

The only hitch in the long struggle was when, about the middle of the game, Referee Flannigan ruled that Rudolph's two, which were in contact, could be separated. Haynes, backed by the gallery, protested and cited rule No. 8, and Flannigan reversed his ruling.

The game was played in 83 turns. On long runs the players were tied with eight each.

Eugene Gaskins and Dr. C. J. Clapsaddle were umpires and scorers.

The trophy and symbol of Rudolph's superchampionship is a handsomely mounted mallet donated by J. H. Joquin of East St. Louis.

REPORT ON TARIFF BILL EXPECTED BY SEPTEMBER 15

McCumber and Fordney Expect Congress to Act Promptly on Issues.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Conferees on the tariff bill expect now to have their report ready for the Senate and House by Sept. 15, Chairman McCumber, of the Senate managers, and Fordney, of the House managers, said today. They look for prompt action by Congress after their labors are ended.

Substantial progress in composing the more than 2000 differences between the two houses have been made, but the highly controversial points, such as American valuation and the duties on dyes, have been passed over.

HAWAIIAN MUSIC A HIT WITH K. S. D. AUDIENCE

Post-Dispatch Station to Begin Broadcasting Sunday Ball Scores After Bugle Calls.

Hawaiian music played on native instruments made a hit with radio fans who listened in on the K S D program last night. The performers were a group of St. Louis musicians, and their program was artistic in the extreme, and elicited many compliments from hearers. All evening the telephone in the studio reception room was kept busy by persons eager to express their pleasure. These calls came from both local and distant points, and were uniform in their praise of the entire program.

In addition to the Hawaiian music there was a group of piano numbers played by their composer, Joseph Richardson, a young St. Louisan. A group of violin numbers, presented by John R. O'Leary, accompanied by Richardson, also were extremely well played. Members of the Hawaiian quartet are James Sumler, Kenneth M. Gates, Frederick Welsh and Alexander Campeau.

Announcement was made by radiophone that beginning tonight Station K S D will broadcast the Sunday baseball scores. This broadcasting will take place at 8:15 p. m., and will be preceded by a series of bugle calls. Baseball fans who have receiving sets can tune in on these trumpet calls at 8:15 every Sunday evening for the remainder of the baseball season, and hear the scores of the Sunday games.

DETECTIVES ARREST "DOCTOR" AT "OPEN AIR HOP HOTEL"

Nine Men Are Held As Suspects After Raid at Foot of Chouteau Avenue.

"Dr." Novey Trost, 45 years old, of 3515 Cozens avenue, was arrested at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon on a charge of violating the Federal narcotic act when detectives raided what they termed an "open-air hop hotel" at the foot of Chouteau avenue. Harry Schaefer, 816 South Fourth street, and eight negroes found at the place, were held as suspects.

Police said Trost had a large quantity of morphine and several hypodermic syringes and was offering the drug to the negroes at "50 cents a shot." The "hotel" consisted of several benches under the elevated driveway at the foot of Chouteau avenue used by city garbage wagons to reach barges on the river.

Tells Women How to Purge the Skin of Impurities

Noted specialist reveals secret of quick beauty that is astonishing the world. Simple skin cathartic applied at home, made of plants and flowers, transforms a sallow, ugly skin in 20 minutes.

That a sallow, lifeless skin, even one mottled and disfigured with blackheads and freckles, can be cleared up and made as soft and white and lovely as a baby's in 20 minutes is the astonishing statement of William P. Kahn, internationally noted specialist in beauty culture. And more astonishing still are the almost miraculous transformations this man has recently brought about in proof of his theory.

"It is all so very simple," said Mr. Kahn in discussing his discovery, "that I do not see why there should be so much excitement about it.

"For years," he continued, "modern dermatological science has agreed that the cause of most skin troubles, of muddy, bad complexions, is a dead oil that clogs in the pores and invites germ life to multiply. Every skin has a certain amount of this bacteria-laden oil, for in its healthy state it serves to lubricate the skin. But modern life has made it fall short of its purpose. It hardens in the pores—stops them from doing their duty. Then comes trouble—a dark, ugly skin, blackheads, fine lines, greasiness, a total lack of charm.

"So the problem has been to remove that oil; in other words, to give the pores a cathartic and make them discharge it. For as soon as the skin is rid of this accumulation, radiance takes the place of lifelessness.

"Scores of methods were employed to accomplish that result. Among them the so-called 'beauty clays' and muds. But they fell short, besides being messy to apply. After years of laboratory work, I found the solution in a simple cream-poultice composed of plants and flowers. And it is this preparation—now obtainable under the name of KANTOL—that is causing so much talk."

Purges the Pores

The method of which Mr. Kahn is the discoverer is unlike any other ever perfected. Dermatological authorities say it has no parallel in the annals of beauty culture.

Containing no bleach, no harsh chemicals, no clay or "beauty mud," it purges every pore in your face within 20 minutes. You apply it like a cold cream. Results are unbelievable unless you see them with your own eyes.

At the recent Beauty Congress, dark-skinned women and girls, women with mottled, ugly skins, were brought in for the Kantol treatment. In one application their skins were lightened from four to seven shades. Blackheads were removed—every one. Freckles and fine lines disappeared as if by magic. Beauty experts from all the world stood awed before what was done, for instant beauty, an unattractive woman transformed had become a reality. You could see Kantol work, could see the germ-laden oil being discharged, the blackheads coming out; radiant charm taking the place of drab unattractiveness before your own eyes.

William P. Kahn, internationally noted beauty expert, who, without the use of a bleach, harsh chemicals or "beauty clay," lightens a sallow skin four to seven shades, removes blackheads and fine lines, reduces freckles and transforms an ugly complexion to one as soft and white and lovely as a baby's in 20 minutes, with a secretly blended and exquisite cream-poultice.

Now Obtainable for Home Use

The secret preparation used by William P. Kahn in working these amazing skin transformations is now obtainable for use at home. It is named Kantol Elixir and may be had at various department and drug stores. In St. Louis, Famous-Barr, Wolff-Wilson, Vandervoort's, Judge & Dolph, Grand-Leader and other stores have it in large size jars. Or a supply can be obtained by mail, postpaid, for a limited time by mailing the coupon below. Send no money, but pay the postman $1.50 when he delivers it to you. BROWNS LOSE, 9-2 AND DROP TO SECOND PLACE

Giants Display Punch And a Great Defense; Defeat Cardinals, 8-7

Rickeymen Batter Scott, Ryan and Jonnard, but McGrawmen Overcome Lead by Pounding Doak for Enough Runs to Win—Bancroft and Frisch Play Brilliantly in Field.

By J. Roy Stockton,

There is a powerful machine leading the National League these days. Perhaps dwellers in houses ambitious to flaunt a pennant should not throw bouquets at the enemy, but one would be stupid indeed not to appreciate that Johnnie McGraw has as flashy and potent a ball club as there is in baseball. It has punch, a powerful devastating punch. It has speed on the bases. It has speed in the infield and speed in the outfield. And in the infield there are four baseball artists whose manual skill makes an afternoon at Sportsman's Park very much worth while, whether that team wins or loses.

Twice the Cardinals have met that machine in the current crucial series, and twice have the Cardinals been defeated. Friday the Giants made use of one fielding slip by Rogers Hornsby and tied the score with three runs. Then they strode to victory over another error in the ninth inning. Yesterday the Cardinals again started with a lead and again the powerful Giants overcame that lead and strode off the field triumphant.

Yesterday the McGrawmen needed no help in the form of fielding weakness. The Cardinals played perfect ball in the field and yet the Giants were victorious. The Cardinals made seven runs and the Giants made eight. If the Cardinals had made 10 the Giants probably could have made 11, without much trouble. That's the impression the Giants make—that they have the reserve to overcome any handicap, to overcome pitching weakness, to overcome anything, to fight best when the fighting is hottest.

It was an excellent battle, that struggle yesterday. The Cardinals took the lead in the first inning when John Scott gave two bases on balls and Bottomly, Mueller and Schultz singled in order after Hornsby had sacrificed. That combination netted three runs.

Giant Defense Checks Rally.

In the fifth inning after Stock had walked Hornsby hit to right and reached third when the ball bounced over Young's head. But Hornsby got no further. He held third while Bancroft raced in and threw out Bottomly. Mueller walked and stole second, but Schultz fouled to Groh and Frankie Frisch tossed out Ainsmith.

Doak had been pitching excellent ball thus far. The Giants scored a run in the first on a walk and Groh's double, but after Snyder had beat out a bunt in the second Bill retired the McGrawmen in order in the third, fourth and fifth. But the Giants kept punching away and in the sixth their efforts bore fruit.

With one out Frisch doubled to left and went to third while Hornsby was throwing out Meusel. Young punched a single over second, scoring Frisch and reached third on Kelly's double to right center. Doak made a poor delivery of a slow ball and it bounced past Ainsmith, Young scoring. Doak then showed his right to stay on the hill by striking out Stengel.

Robertson and Frisch Find Doak for Home Runs in the Seventh Inning

These two runs brought the score to 4 to 2, favor the Cards, and in the seventh the faltering Doak was slammed for three more. Snyder walked and Davy Robertson, batting for Ryan, lofted a home run into the right field seats, putting the Giants one run ahead. Bancroft singled to right, but died stealing on the third strike to Groh. That attempted steal cost a run as Frankie Frisch promptly pounded a homer into the right field seats. That gave the Giants a lead of three runs.

Hornsby reduced the lead to two in the seventh when he hit into Grand boulevard for his thirty-first homer of the season, but the Giants came right back in the eighth and scored two. Young started with a double to left and Kelly sacrificed. Young scored on Stengel's grounder to Hornsby and then Earl Smith cracked out the third Giant homer of the game.

Fournier Hits Into Bleachers.

Still the Cardinal punch was in evidence. Ainsmith walked in the eighth, and after Toporcer had flied to Stengel Fournier batted for Doak and hit into the right field seats for the circuit. But that left the McGrawmen with a lead of one run and it was sufficient.

If any other infield had been playing against the Cards that lead would have melted away in the ninth, but there the great defense that McGraw had builded, saved the game. Hornsby, who had hit a sacrifice, single, triple and home run in four trips to the plate, opened the ninth with a terrific grounder toward short. The ball whistled as it bruised the grass in its path and it appeared that no human hands could check its force. But Davey Bancroft was on it. He got both hands on it and the force of the ball almost knocked him down. He did lose his balance, but he had the arm as well as the hands, and his fine throw to Kelly beat the fleet-footed Hornsby by a fraction of a step.

Bottomly lined to Meusel and then Heine Mueller got all the force of his Gravois shoulders into a grounder toward Frisch. Frankie knocked down the terrific drive and was on the ball like a hawk. Like a flash he hurled the ball to Kelly and the game was over. It was as impressive a beating as any team ever suffered. The Giants won and made the spectators like it.

Those last inning stops by Bancroft and Frisch were typical of their work all through the game. In the bright lexicon of McGraw's infield there are no grounders too hot to handle. They handle 'em all, and they turn them into putouts, with such apparent ease that one wonders why that machine is not 20 games ahead of its nearest rival, instead of a scant six and one-half.

Not all of the Giant stars are youngsters or men in their prime. Casey Stengel, considered passe as a major leaguer, robbed the Cardinals of a run in the seventh inning. Hornsby had just hit his home run and Mueller had doubled down the left field line. Joe Schultz hit a powerful liner to center, an apparently certain safety. But Stengel, the aged, disregarded creaking joints and onstealing senility and took a slide for the ball. He got his hands on it just as it was about to hit the turf and he held it. Pennant rooters and common or garden bleacherites cheered the veteran for that catch.

The Big Punch Has Made All of These Stars Winners

Pennant Rooters' Club Goes Into Action; Sherdel to Pitch Today

The Pennant Rooters' Club, an organization formed to cheer the Cardinals and Browns to victory, went into action for the first time yesterday afternoon and made a mighty noise at Sportsman's Park. Twelve thousand persons saw the game and officials of the club announced last night that the membership of the organization had reached 2500.

Horns were distributed among the members who occupied a section in the third base side of the grand stand and there were cheers, patterned after college yells, with cheer leader, megaphone and everything. Several of the hard-boiled ball players appeared a bit disconcerted when they heard the leader yell:

"Nine rahs for Lavan, now boys—and call him Doc. All together, now, make it snappy."

And the bleachers did not seem to know what the deuce it was all about. The blatant razzberry and the spontaneous burst of variegated yells, roars and groans probably will continue to be hot favorites, but it must be admitted that there never was a noisier crowd than yesterday's.

Today will be hard on the club, as all the reserved seats had been sold before the Pennant Rooters thought about Sunday and so the boys probably will have to pass up cheers in unison until they can get their lines of communication and reservation established.

McQuillan and Sherdel Today.

Hugh McQuillan, recently purchased from the Boston Braves, will pitch for the Giants in the final game of the series today. Sherdel probably will work for the Cardinals.

Spectators at the games with the Giants this year are inclined to consider Frankie Frisch the greatest ball player in the National League. He does not hit as hard as Hornsby, but he certainly does play a brilliant second base. He goes after every ground ball as though his life depended on that one play. If he can't reach the ball any other way he dives headlong and several times he has made stops that way. He is so fast that a fumble means nothing to him. He can recover and throw in time to retire the fastest base runners.

Today's game marks the final appearance of the Giants here this season. Tomorrow is an open date. Chicago will play here Tuesday and Wednesday and games with the Pirates Thursday, Friday and Saturday will conclude the Cardinals' 1922 season at home. They depart Saturday night to finish the season on the road.

SHEELY HITS 2 HOMERS; FABER BLANKS MACKMEN

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—Urban Faber proved too much for Philadelphia in the opening game of the series and Chicago won by the shutout route, 8 to 0. He allowed only six hits, all singles, not a local player reaching third base. Sheely made a home run in the fifth and in the ninth. He also had a single and scored four runs. Score:

PITTSBURG, Aug. 26.—Maranville's triple with two on in the eighth gave Pittsburg a 7 to 5 victory over Brooklyn today. Both teams hit savagely, but sharp fielding cut off possible runs. Decatur and Mamaux faced continuous bombardments while Morrison was effective after the first inning. Score:

Heilmann Injured As Tigers Win, 8-5

Detroit Outfielder's Collar Bone Broken in Collision With Brower.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Detroit defeated Washington in a loosely played game today 8 to 5. It was a costly victory for Detroit, however, as their hard hitting outfielder, Harry Heilmann in a collision at first base with Brower, had his collar bone broken and is probably out of the game for the rest of the reason. Brower stopped to make a throw at the instant that Heilmann reached first and as a result the latter went into the air, nearly turning a complete somersault and landing on his right shoulder. Heilmann was also injured about the legs, and had to be carried from the field.

DENVER PLAYER CATCHES BALL DROPPED 335 FEET

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Aug. 26.—Dixie Parker, catcher of the Denver (Western League) baseball team, today caught a baseball dropped from the Daniels and Fisher tower, 335 feet high. The tower is in the heart of the business district.

Parker caught the third ball dropped from the tower, the momentum almost throwing him off his feet. On his first try Parker misjudged the speed of the ball and it broke through his glove, bouncing 15 feet in the air. The second ball dropped was wide and Parker was unable to reach it.

A large crowd packed the vicinity of the tower to watch the attempt which was made as the result of a wager between Parker and another member of the Denver team.

REDS WIN DOUBLE BILL FROM BRAVES, 5-3, 2-1

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 26.—Though outbatted in each contest, the Reds won both games in the doubleheader from the Boston Nationals today, 5 to 3 and 2 to 1. Rixey and Donohue were hit rather freely, but were very effective in the pinches. Houlihan, a recruit, started the first game for Boston and allowed only five hits in six innings, but was very wild, giving seven bases on balls. Oeschger was hit in only two innings. Score:

Fohlmen Falter in Field When Yankees Pound Wayne Wright

Carl Mays Holds St. Louis Batters in Check Until He Has Safe Lead; Double Plays Kill Rallies for Sisler and Co.—Kolp to Face League Leaders in Final of Series Today.

By Dent McSkimming,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, August 26.—Outgamed, outhit and outpitched, the Browns today lost the third game of their series with the Yanks. The New Yorkers were able to score nine runs off the pitching of Wayne Wright, supplemented by that of Billy Bayne, and the Browns could put across but two runs off Carl Mays.

After all is said, Mays pitched a grand ball game and is fully deserving of victory.

Just as in the first game of Friday's double-header, Shocker was a greater pitcher than Waite Hoyt, so today Mays was a more effective pitcher than Wright.

Before the game opened and as far along as the first inning of the game, Wright looked a certain winner. He had good control of his freak delivery, the knuckle ball, and it broke so elusively as to give him three strike outs in the first three innings.

But, when he did change pace and deliver a fast ball or anything like a straight ball, the Yanks pounded him for hits.

New York scored six runs off Wright in six innings. It matters not that "Rasty" permitted only three runs to be driven in on pinch hits. The Yanks contrived to score 6 times while he was in the box and that was easily sufficient to assure Mays of victory.

Kolp Will Hurl in Final.

Because of the failure of Davis and Wright in their attempts to check the Yanks, Fohl will probably call upon Ray Kolp to pitch tomorrow's final game. Kolp has a fine percentage of victories, 12 and 4, but because he relies upon his fast ball it is thought that he will not be as effective as might be desired. If he goes into the box and the Browns give him a lead of a few runs he may muster sufficient change of pace to subdue the Yanks and give the Fohl men an even break on the series of four games.

The Browns went into the game feeling certain of victory. Mays has never heretofore been able to hold them in check for a full nine innings. They were so confident that they could batter him off the mound that they went fishing for first balls. Too eager to wait, they hit the first thing and went out quickly in the first four innings.

Meanwhile the Yanks had obtained an advantage. Although the Hug men did not actually hammer Wright, they got hits at opportune moments. In the second Pipp opened with a single. Schang tapped to Wright and was out, Pipp reaching second. Then Wright weakened on Meusel and Bob drove a single over second, scoring Pipp.

It seems to be forever the fortune of the Browns to have close plays at the Polo Grounds called against them. In almost every game played with New York this season there has occurred a play which necessitated a decision from the umpires upon which the outcome of the game rested. Today's critical play occurred in the second inning. Meusel waited on first base long enough to see Ward fan for the second out and then he tried to steal second, from whence he might score on a hit by Scott.

Every Possible "Break" Helps Mays; Three Double Plays Check Brownies

Severeid anticipated the play and signaled a pitchout which he received clear of the batters. He pegged accurately to second and Gerber put the ball on Meusel. Umpire Moriarity was on top of the play and in excellent position to see what happened. It was so apparent to the Browns that Meusel was out that they started for the bench. Even the Yankee players started out from the bench. But, it developed, the inning was not quite over. Meusel, taking a long shot, looked up at the umpire for a decision. Moriarity, for the first time, ruled the runner safe. On the next ball pitched by Wright, Scott singled to left and Meusel scored.

Wright got through the third inning in fine fashion, getting Ruth on a strike out and making Witt and Dugan pop up. But, behold the fourth!

Pipp hit a hard grounder at Sisler. It looked like an easy out. Sis was set for a bounce at his knees or higher when suddenly the ball departed from its natural bounce and hugged the ground, going through Sis's legs to right field for two bases. It was obviously a lucky break for Pipp. Then came another, and yet another until New York was actually "in" as far as the game was concerned.

Schang, sacrificing, dumped a bunt close to the plate. Severeid was on the ball and, ready to throw Schang out at first, he let the ball slip from his hand and it rolled behind the plate. Schang reached first and Pipp third. Up to that point Wright had not uncorked a wild pitch. The next moment he had delivered that very thing. Pipp, thanks to a bad bounce, an error by Severeid and a wild pitch scored for the New Yorkers. There might have been further trouble but for the fact that McManus started a double play on a grounder from Mays. There were three men on at the time for after Wright's wild pitch he walked Meusel and Ward fouled to Severeid. Scott singled to left, but Kenny Williams' perfect peg to the plate prevented Schang from attempting to score. Carl Mays took a vicious cut at the ball and sent a drive at McManus. Marty scooped up the ball, stepped on second and threw to Sisler for a double play.

The Browns had gone to bat five times and had gotten but three hits, one by Jacobson, one by Severeid and another by Foster, when the Yanks took their turn in the fifth.

Witt was out on a fly to Williams when Dugan punched a single to left. Ruth, deliberately changing his stance at the bat to keep from striking out as he had done in the third, swung under the ball and lifted a fly to Tobin. The ball went so high as to be really bewildering. It fell at the very edge of the grandstand and Tobin was under it in plenty of time to make a catch. Dugan hesitated near second to watch Johnny haul in the fly. But Johnny found the thing too heavy as it came down and it went through his hands for an error.

With men on first and second Pipp smashed a ball toward right. McManus made a sensational glove hand stop and wheeled to throw to Sisler. He was off balance and the throw was bad. They charged Marty with an error for Dugan scored on the play. Then Schang sent a long fly to Jacobson and Ruth scored. The Yanks had counted two runs on one hit. They had scored in five innings, five runs on six hits. Rather rough on Wright.

Devastation Wins From Bon Homme In Saratoga Race

TITLE EVENT POSTPONED

Championship Feature for 3-Year-Olds Probably Will Be Declared Off.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Fair was the day, big was the crowd, but muddy and heavy was the track so that the big three-year-old special put on as an added feature by the Saratoga Association to settle, if possible, the much discussed and open question of superiority was postponed here today, and in all probability will be declared off.

Another storm last night, following the miniature cloudburst on Wednesday evening ended all hope of the fast track and as this was one of the conditions under which the race was framed because of the fact that Bunting and Pillory are not at their best in heavy going, it was necessary to call it off.

The crowd, however, which again packed grandstand and lawn found quite enough to increase the pulse beat and furnish all the excitement needed for one afternoon as the sport in spite of the poor condition of the track, was of the best with three or four driving finishes. Some disappointment naturally was felt when what promised to be the big race of the afternoon was dropped, but no word of complaint or criticism was heard.

Edict running in the colors of the Rancocas stable won the Spinaway stakes for two-year-old fillies, and so established her right to high rank in that class. She beat H. P. Whitney's Fly by Day a head in a whirling, driving finish. The two were practically locked from the head of the stretch to the finish.

Devastation Is Winner.

Devastation confirmed his victory over Mad Hatter at Fort Erie two weeks ago by beating Bon Homme a neck in a driving finish for the Merchants' and Citizens' handicap at one mile and three-sixteenths while J. E. Widener's Houdini got up just in time to beat J. S. Cosden's Bullseye by a narrow margin in the Saratoga steeplechase.

H. P. Whitney's Cresta, ranked by many as the best two-year-old filly of the year, was practically left at the post in the Spinaway Stakes and so had no chance to prove her right to a place at the top. Otherwise the start was exceptionally good and the race truly run.

Fly by Day, Cresta's stable companion, running in the second colors almost saved the day for those who pinned their faith to Cresta. She forced the pace in the run up the back stretch racing Runelise the full sister to Morvich into submission, shaking off Brocade which was always prominent and finally fighting out the finish stride by stride in gamest possible manner with Edict which joined her at the head of the stretch for a long head and head drive to the wire.

Sande who had the mount on Edict, appeared to outride McAtee slightly through the closing strides and the boy fairly lifted home the daughter of Jim Gaffney by the very power of a strong hand ride.

LOCAL TENNIS UMPIRES PERFECT ORGANIZATIONS

The members of the local chapter of the National Tennis Umpires Association met last week and perfected an organization which will be of benefit to the game here. Fred A. Gardner, recently appointed chairman, called the meeting to order. In addition to the chairman the following umpires were present: Woodward H. Brown, W. F. Davis, Dr. E. M. Carson, Ted Drewes, Harvey Frohlichstein, Ray Mills, Davison Obear and Alvin Schwarz.

Proper method in calling scores, the foot fault rule and the rules governing linesmen were the principal subjects under discussion at the umpires' meeting. A number of doubtful points concerning the play were also cleared up.

It was unanimously agreed at the meeting that all decisions rendered by the umpires in the chapter would be in accordance with the official 1922 Manual of the Tennis Umpires' Association. This book contains all necessary rules and instructions for umpires and has been adopted by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

With the assistance of the press the local chapter of umpires hopes to acquaint every tennis player in the city with the correct version of the most important rules of the game. This will be of much benefit to the junior players especially. The umpires will meet every Friday noon. Players wishing to be informed on the tennis rules may communicate with Fred A. Gardner, chairman St. Louis Chapter of Tennis Umpires, 403 Boatmen's Bank Building.

Cabanne Tourney Ends.

The annual tennis tournament for the championship of the Cabanne Tennis Club came to a close yesterday when the final round of the men's doubles event was played. Oscar Brockmeyer and J. M. Longinotti won the title by defeating the team of Abrahams and Davidson in the final round, 6—3, 6—2. Last year the Goldwasser brothers won the doubles title, but they did not defend it this season. In the semifinal round this week Abrahams and Davidson defeated C. Blaine and S. Sussman, 6—4, 6—4; Brockmeyer and Longinotti defeated W. Kemp and H. [illegible], 6—3, 7—5.

Aldridge allowed only three scattered hits until the last inning, when Williams doubled after one was out. Walker tripled, scoring Williams. Walker scored when Hollocher fumbled Parkinson's grounder, and Parkinson scored on Fletcher's double. Only three Cubs reached second base and one of these got as far as third. Argentine Polo Team Beaten In Herbert Tourney

South Americans, Unable to Overcome Handicap of Five, Lose 13 to 10.

By the Associated Press.

RUMSON, N. J., Aug. 26.—Argentina's polo team, which came to the United States ten days ago, fresh from triumphs in England, was eliminated from the Herbert Memorial Cup tournament today by the Orange County Club, 13 to 10, the handicap of five conceded to the Americans being too much for the Latin players to overcome.

Rated as about the equal of the American four which won the International cup from England last year, the Argentine players were disappointing, particularly as Orange County until now had not been considered a probable winner of the cup. The short time they have spent in this country, after an unusually long voyage with scant time to escape social fest, and get down to practice told in their teamwork, which, however, was better than that of Orange County.

The game was played on a soggy field, the turf being very soft from a heavy rain that fell shortly after noon and which kept the attendance down to a few hundred.

Lacey Is Star of Game.

With a handicap of five to wipe out before the scores began to count, the South American poloists had the game almost even at the end of the first half in which they scored seven goals to three for Orange County. But, in the second half, the North Americans completely outplayed their opponets, making five goals to three.

Luis L. Lacey, the back of the Argentine team, was the individual star, scoring half of his team's goals and making drives that for length were not equaled by anyone else in the game.

Both Capt. W. A. Harriman, No. 1, and C. C. Rumsey, No. 2, of Orange County played superbly. Malcolm Stevenson exhibited daring horsemanship, time and again outriding several of the Argentine players.

The lineup:

Argentine (10).	Position.	Orange Co. (13).
D. Miles (0)	No. 1	W. A. Harriman (3)
Jack Nelson (3)	No. 2	C. C. Rumsey (3)
John Miles (2)	No. 3	M. Stephenson (1)
Luis L. Lacey (5)	Back	Morgan Belmont (1)

Orange County received a handicap of 5.

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Orange County	0	1	0	2	1	2	1	1
Argentine	1	1	3	2	1	0	2	0

Goals from fouls—Argentine, 3, all by Lacey; Orange County, 3, Rumsey, 2; Harriman, 1.

National Doubles Final Is Postponed

Tilden and Richards to Play Patterson and Wood for Title Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—The meeting between the crack doubles combinations of America and Australia—W. T. Tilden II, and Vincent Richards playing-through champions and Gerald L. Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, antipodean Davis Cup players—for the National Lawn Tennis Doubles Championship was postponed today until Monday because of rain.

The rain caused postponement of all play for today and the National Veterans' doubles championship will be decided in New York probably at the time of the Davis Cup meeting.

Holcomb Ward, one of the teams that won their way to the final round obtained the consent of J. D. E. Jones and A. W. Ingraham of Providence, the other finalists, to defer decision.

The postponement made necessary the default of Mrs. F. H. Godfrey of Boston and Wallace F. Johnston, of Philadelphia to Miss Helen Wills, the girl-player from Berkeley, Cal., and Howard O. Kinsey, of San Francisco in the semifinal round of the National Mixed Doubles Championship Tournament. The latter will now meet Mrs. Molla B. Mallory and W. T. Hilden II, respectively the National Women's and Men's Singles Champions, in the final round for the mixed doubles title. This event and the National Junior and Boys' Singles finals, together with the final match in the Women's Singles Tournament in which Mrs. Mallory and Miss Wills are the survivors will be played Monday afternoon also.

C. C. Doubles Final Today.

The final round of the doubles event in the Junior Chamber of Commerce tennis tournament will take place at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Ray Mills and Davison Obear will oppose Louis Grone and Charles Sparks for the title. Today's contest will be played on the courts at McPherson and Vandeventer avenues.

A. A. Games Transferred.

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 26.—The four-game series between Columbus and Toledo which was to have been played here beginning Aug. 29 has been transferred to Columbus and the series to have been played there Sept. 2 to 5 inclusive has been transferred to Toledo, it was announced today by officials of the Toledo club.

Murray Wins Net Title.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ontario, Aug. 26.—R. Lindley Murray of Niagara Falls, N. Y., won the international tennis singles today, defeating A. L. Bruneau of Brooklyn, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2. Mrs. Harry Bickle, the Canadian champion, defeated Miss M. McDonald, 6—2, 6—3, in the Ladies' Singles.

Miske to Box Roper In 10 Round Battle

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 26.—CLOSE on the heels of his victory over Fred Fulton, came announcement tonight that Billy Miske of St. Paul, heavyweight, had been signed to meet Captain Bob Roper in a ten-round no-decision contest at Oklahoma City, on Labor day.

Miske and Roper have met twice before and the former won a referee's decision once and won on a foul on the second occasion.

Four offers of a bout with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, were received today by Miske's manager. They were from clubs in Brooklyn, New York City and Jersey City.

FOHLMEN FALTER IN FIELD WHEN YANKS POUND WAYNE WRIGHT

sixth when Meusel singled to score later on hits by Mays and Witt.

In the seventh against Billy Bayne, Ruth got a double to right. He went to third on Pipp's sacrifice hit and came home on Schang's fly to Williams, his third sacrifice hit of the game.

Dugan's single to center scored Scott and Mays in the eighth. Scott had walked and Mays had beat out a bunt.

Mays Wins Easily.

With the game tucked away as a victory, Mays eased up a bit in the eighth and ninth, or perhaps the Brownies were becoming better acquainted with the break on his underhand curve. At any rate Tobin found him for a double to open the eighth. Foster and Sisler died on grounders to the infield, Tobin getting around to the plate for the first run off Mays. Williams dropped the ball on the left field foul line for a legitimate single and converted it into a double when Meusel loafed a bit. Jacobson went up there all taut and determined to break up the ball game, but the best he could get off Mays was a grounder to Dugan who tagged Williams for the third out.

In the ninth festivities were reopened when McManus singled to center. Severeid did the same thing and McManus went to third on Witt's fumble. Then Gerber had the misfortune to hit into a double play, McManus scoring. Gerber probably did the proper thing in attempting to hit through the infield, rather than sacrifice, but his drive was straight at Scott, a hard hit ball, but in the wrong direction.

Pat Collins went up to swing for Bayne and he coaxed a walk to first. Mays was evidently weakening, for he seemed to be working hard to get the ball over to Pat. Tobin came right back with a single to right which would easily have scored Severeid from second, but Hank didn't happen to be there because of the double killing. Cedric Durst was called upon to bat for Foster and he drove a couple of liners down the first base line, foul by inches, before lifting to Dugan for the final out of the game.

The most disheartening thing the Brownies had to contend with aside from Mays' fine pitching, was the thrice repeated double play of Scott to Ward to Pipp. It saved Mays' game. It so happened that the plays were operated at most critical moments so far as Mays was concerned. In the fourth and in the sixth and again in the ninth when the Browns were fortunate enough to get the first man up on the bases, the scourge swept them from the scene.

Rain threatened throughout the game. There was a slight fall of mist at times, but it was not necessary to iterrupt the battle. There were not more than 12,000 present, a very poor crowd for New York on a Saturday afternoon with first place in the league hinging upon the outcome of the game.

Eddie Foster hopped and hobbled about the field with all the enthusiasm of a boy mascot. If the Browns were not playing the Yanks at this time Foster would be out of the game, resting an injured right foot, but with every game counting heavily in the race for the championship, he remains in the line-up as long as he has strength to run down to first base.

Dempsey-Brennan Bout Is Homeless; Cost Is Too High

Match Was Expected to Be Put on at Jersey City, Following Carpentier Show.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Prospects for a big open-air bout between Jack Dempsey and Knockout Bill Brennan have vanished with the edict of Gov. McCray banishing the affair from Indiana soil. Toledo passed it up also, and there now appears little likelihood of staging the affair—this year at any rate.

Brennan's showing against Dempsey about two winters ago created a tremendous sensation. It took Dempsey 12 rounds to finish the tough Chicagoan and in the doing he took some severe cuts and bruises himself.

At that time a return Dempsey-Brennan match looked good. It was talked of right up to the Carpentier fight and it was expected that it would be put on in Boyle's Thirty Acres about Labor day of last year.

But when Dempsey opposed Carpentier, it was seen that Jack was himself again and that the circumstance that had given Brennan a look-in was not Brennan's great fighting ability, but Dempsey's staleness. Dempsey was in a physical slump at the time of his second Brennan go.

No enthusiasm for a third Dempsey-Brennan contest could be aroused. Even the promoters shied, because of the terms demanded by the men. At last, however, both came to realize that they must fight anywhere for a percentage or battle nowhere.

They decided to string with Floyd Fitzsimmons at Michigan City and get what they could.

They got it, right below the ear.

The bout will not be greatly missed, if it is never put on again. However, it would be a fine, tough workout for Dempsey.

Dempsey Needs Work.

Dempsey is perfectly right in seeking fights and plenty of them, before he meets Harry Wills. He should take on every boxer he can and the tougher they are the more good it will do him. Titles are lost through rust and self-neglect by champions rather than by any great improvement in men or methods.

Champions become exclusive, after winning the title; but the challenger suffers from no such handicap. He steps out and fights early and often to get or keep his reputation. A champion, therefore, is apt to face an opponent with less useful practice than his challenger has had.

Leonard Keeps Busy.

Benny Leonard is one fight champion who has the right idea—to fight himself into condition. Had he not done so for his fight with Tendler he would not have come through on top.

Leonard and Charley White are one pair sure to be matched. White's comeback in the past year has entitled him to recognition. His easy defeat of Bobby Barrett in three rounds proved that the Left Hook King is also possessed of a rather powerful right hand.

Just now this fight would probably draw more than a Dempsey-Brennan contest. It is unfortunate that Leonard's mouth is in such shape that he could not at once go through with this event. Fans would like to see the White-Leonard controversy settled for good—then buried.

More About Georges.

Georges Carpentier is picturing, over in France. He has a battle with some black setup named Siki, in a short time, but it can hardly do him any physical good. Georges is beating back, by the fighting method, and doubtless will be judicious. A defeat by a second rater would ruin all hope of another meeting between himself and Dempsey.

The middleweight situation in New York still continues to be the biggest joke of the year. Dave Rosenberg is on the commission throne, but he will be bumped off right quickly, if ever he is matched with Greb or Wilson. The Massachusetts Commission long since has restored Wilson to good standing, which leaves New York alone in its view that Rosenberg deserves the crown.

A match of real interest at this time would be one between Johnny Dundee, the commission champion of the featherweight world, and Johnny Kilbane, who fought and bled before he won the feather title in a hundred different battles.

The fact that both Dundee and Kilbane knocked out Danny Frush brings them close together and promises a hot match. Dundee's weight, 124½ pounds, was certainly a surprise to the ring world.

This match would be worth going a long way to see. Dundee, except for that clip on the chin which Willie Jackson accidentally hung there, has never been knocked out. Kilbane beat every legitimate featherweight in the country, in past years.

Brooks was credited with hits in 35 consecutive games.

Otto Papiman of Danville today hit safely in his thirty-sixth consecutive contest.

Sisler Has Lead of 14 Points Over Cobb

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.

CARL MAYS' side arm pitching had George Sisler almost helpless today, and he cracked out only one hit in four times at bat. As a result the leading batter of the league is only 14 points in front of his rival, Ty Cobb. Sisler's mark is .414.

Cobb fared better than his rival, poling two hits in five times at bat against Washington. He is hitting .400.

Their records follow:

	G.	AB.	Hits	Pct.
Sisler	118	488	202	.414
Cobb	111	438	175	.400

"Seeded Draw" Given as Reason for Small Number of Entrants to Date.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Layn tennis stars are lagging about entering the all-comers national championship singles tournament. For the first time in many years the entry stands at less than 90 on the eve of the closing of the list Monday. It is worrying officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, some of whom attribute the case, as was evident in the women's national championship, to competitors disapproving of the "seeded-draw."

"An apparent misunderstanding has arisen in the minds of some of the players regarding the qualifications for entry," said Julian S. Myrick, president of the national association today. "Only about 90 entries have been received up to this afternoon."

"It would appear that some have the idea that the all-comers may be entered only by champions or others of that class," continued Myrick. "The qualifications for entry in the national championships adopted by the national association several years ago simply limits entry to players who have a reasonably good lawn tennis record.

"Tournament players can feel perfectly sure that their records will receive the most careful consideration by the Tournament Committee. Any who wish to compete should get their entries in by Monday."

KANSAS CITY COMPLETES PLANS FOR 300-MILE MOTOR SPEEDWAY EVENT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 26.—Plans virtually have been completed for the 300-mile international speed classic, to be held over Kansas City's new $500,000 speedway, Sept. 16. Racing followers declare that several records should be broken.

Entries have been received from the foremost drivers of the game, including Jimmy Murphy, 1922 A. A. A. champion; Harry Hartz, runnerup to Murphy at the Indianapolis race this year; Tomy Milton, 1921 A. A. A. champion; Cliff Durant, Roscoe Sarles, Al Melcher, Joe Thomas, Frank Elliot and Jerry Wonderdich.

From the Pacific Coast comes word that Bennett Hill, one of the entrants, is coming with a new car, specially designed, which has made 120 miles an hour.

The mile and a quarter oval track, banked at an angle of 42 degrees, will permit a speed of 120 miles an hour, according to "Jack" Prince, board track designer and originator, who had charge of its construction. The track will be ready for elimination trials about Sept. 5. The two steel grand stands will seat 35,000 persons.

The American Legion will dedicate the new speedway in ceremonies preceding the race. Hanford McNider, National Commander, is scheduled to be present.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker will be the referee of the event.

SARAZEN WILL COMPETE IN METROPOLITAN OPEN GOLF TITLE TOURNEY

One of the first entries to be received by Secretary Charles W. O'Connor for the Metropolitan Golf Association open championship tournament to be held over the Lido links at Long Beach, L. I., Sept. 12 to 15, was from Gene Sarazen, the national open and professional title holder.

Gene is apparently willing to take chances with his reputation and this readiness to meet all comers at any old time or place will undoubtedly tend to make him a popular champion.

It looks as though the Metropolitan gathering will loom as a close second to the national at Skokie. Duncan and Mitchell will play, and so will Jim Barnes and Bob MacDonald, last year's winner.

One thing that can be set down at practically a certainty is that no such low totals as those returned at Skokie will be seen. Professionals who have played the course this summer are willing to make a prophecy that the winner will have a large sized contract covering the 72 holes in 300. There are too many pitfalls on the ragged layout for anyone to take liberties with par.

WILLARD SIGNS FOR WEEK OF EXHIBITION CONTESTS

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 26.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight boxing champion, has signed a contract calling for a week of exhibition bouts at a San Francisco theater beginning Sunday, Sept. 3, according to the ex-champion's representative.

This will be Willard's first public appearance since he lost the title to Dempsey at Toledo, O., July 4, 1919.

Hooman Defeats Rotan.

SOUTHHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 26.—In the only match of the National Links Invitation Tournament played today, George Rotan, Houston, Tex., the surviving American player, was eliminated in the semifinal round by V. L. Hooman, of Great Britain, 7 to 6.

Please Postpone Celebration Until After the Season —LEE FOHL

Manager of Browns Wires That Premature Pennant Party Will Do More Harm Than Good

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Lee Fohl, manager of the Browns, and the majority of the ballplayers are opposed to any premature celebration and banqueting of the team in St. Louis in anticipation of the capture of the American League championship.

Fohl today addressed a telegram to Bob Quinn, business manager of the Browns, inquiring whether it was true that a reception for the team was being planned and requesting Quinn to make an effort to have the festivities postponed until after the playing season was completed.

"I have been informed through telegrams and through stories which appear in Eastern papers," said Fohl today, "that our good friends back home, in an admirable display of enthusiasm and desire to reward the Browns for their splendid fight, have laid plans for some sort of reception when the club arrives at home.

"I regret very much that I must cast water on such a flame, now that it has been many years since St. Louis baseball fans have been moved to such a pitch of excitement.

"But, neither I nor my players believe that it would be a good thing for the team if they were feted and dined and entertained before the pennant fight is completed.

"We are very happy to know that so many business men and men in public office and civic organizations and a great host of baseball enthusiasts have taken hold of the idea to show their appreciation to the players. We know, too, that they desire to please us by any demonstration they may indulge in. Therefore, I wish that you would express to them our desire that they alter their plans.

"One reason that we object is because we know that it would hurt rather than aid the morale of the club. Another reason is that there remains a possibility that we will finish behind the Yankees.

"If we should fail to win the pennant after being acclaimed the champions we would become the butt of endless jokes and slurs in the seasons to come."

Fohl has made inquiry among the players and ascertained that they feel exactly the same way about the proposed reception.

PITTSBURG GOLFER GETS 67 SCORE IN PRACTICE ROUND FOR PARK EVENT

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 26.—The public course at Ottawa Park, where the first National Public Links golf tournament will be held next week, was negotiated in under par figures today for the first time since the course was laid out several years ago. Par for the course is 70.

The best practice score today, 67, was made by Samuel Graham of Pittsburg, who had a 35 out and 32 in. The next best score was that of Cecil Barber, Public Course champion of Pittsburg, who went out in 35 and came home in 34 for a 69.

Joseph Coble of the Cob Creek Country Course of Philadelphia, made the 18 holes in 71 strokes, while his teammate, Tom Conte, also of the Cob Creek Course, was eight behind him, having 40 out and 39 in.

Other leading scores: C. E. Moore, Pittsburg, 75; C. J. Reisfer, Pittsburg, 73; W. Mather, Baltimore, 75; Charles Agnew, Washington, D. C., 74; C. E. Sommers, New York City, 76.

More than 75 of the out-of-town entrants, as well as a number of Toledo contestants who have been playing this old course for years, took their first workout over the tournament course today.

DRISCOLL, STAR QUARTER MILER, WILL PLAY PRO BASEBALL NEXT SEASON

It is reported that Jake Driscoll, Intercollegiate quarter-mile champion and holder of the world's indoor record for the 600 yard distance will shortly turn to professional baseball for a living. This news comes as a genuine surprise to every follower of track in this country for not even Driscoll's closest friends were aware of the fact that he had such a warm spot in his heart for the national pastime.

Jake graduated from Boston College last June and ended his college competition in a fitting manner by annexing the 440-yard title from one of the fastest fields that ever toed the mark for the classic event in the Harvard Stadium.

It is Driscoll's intention to remain an amateur for the remainder of this year, and then take up baseball next spring as a member of the Reading Club of the Eastern League.

Kammann Defeats Elmer Schwarz in Triple A Tourney

First Round Matches Played in Championship Tourney on Park Courts.

DEFAULTS MAR EVENT

Ted Drewes and Wray Brown Drop Out and Make the Title Fight an Open Affair.

By Davison Obear.

In the feature match of the Triple A tennis tournament yesterday afternoon Karl Kammann defeated Elmer Schwarz. The contest went the limit of three sets. Kammann won by a 3—6, 8—6, 6—3 score. It was his first victory over Schwarz in tournament play.

All first-round matches in the different classes of the Triple A championship were played yesterday. Nearly half of the 32 matches scheduled in the men's singles event were won by default, owing to the absence of so many players from the city. There were a number of close battles in each of the four classes.

In the championship the contest between Kammann and Schwarz was the feature. Ted Heuerman and Fred Josties won their first-round encounter without serious difficulty. George Finger won from George Broeker in a three-set match in Class A. C. M. Fraizer surprised with a straight-set victory over Ed Rice.

Four first-round matches in Class B required the full three sets to complete. Charles Reber had revenge on Arthur Haerting in one contest, while L. E. Cooper eliminated J. K. Goodwin in another. Only one match was played in the Class C singles. W. R. Davis defeated H. M. Pettit, 7—5, 6—0.

All second-round contests in both singles and doubles must be finished by tonight, according to an announcement made by the Tennis Committee. A number of close matches are expected in the play today. The default of both Ted Drewes and Wray Brown makes the race for the championship singles title a more difficult one to figure.

Hoover, Real Self-Made Champion; He Even Designed His Own Shell

By Robert Edgren.

Determination is the biggest factor in success in sport competition. No man lacking determination ever became a world's champion.

One of the best instances of determination leading to success is the case of Walter Hoover of Duluth, American sculling champion and third American in a hundred years to win the Diamond Sculls at Henley, the most ancient rowing trophy in the world.

No American competed for the Diamond Sculls until 1872, when E. Smith of New York reached the final heat, but lost the race. In 1897 Edward H. Ten Eyck, only a 17-year-old boy, went to England with his father, Jim Ten Eyck of Worcester, Mass., and for many years rowing coach at Syracuse University. Ned astonished the English by rowing away from their champions with ease. Next year he was barred from defending the trophy on the ground that he wasn't a "gentleman amateur," as his father and grandfather were professional oarsmen.

In 1899 and 1900 B. H. Howell of New York, studying at Cambridge, won the event and the trophy. In the twenty-two years since then no American has brought home the Diamond Sculls.

George Still Has His Crown.

Only invincible determination enabled Walter Hoover to add rowing to the list of American victories this year, and cause a certain well known member of the royal family to remark that about the only trophy foreigners hadn't taken away was the crown.

Hoover picked up his rowing on Lake Superior and in Duluth's landlocked harbor. He got his first instruction from Ned Ten Eyck, who took an interest in the boy because of his earnest desire to learn, although at that time there was nothing about Hoover to suggest a coming champion. Ned Ten Eyck—the same Ned who won the Diamond Sculls in 1897—was Hoover's idol.

An idea grew in Walter's mind that it would be a wonderful thing to win the Diamond Sculls and bring the trophy to America again. The idea crystallized into a determination that became stronger year by year. Hoover didn't tell anyone about it for a long time.

He Sure Got "Atmosphere."

When he had learned a little more about rowing he entered a few small local regattas for experience. But he gave most of his time to a carefully studied system by which he gradually developed a rowing style of his own.

Finally, Hoover told young Jim Ten Eyck, Ned's brother, of his ambition, and Jim, who was stroke of his freshman crew at Syracuse and a crack single sculler, gave him a few useful pointers.

The idea of winning the Diamond Sculls, which had been almost an obsession with Hoover since the day he first watched Ned Ten Eyck's crews race under the bridge at Duluth and out to the big lake, drove every other ambition from his mind.

Through the winters Walter stayed at the water's edge, and whenever possible he had his shell overboard for a row. He slept on a cot in the Duluth Boat Club's boathouse—in a room overhanging the lake, where the water splashed up through the cracks in the floor and snow was driven in by the icy winds from the lake.

The Old Story of Hard Work.

On days when it was impossible to get a boat out, he worked on the rowing machines to develop strength and endurance, and spent hours overhauling his single seater and polishing the sweeps. Quite incidentally, and because it was necessary to have some capital, he worked at his profession as a civil engineer, or toiled at manual labor in the shops of a marine hardware manufacturing concern near by to strengthen his muscles.

Before the ice left the lake in the spring he was already out, usually alone and paddling between the ice floes. In the summer time he kept hard at work day after day, oblivious of the presence of the many crews of the Duluth Boat Club and the discouraging remarks of friends who told him to "quit his foolishness."

On one side of the cracked mirror in his room he had a photograph of Ned Ten Eyck when Ned was 17—the year Ned won the Diamond Sculls. On the other side was pinned a clipping taken from a newspaper—a half tone cut of the queer old trophy itself—two silver oars in a mounting that was once a cravat ornament—a jeweled laurel wreath with small diamond pendants. Every morning Walter looked at Ned's picture and repeated to himself the formula that "What Man Has Done Man Can Do!" and then the yellow, frayed clipping showing the Diamond Sculls.

Rebuilds Himself and His Boat.

Eight years passed! But in that eight years Hoover developed what had been a rather scrawny physique into a trim torso, wide shoulders, powerful driving legs, and a pair of forearms a calker would be proud of. Meanwhile he had cut loose from all instruction and developed his own system of training.

He was working out his own idea of a boat, too. Finally he discarded his own shell and spent all his savings on a new one built of his own design, with radical changes. Miles—thousands of miles—of leisurely practice had given him a long, snappy stroke that he could keep up by the hour. He lowered the sliding seat in his shell. His friends still thought he was something of a "bug"—but they didn't laugh at him any more. There was no denying that in spite of his unorthodox style he was showing speed. He tried a couple of races in which Jack Kelly beat him, and went back to training.

Startled Talent in 1921.

In 1921 Walter Hoover decided that he was about ready. He entered national rowing events and swept the Philadelphia regatta, earning the right to compete in the national championship races held at Buffalo, where he startled the rowing world by coming in, practically unknown, and defeating the best scullers of all North America.

His victories over Paul Costello of Philadelphia and Hilton Belyea of Canada at Philadelphia entitled him to the gold challenge cup and the honor of representing the United States abroad.

At last his ambition was becoming something more than a dream. When he went to England he had the old picture of Ned Ten Eyck and the frayed, yellow old clipping of the Diamond Sculls in his trunk.

The Henley is one of the most exclusive of all English sport contests. New conditions have been made, at times in the past, apparently for the purpose of keeping Americans out. Contestants have been barred because of some imagined blot on their amateurism, or because their family connections didn't entitle them, in England, to be considered, "gentlemen amateurs." Hoover's past was rigidly scrutinized to see if there was anything queer about his occupation, sportsmanship or ancestry, and he passed the test. The only thing they could find to criticise about him was that his stroke wasn't quite orthodox and he sat too low in his shell.

"He rows too close to the water," was the general comment.

But getting close to the job is an American characteristic, from the poker player who holds four aces close to his chest to the football line bucker whose nose almost plows the ground as he goes into action.

The criticism of his style didn't worry Hoover. He was there determined to take home the Diamond Sculls and he felt that luck was with him. Winning at Philadelphia he had rushed to New York and caught the last boat that would get him to England in time to qualify with only 10 minutes to spare.

Will Defend Title Next Year.

What happened, of course, is now history. Briefly, the Henley Regatta was run in cold, raw weather, with heavy showers of rain and a head wind that was almost a gale.

In preliminaries and final Hoover rowed the same kind of a race. When he defeated Bayers in the semifinal, and Beresford in the final, Hoover rowed grimly by himself, just as he did through those years on Lake Superior. He paid no attention to his rival—to pace or anything else. Intent, determined, he started with a stroke of 30 and kept it up until he had a clear lead, then dropped to 26 and pulled steadily away from his rival until he crossed the finish line half a minute ahead, and nearly out of sight in the heavy rain.

He spurted a little at each finish, because he felt strong, and he wasn't tired. And the English, very sportingly, declared that the American has no equal among the scullers of the world at present, and that although his rowing style was a bit different it was undoubtedly the finest seen on the Thames in many years.

Hoover says he hopes to go to England next year to defend the trophy—and he's likely to win it again unless some other fellow with even more stubborn determination shows up. Which isn't likely. He didn't row in the American championships after coming home. He had done enough for one year.

INVESTIGATION FOLLOWS MISKE-FULTON BATTLE

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 26.—An investigation by the State Boxing Commission was reported under way today into an aftermath of the Miske-Fulton bout here last night, in which Mike Collins, former manager of Fulton, was the center of a setto featuring Fulton and his seconds.

While Fulton sat somewhat dazed in his corner after Miske had knocked him out after two minutes of fighting, in the first round, Collins leaped into the ring and crossing to Fulton, made a remark that prompted Fulton's brother and second, Whitey Fulton, to rush at Collins.

Jockey Who Once Rode American Derby Winner Arrested as a Vagrant

OMAHA, Aug. 26.—Hyppolite Chevalier has driven his last winner under the wire.

The little negro, former jockey, now 44 years old, who in 1894 was up on Rey El Santa Anita when that horse won the American Derby, the year's turf classic, and prize money and wagers of nearly $100,000, was before a Police Judge here for vagrancy.

He weighs 120 pounds now—30 pounds more than when he captured the derby and rode the string of horses owned by "Lucky" Baldwin. Too old to ride, and too heavy, there remains for him the prospect of living on past glories, and, he told the court, the plaudits of the multitude 28 years ago do not provide much of a living today.

The former jockey, who once straddled the greatest thoroughbreds of a nation, and who, bedecked in gaily colored silks, paraded before stands filled with cheering thousands, appeared in tattered clothes and well scuffed shoes when arraigned.

Chevalier told the court that he was ruled off American tracks in 1896 as the result of disclosures in the sensational "Little Pete" conspiracy. Six jockeys were caught "holding" their horses and "shooing long shots" ahead under the wire.

The negro's story, drawn from him reluctnatly, brought him a suspended sentence.

MUNICIPAL MANAGERS WILL MEET TOMORROW

A meeting of the league representatives and managers of pennant winning teams of the Municipal Baseball Association will be held tomorrow evening at Grand Avenue Municipal Community Center, 1401 South Grand boulevard. The drawing for the elimination games will be conducted at this meeting and the umpires who are to handle the games will be selected. The first round of the elimination contests is set for Sunday, Sept. 3. The meeting will be called at 7:30 p. m.

Cardinals Will Train for 1923 Season in Florida

Pres. Breadon Announces That Bradentown Has Been Selected.

President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals, announced last night that Bradentown, Fla., had been selected as the 1923 training camp of the St. Louis Nationals. It will mean the first appearance of the Cardinals in Florida since 1914.

Bradentown is situated on the Manatee River, about two miles from Tampa Bay on the West Coast. The river at this point is about a mile wide. Bradentown is in the center of a group of towns including Palmetto, Manatee and Sarasota. This means that games played by the Cardinals in Bradentown will attract fans from a large population, despite the fact that the population of Bradentown is only about 6300 persons. Tampa is 40 miles north of Bradentown, across Tampa Bay.

The climate of the Florida town was the big item considered in selecting Bradentown. During February and March the weather is unusually warm, a desirable asset in conditioning a baseball club.

Manager Branch Rickey is highly elated over the plans to condition the Cardinals in Florida. Rickey, as manager of the Browns and Cardinals, has trained his clubs in Texas, with the exception of the 1914 Browns. That year he prepared the Browns at St. Petersburg, Fla., and has always maintained that climatic conditions there were more ideal for training a club than any other camp he has ever visited.

Bradentown is the shipping point of the fruit and vegetable growers of that neighborhood. The town boasts many miles of paved streets and also a nine-hole golf course. The fishing and bathing are also good. President Breadon of the Cardinals is interested in an extensive fruit farm about 10 miles from the city.

"There are practically no days without sunshine in Bradentown," is the proud boast of the Bradentown Board of Trade. For 35 years a record has been kept of the temperature, rainfall, etc., with the following results: Highest temperature 98, lowest 28, days on which rain fell 102, days clear 200, days partly cloudy 96, days cloudy 69.

Edison Believes Living Man Is Formed of Countless Billions of Life Units

Compares Death to Shipwreck, After Which Seamen, as "Life Units" of Vessel, Leave Stricken Craft.

By SHAW DESMOND,

Noted Irish Publicist and Author.

TO come from the things of death to the things of life beyond death has been the concern of the world's greatest inventor within recent times. For many millions, his researches in this field, upon strictly scientific lines, will prove the most fascinating.

The world heard some time ago that Edison was at work upon what the world called "a spirit finder," that is to say, a machine or apparatus, so delicately adjusted, so susceptible to the minutest vibration, that if such things as spirits might be supposed to exist and really desired to communicate with the living, they (the spirits) would find to their hands, or voices, "an apparatus which would give them a better chance of expressing themselves than the modern crude methods of tilting tables and ouija boards." The words in quotation marks were Edison's own. He sternly repudiates the attempt so speciously made to father upon him a belief in spirits as also to make it seem that he was a convert to spiritualism.

"The thing which first struck me," said Edison, "was the absurdity of expecting 'spirits' to waste their time operating such cumbrous, unscientific media as tables, chairs and the ouija board, with its letters. My convinced belief is merely that if ever the question of life after death or psychic phenomena generally is to be solved, it will have to be put on a scientific basis as chemistry is put, and withdrawn from the hands of the charlatan and the 'medium.'

Apparatus for Investigator.

"My business has been and is to give the scientific investigator, or, for that matter, the unscientific, an apparatus which, like the compass of the seaman, will put their investigations upon a scientific basis. This apparatus may perhaps most readily be described as a sort of valve. In exactly the same way as a megaphone increases many times the volume and carrying power of the human voice, so with my 'valve,' whatever original force is used upon it is increased enormously for purposes of registration of the phenomena behind it. It is exactly on the lines of the tiny valve which in a modern power house can be operated by the finger of a man and so release 100,000 horsepower.

"Now I don't make any claims whatever to prove that the human personality survives what we call 'death.' All I claim is that any effort caught by my apparatus will be magnified many times, and it does not matter how slight is the effort, it will be sufficient to record whatever there is to be recorded.

"This will settle once and for all the claims of modern psychic investigators like Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and others to have definitely effected communication with a world beyond the grave.

"Frankly, I do not accept the present theories about life and death. I believe, rightly or wrongly, that life is indestructible, it is true, and I also believe that there has always been a fixed quantity of life on this planet, and that this quantity can neither be increased nor decreased. But that does not mean that I believe the survival of personality has been proved—as yet. Perhaps it may be one day. Perhaps some apparatus upon the lines of my 'valve' may prove it, but that day is not yet, nor have I as yet secured any results to definitely prove such survival.

"Inaccurate Idea Went Out."

"When I wrote my original article upon my apparatus, and the object for which it was made, there went out to the world the entirely inaccurate idea that I had invented a 'spirit finder.' The fact is that it is almost impossible to get people to understand, however plainly you put anything."

"Then what is your conception of life, Mr. Edison?" I asked.

"What I believe is that our bodies are made up of myriads of units of life. Our body is not itself the unit of life or a unit of life. It is the tiny entities which may be the cells that are the units of life. Let me give you as an example the famous flyer—the 'S. S. Mauretania.'

"The 'Mauretania' is not herself a living thing—it is the men in her that are alive. If she is wrecked on the coast, for instance, the men get out, and when the men get out it simply means that the 'life units' leave the ship, but they are not dead yet. And so in the same way a man is not 'dead' because his body is buried and the vital principle, that is, the 'life units,' have left the body.

"Everything that pertains to life is still living and cannot be destroyed. Everything that pertains to life is still subject to the laws of animal life. We have myriads of cells and it is the inhabitants in these cells, inhabitants which themselves are beyond the limits of the microscope, which vitalize and 'run' our body.

"The point is that the men who were in the 'Mauretania' still live, but they don't live in the 'Mauretania.'

"To put it in another way, I believe that these life-units of which I have spoken band themselves together in countless millions and billions in order to make a man. We have too facilely assumed that each one of us is himself a unit, just as we have assumed that the horse or dog is each a unit of life. This, I am convinced, is wrong thinking. The fact is that these 'life units' are too tiny to be seen even by the high-powered microscope, and so we have assumed that the unit is the man, which we can see, and have ignored the existence of the real life units, which are those we cannot see."

I ventured here to ask how it was that such infinitesimal entities could carry on the tremendous and varied work of, for example, the human body.

"There is nothing to prevent it," the great inventor said with assuredness, "for I have had the calculations made, and the theory of the electron is in my view satisfactory and makes it quite possible to have a highly organized and developed entity like the human body made up of myriads of electrons, themselves invisible.

Life Units With Memory.

"Further, I believe that these life units themselves possess memory. If a man burns his hand the skin will grow in exactly the same pattern again, and with the same lines as the hand originally had before the accident. Now it would be quite impossible for these hundreds of fine lines to be meticulously reproduced if there were no memory for detail behind the rebuilding of them. The skin does not grow that way and in exactly the same pattern again 'by chance.' There is no chance."

"But are all these life units or entities possessed of the same memory, or are some, so to speak, the builders' laborers and are others the units which direct those laborers?"

"It may be that the great mass of them are workers and a tiny minority directors of the work. That is not a matter about which we can speak with any certainty.

"But what one can say with some assurance is that these entities cannot be destroyed, and that there is a fixed number of them. They may assemble and reassemble in a thousand different forms from a starfish to a man, but they are the same entities.

"No man today can set the line as to where 'life' begins and ends. Even in the formation of crystals, we see a definite ordered plan at work. Certain solutions will always form a particular kind of crystal without variation. It is not impossible that these life entities are at work in the mineral and plant as in what we call the 'animal' world."

T he question I then put to Edison

Germans Engage in Great Orgy of Buying As They Await Inevitable Financial Crash

MARK, AS VALUE DROPS, TRADED FOR STAPLE ARTICLES

Only Radical Changes in the French Policy Can Prevent Upheaval, Says Post-Dispatch Correspondent After Study of the Situation in Berlin.

Living Expenses Ridiculously Low to Tourist but High, However, to Persons Who Are Compelled to Earn Their Money at Work in That Country.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,

Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Aug. 5 (By mail).

IT is no wonder that the old-time German virtues of thrift and frugality are going by the board. With the mark constantly dropping, the incentive to save has been lost. Why should one possessed of ready money put it in a bank when in a few weeks its value may be whittled down by half, or even more? The Germans are doing what any people would do in the same circumstances: the more provident are exchanging their money for things of intrinsic value, the less provident are spending it for their pleasure.

The rush to buy while the mark is still a bit more valuable than the cheap paper it is printed on has taken many fantastic forms, such as the accumulation in some households of great stocks of superfluous furniture, linens and bric-a-brac. Food supplies are laid in for long periods of time. Women of a naturally thrifty bent are purchasing finery that they would not have dreamed of buying before the war.

BERLIN is a city of dreadful uncertainty. As the mark goes skidding down in value—in the week I have been here it has gone from 500 to more than 800 to the dollar—the atmosphere of pessimism and depression grows thicker. When the smashup will come and what form it will take no one can say. That there will be an upheaval of some sort, failing a radical change in French policy, seems inevitable. Under present conditions, it looks as if nothing short of a miracle can prevent the utter collapse of the tottering economic structure.

The necessary buying of foreign exchange by the German Government in order to meet the demands upon it naturally tends to depress the mark further and further below normal. That is the simple economics of the situation. Conditions would be bad enough if they were determined merely by economics. They are made worse—indescribably worse—by the psychological factor. With every fresh French threat, every new demand under the Versailles treaty, the mark falls.

Formerly, the mark was sustained to a degree by speculation in German and foreign money markets. Until it began to reach the vanishing point a few weeks ago, a drop in value was the signal for buying on the assumption that it could not possibly go lower. But each period of temporary recuperation has been followed by another decline, till at present all speculative support appears to have been withdrawn. There is nothing in sight to check a decline to still lower levels—the pit looks, indeed, bottomless.

It is no wonder that the old-time German virtues of thrift and frugality are going by the board. With the mark constantly dropping, the incentive to save has been lost. Why should one possessed of ready money put it in a bank when in a few weeks its value may be whittled down by half, or even more? The Germans are doing what any people would do in the same circumstances: the more provident are exchanging their money for things of intrinsic value, the less provident are spending it for their pleasure.

Buying Taking Fantastic Forms

The rush to buy while the mark is still a bit more valuable than the cheap paper it is printed on has taken many fantastic forms, such as the accumulation in some households of great stocks of superfluous furniture, linens and bric-a-brac. Food supplies are laid in for long periods of time. Women of a naturally thrifty bent are purchasing finery that they would not have dreamed of buying before the war.

Combined with the purchasing of goods of value—a process which is really nothing more than the exchange of bales of paper for things of greater worth in themselves—is the spending of money on self-indulgence. Drinking, I am informed by competent observers familiar with conditions in Germany before and after the war, has increased greatly among both men and women. New beer saloons to satisfy the growing demand have sprung up all over Berlin, and even now others are being opened. More "hard" liquor is being consumed than before the war; in consequence, a drunken man on the streets is no longer the uncommon sight that it was in normal times.

The marvel, however, is not that the moral fiber of the people has been weakened, but that the breakdown has not been greater. Ingrained habits of orderliness and obedience to authority have tended to prevent the excesses that might have been expected. Tourists who come here looking for a glittering night life will be disappointed; they will see the cafes, the beer and wine saloons and the coffee houses well filled, but little hilarious revelry. The Germans take their pleasures stolidly—almost, it seems, as if they were in duty driven to them. They do not appear to be enjoying themselves.

Throng Kept Off the Grass

There are numerous demonstrations of one sort or another, but none, in the week I have been here, has required the notice of the police. Last Sunday a crowd of several thousand ardent young Socialists—odd figures with their long, unkempt hair and with shapeless short trousers flapping about bare knees—assembled near the city palace of the former Kaiser in a demonstration against war. They sang, hawked Socialist pamphlets through the crowd (I noticed the works of Upton Sinclair for sale), and indulged in good-natured badinage among themselves, but there was no semblance of disorder.

No matter how dense the milling throng might get on the streets and sidewalks, they kept off the grass! To walk on the grass was "verboten." Even on last July 4, I am told, when there was a great demonstration in favor of a pending law affirming the permanence of the republic and providing rigorous penalties for conspiracy against the existing Government, the crowd kept off the grass.

The free spending by the Germans in the stores and cafes has created in Berlin an artificial air of prosperity. The majority of the people that one sees on the streets are well dressed and appear to be well fed. It is a false prosperity. The great bulk of the German people are living on a day-to-day basis, with a small reserve margin that would be quickly wiped out if disaster came.

I do not wish to leave the impression that all the Germans are spending recklessly. Speaking generally, those with ready money are so spending, but there are millions earning a bare subsistence who can spend only for necessities. As the mark has fallen, so prices have advanced enormously. The prices of shoes, for instance, have doubled in six weeks. In marks, the average workman is earning from 20 to 25 times the amount he made before the war, but the buying power of the mark is as nothing compared to what it once was. In American money, as I write, the mark is worth less than one-seventh of an American cent. Prices that seem ridiculously low to the American tourist—so low that one feels almost ashamed when he pays for an article or a personal service—are high, in many cases prohibitively high, when the buyer is thinking in terms of marks and not dollars.

The difference between the state of mind of the German and that of the American, with respect to current prices, is shown by the following item from the Berlin American, a newspaper published in English, by Germans:

Illustration of Price Increase

"The tremendous increase of prices in Germany is best illustrated by the renewed increase in the cost of a humble cup of coffee in cafes and restaurants. From next week on it is to cost 11 marks a cup. And not so very long ago the price of a thickly creamed, delicious cup of coffee was 25 pfennigs (one-fourth of a mark).

"Please do not recast this into dollars, pounds and francs and think how unutterably cheap it is, but pity the people earning and living on marks and whose monthly income does not run into five figures.

"Farewell to the only stimulant many of us have!"

The American tourist, of course, sees the prices, whether of the humble cup of coffee, a bottle of champagne or a hotel room, in terms of dollars, and in these terms it is so low as to make him feel, whenever he opens his pocketbook, that a mistake is being made in his favor. Any American with a sense of decency must feel apologetic when he pays his bill at a restaurant. You can eat half a dozen courses of the best food obtainable in Berlin—and it's excellent food—at the highest-priced restaurant, drink a bottle of first-class wine and listen for as long as you please to a good orchestra, and the price, including the 10 per cent that all Berlin eating places are adding to the bill for service, will be $1.25 to $1.50. The equivalent in New York, Washington or St. Louis (without the wine) would cost not less than $5. I have given here an extreme example. A perfectly good, ordinary dinner, with wine, can be had for 25 to 30 cents.

In a barber shop in the best hotel you pay 100 marks—or at today's rate, less than 15 cents—for a haircut and everything else that the barber can think of. A woman can get a marcel wave put in her hair, I am told, for the equivalent of about 5 cents. A brand of American-made cigarettes that sells at home for 18 to 20 cents costs here about 7 cents. For half a dollar, including the price shown on the meter and a tip, you can see Berlin for an hour or more from a comfortable horse-drawn carriage.

Cost of First-Class Hotel Rooms

A room in a first-class hotel can be had for an average of 1000 marks a day—a super-excellent double room, with bath and every trick appliance of which German ingenuity is capable, for, say, 1400 marks. To this must be added 10 per cent for service and a Government tax of 40 per cent—a tax which only a couple of days ago was raised to that amount from 15 per cent. Even with these additional charges, the price of the 1400-mark room comes to only about $3 a day. Its equivalent in New York would cost at least $10.

With respect to the prices charged for personal services and the things that one consumes in Germany, the depreciation of the mark has made this country, for the time being, the tourists' paradise. Latest figures show about 4000 Americans in Berlin, with Sweden, Denmark, Czecho-Slovakia and Holland each represented by from 2500 to 4000. The only fly in the ointment is the Government order prohibiting the "auslander," or foreigner, from taking commodities out of Germany. If goods bought in Germany are to be taken out of the country an export license costing 50 per cent of the value of the goods must be procured, but even though this regulation be complied with, the traveler still runs the risk that his purchases will be confiscated at the border.

Numerous recent instances of the seizure of goods by German customs officials have been reported to the American consulate here, which thus far has been unable to obtain any redress for the aggrieved bargain hunters. Tourists are warned at the consulate to curb their acquisitive desires and comply strictly with the German law against taking out merchandise.

Naturally, in view of the low price level, there are numerous evasions of the law. Hollanders are perhaps keener to get across the border with a lot of German goods than are Americans. With the guilder almost at par, the thrifty Dutchman can cross the frontier into Germany and pass a holiday for a small fraction of what a similar jaunt would cost him at home. Numbers of Dutchmen are doing this. At Potsdam, where the former Kaiser had one of his numerous palaces, I met a young Dutchman who could talk of nothing but the wonderful bargains he had picked up in Germany. He was not interested in the economic state of Germany, or even in the amazing ornateness of the palace, but only in the fact that he was getting a room with breakfast at 100 marks a day—15 cents—and had acquired a resplendent cravat for 70 marks. He had brought from Holland a supply of labels out of his old clothes and was going to put them into his purchases in order to overreach the customs authorities.

Opinions as to Monarchists

Opinions differ as to the strength of the monarchist movement. The consensus of most observers with whom I have talked—Germans and Americans—is that, while the movement has at present comparatively little positive strength, Germany is still, at heart, inclined to the monarchical form of government. The belief is that Germany would shortly become again a monarchy—though probably not under the ex-Kaiser—were it not for the restraining hand of the allies.

With all their fine capacity for objective thinking, which has made them great in the sciences, the Germans are yet, in many ways, a subjective people, with a large streak of sentiment in their make-up. That they have a sentimental fondness for the symbols that go with monarchy is unquestionable. Moreover, the republic is here at the most difficult period of their history. All the ills to which the nation has fallen heir are blamed upon it, just as the party in power in America, whether Democratic or Republican, is likely to be blamed for the deprivations flowing from natural processes over which it has no control.

By contrast with the present, the average German sees the regime of the Kaiser in the most roseate colors. Neither for the Kaiser himself nor for the Crown Prince does there appear to be any special affection, but the leaning is toward the monarchical idea. More likely than either of these to be chosen as the head of a restored monarchy would be the eldest son of the Crown Prince, now a stripling, or a ruler from one of the

Prof. Dewey Declares Fear to Be Deadliest Enemy to Progress of Humanity

Columbia University Educator Says School Children Should Have Atmosphere of Freedom.

By CHARLES W. WOOD.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.

"THE greatest enemy to human progress is fear. People generally tell the truth unless they are afraid to—afraid of punishment, afraid of someone's opinion or afraid that some competitor will gain an advantage. A large percentage of human ills is due to greed, but back of greed lies the sense of insecurity and its accompanying fear. Fear is the soil in which wars are bred. Fear engenders hate. Individually and socially, wherever human life and human relations become inhuman, we are quite sure to discover that they have been poisoned by fear. Cowardice in public office, cowardice in business dealings, cowardice in international relations—we are more or less familiar with the havoc wrought by these, but the most insidious poison I know of in modern society is cowardice on the part of those who are charged with the responsibility of teaching our youth."

Before I tell you who said this, I wish you would all read that paragraph again. Find a flaw in it if you can. Does your child ever lie to you unless he is afraid? Do you ever tell lies yourself when you are absolutely certain that you can afford to tell the truth? Does your wife or your husband ever lie to you? If so isn't he, or isn't she afraid of what you will do or say or think? As for teaching the whole truth as far as we understand it to the children in our schools—well, why don't we do it? Is it not because we are afraid that too accurate and complete knowledge on certain subjects would be bad for them?

The statement came from no less a philosopher than John Dewey, now back at his work in Columbia University after some years' absence in China. Since his return, Dr. Dewey has not been devoting his time to lecturing about China. He has been talking about New York. He has been thinking about New York. He has been dealing with the minds of people as he finds them, instead of drawing up blue prints of the sort of minds he might like to find. That is because he is 100 per cent a teacher. He is not a propagandist. He doesn't seem to care whether a student of his is radical or conservative, orthodox or heretic, Christian, Jewish, Confucian or infidel; what he is concerned with is whether any particular student's mind is alive and doing well. Is it advancing? Is it coming out? Is it feeding well on the truths it is discovering? Or is there some bias, some prejudice, or more important, some fearsome dread which is keeping it from developing into a serviceable mentality?

Victims of Timidity.

"And the boys and girls in our New York schools," Prof. Dewey told me, "are not getting half a chance. They are the victims of an inherent timidity, if not an active intimidation, within our school system. There can be no real education unless there is fearlessness, but New York teachers are not free to teach. The situation in this respect is worse, it seems to me, than it ever was before; for added to the usual restrictions with which the school teacher has historically been hedged, the system is now additionally cursed by a set of silly laws conceived in fear and born of the political hysteria which seized the country during and immediately after the war. That hysteria has partially subsided, but the Lusk laws remain. The purpose of these laws was to prohibit thinking and to compel everybody to jump to specified conclusions instead. The public now would like to return to sanity; but unless it provides some antidote for those poisonous laws, the minds of our children generally must suffer incalculably."

"What do you suggest doing?" I asked Prof. Dewey. "Would you propose a campaign for the immediate repeal of those laws?"

"Something much more definite than that is needed," he said. "Laws may be made or repealed at annual meetings of the Legislature, but education is a constant process. We cannot, therefore, correct the faults in our educational system by the passage or repeal of laws. We must bring some constant force to bear upon the situation. The school authorities in the very nature of their organization cannot be trusted with this task. They are, to say the least, timid. It is their nature to travel the beaten paths. They are afraid of innovations. They are necessarily afraid to run counter to the public wishes, and there is no medium in existence through which the educational wishes of the public may be made known.

New York should have an active organization of parents, and of all other citizens who have an intelligent interest in child welfare, to see to it that this haunting fear is eliminated from our school life. An organization which is peculiarly active in the particular line at present is the School Teachers' Union. But that union needs support. It cannot fight this terrific battle alone. It is standing bravely for the freedom of the teacher to teach; but the influences on the other side are so many and so strong that hundreds of teachers are actually afraid to join the School Teachers' Union.

Early Training Important.

"This in itself ought to arouse every New Yorker who has the slightest interest in the mental development of our children. If our colleges and universities are unfree, that is not so important. By the time a boy is old enough to enter college, his character is already very largely made or marred; but what happens to the child in our primary and our grammar schools is of supreme importance. It is of no particular importance whether his teacher belongs or does not belong to any particular organization; but a child simply cannot be educated by a teacher whose mind is so poisoned by fear that he dare not, under penalty of getting himself disliked, join any organization in which he honestly believes.

"It is not true, of course, that the school authorities prohibit such a step. The Teachers' Union is not secret. Its membership and its officers are known, and they still hold their jobs. Many of them, in fact, so command the respect of educators and public that they can be and are thoroughly outspoken on every issue involved. But the tendency of the school system is to discourage such frankness. Whether the authorities are consciously trying to discourage it or not is not the most important consideration. I am speaking of the fact that the atmosphere of our school system is an atmosphere of timidity; and education cannot proceed in such an atmosphere.

"There is a lot of loose talk on every hand as to what a teacher should teach. Most of this discussion, on the part of so-called conservatives and so-called progressives, is utterly beside the point. It starts with the assumption that you can educate a child by telling him something. It happens to be necessary to present facts to a growing mind, but neither the presentation nor the reception of facts is education. What the child does with the facts presented—that is the educational process. In order that there be any drawing out of the child mind, any evolution, any development, that mind must be left free to work up the material with which it comes in contact. No one can claim to be a teacher if he interferes in any way with this process, if he tries to substitute his own conclusions or those of school authorities for those the child might reach."

"But can you trust a child to reach a safe conclusion?" I asked. "Isn't it necessary to tell him that he must not play with fire, that he cannot eat this and that, because you know it

The Tranquil Failure.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE read all about success and how to be successful. I have been fed on the dope of success unwisely administered in the pages of magazines and papers until my brain has become a seething mass of rotten ideas and notions. I have read and studied the lives of successful and famous poets, painters, actors, writers, novelists, statesmen, historians and philosophers. I have pored over the instructions therein contained, and even have been enchanted by the wise reflections which the cicerone of a writer twangs as he doles out the customary moral: Go, thus, and do likewise—yet I am forced to feel that I am content with my allotment of failure.

Does anyone ever think or write of the men who have been successful failures in the farce of life?—men who have passed their lives in the sober tranquility of obscurity, conscious of their lack of ability, merit and power, and who are unjustly censured for this by the haughty and contumelious satellites who flock around the rich and famous. We who have been unsuccessful in the battle of life are censured because we have not kept in the ranks. Did it never occur to anyone that probably we heard a different drummer? Believing that nature has designed each man to play a certain part in the drama of life I am content with the role of second walking gentleman.

The prize of failure is obscurity, and the great pleasure of obscurity is aloofness. No one troubles you for money, which everyone knows you do not possess, or burdens you with his cares, or seeks your acquaintance other than for friendship. The rich and famous must bear the cross of superiority. Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown of success.

Sweet are the uses of failure, which like a toad, ugly and despised, wears still a diamond in its head. As most everyone is striving for success, I am content to be a Soldier Out of Luck.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I AM a United States Marine, 22 years old, who is still suffering from wounds received in France. I have no living relatives, and am very lonesome. When I see the other boys that are here with me have their friends and sweethearts come to see them and make them cheerful, it makes me think that life is not worth living any more.

I used to be able to dance and go around and meet young people, but since I am wounded I am forced to stay in bed most of the time and go about in a wheel chair the other part of the time. I can not have any amusements and have to stay here and worry and feel blue. I suffer a great deal when I have nothing to read or anything to do.

One time while passing through St. Louis I had the good fortune to get a "Post-Dispatch" and I liked the paper immensely. So I thought that I might be able to get a friend through it.

I have only a small pension from the Government and that goes for the few clothes that I need and I am forced to ask other people for stamps and to let me read their books. I am a great lover of books as they make me take my mind off my condition. Candy and sweets have been unknown to me since I left France. I used to get quite a bit of them, but lately I have been out of luck.

The People's "Dry" Nurse.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AT a recent meeting of the committee which is drafting the new Constitution for the State of Missouri, one of the members, an enthusiastic prohibitionist, introduced a clause which prohibited the manufacture or sale of intoxicants. This was immediately opposed by other prohibitionists on the ground of inexpediency in that, as the Constitution would have to be submitted to the people and that the cause of prohibition would be likely to suffer as the people of the large cities would reject it, as it was well known that the people of Missouri were against it.

Summed up it means that these clean, sober, conscientious, Christian gentlemen, although knowing full well that the people of this State do not want prohibition, are yet willing to connive, conspire, lie and steal for the purpose of forcing their [illegible] views on the people nolens volens.

O. C. G.

BEWILDERED WASHINGTON.

The Government at Washington is bewildered. After indolently marking time for months it is now trying to meet an industrial crisis with a confusion of remedies. There is the Borah bill to create a commission to ascertain the facts as to coal mining. There is the Edge bill, prepared, it is explained, by "the Bill Drafting Service of Congress," to give the President blanket authority for taking possession of all the coal mines in the country. This bill was first introduced as an amendment to the Borah bill, but later as a separate measure. Senator Edge admits he is not certain as to its constitutionality, and Senator Borah has relieved his colleague's uncertainty by assuring him it is unconstitutional.

The news from Washington also tells of a White House conference, participated in by the President, Attorney-General Daugherty and Senator Cummins as chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. The decision of this conference was for more bills. The anthracite operators and miners are to be given a brief reprieve, after which, if they fail to reach an agreement, Senator Cummins will introduce a bill authorizing the Government to operate the mines. The railroads also are notified that they will be allowed a reasonable time to show whether they can furnish adequate service and those that fail will be taken over and operated by the Government. Meantime the legislation to prevent profiteering in coal will be vigorously pressed to passage, we are told, independent of the pending and forthcoming measures for Government ownership and operation.

So, here in late August, on the edge of cold weather, Congress has finally become aware of a coal strike that began April 1. It has realized at the eleventh hour that sections of the country which depend on anthracite coal are facing a coalless winter. Congress may be aware that in those sections of the country the winter is ordinarily long and severe and that without adequate fuel there will be serious industrial curtailment, much suffering and a considerable death list. Congress apparently does not realize that, regardless of what it does, or tries to do now, there will be a serious fuel shortage in New England and in many other Northern states.

The five months of donothingism by Congress will bear bitter fruit. But there is no certainty that Congress even now will do anything. On the evidence of the news Congress is running around in circles, proposing, expostulating, threatening, but with no semblance of a soundly conceived, thoroughly reasoned program of relief. It appears to think that such an epochal departure as the seizure and operation of the railroads and coal mines can be accomplished by a resolution expressed in the form of law. No such magic inheres in legislation. The adventure, if undertaken, will be attended by innumerable difficulties, delays and blunders, and at a time when delays and blunders will exact a cruel toll.

The Government at Washington has sinned away the long summer days of grace.

Instead of the frantic anxiety of late August with respect to fuel, the administration should have shown intelligent and purposeful solicitude last April. That was the time to inform the coal operators and miners that the suspension of a basic industry was a disaster which the Government, charged with the guardianship of the public welfare, could not tolerate. That was the time to issue the ultimatum and prepare resolutely and efficiently to do what is now frenziedly and fumingly proposed.

The same applies to the railroad strike. It is patent to everybody that the warring sides in the railroad strike, as in the coal strike, have no honest concern for the public's needs or rights. With coal operators and miners, with railroad executives and striking craftsmen, including the brotherhood chiefs in their attempted mediation, the public has had no consideration. Pretty professions, to be sure, have been made by the spokesmen of all those various special interests, but not one of them has conceded a point out of sincere regard for the public. The public be damned has been the slogan in all their camps. It still is. And in that ugly and impossible attitude the administration has impotently acquiesced. It is a wretched story and the end is not yet, but the end of official helplessness and the arrogance of organized capital and labor is visibly written in the logic of events and public necessity.

ANOTHER SOLDIER VICTORY.

Last night's benefit vaudeville show at the Orpheum Theater by members of the Fred W. Stockham Post, No. 245, American Legion, was a success. Practically, it will add at least $1000 to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, but it also has another fine aspect: it presents the American Legion in its rightful place alongside other bodies as a stable civic institution.

During the four years since its organization there has been some criticism of the American Legion. It has been charged with being primarily interested in obtaining selfish advantages, financial and political, for its members. The loyal and unsolicited support which legionaires have given the Milk and Ice Fund is an effective demonstration of the legion's generous public spirit.

Many individuals and agencies contributed to the successful presentation of the production last night, but the major part of the credit belongs to the boys who for weeks perspired through hot rehearsal nights with gay, tireless enthusiasm, displaying the undaunted spirit of "do or die" that carried them "over the top." The boys who made good as soldiers are making good as civilians.

THE FLYING GERMANS.

The flight of 22 minutes in a motorless airplane which a German aviator made last year has been eclipsed by the recent performance of the German birdmen, Martens and Hertzen, at Wasserkuppe. Martens flew an hour and six minutes and on the following day Hertzen stayed aloft two hours and ten seconds. The latter on Thursday established a new record of more than three hours. Compared with those eagle swoops, the best efforts of two minutes and 51 seconds at the Clermont-Farrand international meet is a fledgling endeavor.

The success of the Germans in motorless airmanship, as has previously been pointed out, is due to the restrictions of the Versailles treaty. Necessity again appears as the mother of invention. In this connection, of course, invention is an inexact term. The explanation which Martens has given of his flight is illuminating. A motorless flight, he says, "is not a question of the machine, but of nerves. * * * That I was able to maintain my altitude steadily so long over Wasserkuppe, without being forced to glide down, is due to the fact that upward currents favorable to air sailing were distributed over the whole hill region. Meteorological training and a thorough knowledge of air currents is certainly of first-line importance to the pilot of a motorless airplane."

In other words, the Germans, forbidden the use of engines in aerial navigation, have taken to studying the air. That they have achieved mastery of that element cannot be asserted, but they have conclusively shown that knowledge and the skill obtained in actual tests can accomplish wonders. Would it be too much to say that they have brought mastery of the air, independent of machinery, within the vision of fulfillment?

Important as this progress is to aeronautics, its general philosophic significance should not be lost sight of. The faith in formulae, which is now so much the vogue among those who like to regard themselves as advance thinkers, is mostly a petulant superstition. The paths of progress do not lie among pleasing sophistries or denunciation of inequities by rhetoric or bombs. No ism will ever blaze a way to Utopia. Ad astra per aspera is as true now as of old. Necessity is the great incentive. Destroy it, as the votaries of universal comfort propose, and we'll be content with the barnyard levels.

EUROPEAN LEADERSHIP NEEDED.

The London conference broke down, largely because of the bellicose attitude of the French Premier. Now he declares that a mortgage on German state mines and forests in the Ruhr is the only price that France will accept for a moratorium to Germany. His stand is strengthened by the approval of his Cabinet. How Great Britain regards this proposal has not been officially disclosed, but the following dispatch from A. G. Gardiner, one of the sanest of British correspondents, emphasizes the gravity of the situation:

"Disintegration and the economic ruin of Germany spells ruin to the hopes of recovery of British trade. Is England to be ruined that France may crush Germany? England has fought this menace for three years, yielding to France on vital measures to placate her, and shutting her eyes to the significance of French action. Poincare's action leads to the parting of the ways. England can't travel the road to ruin no longer."

If a Franco-British break has been momentarily averted, there is every probability that a continuance of the Poincare policy of revenge must ultimately lead to one. The astonishing thing is that Poincare realizes this, and appears to be reconciled to it. He says: "We desire to remain allies of our allies, and friends of our friends. * * * But we wish to have our ruins repaired—and they will be."

France may break with England if she chooses. She can press on with the policy of revenge, and either plunge Germany into anarchy or precipitate a war of desperation. In the latter event, Russia must be considered. Outlaws have a way of joining forces, and France has done, and is doing, her best to outlaw both. Against such a contingency, French diplomacy has endeavored to provide, with a system of alliances including Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. A flimsy shield, indeed, against a combination of Russian and German power.

And the tragedy of it is that this is the best that French leadership has been able to do, after all the lessons of 1914. Its vision does not extend beyond the old system of alliances and balances, of treaties and countertreaties, of espionage and strategy, of all the abominations that culminated in the greatest calamity in history, and with which the suffering, patient people of the world hoped they had done.

What France needs, obviously, is new leadership, through the medium of a general election. The present Chamber has been compared, for its utter mediocrity, to the present British Commons and the present American Congress. All three bodies consist of men elected under unusual conditions of stress—many of them plain incompetents who are not only unrepresentative of their countries, but are mentally incapable of forming an intelligent program in either foreign or domestic affairs.

THE TRAGEDY AT NORMANDIE.

Friday dawned upon an afflicting spectacle at the Normandie Golf Club. Gathered around the ashes of the caddy shack stood a circle of men crushed under the weight of a great sorrow. But yesterday they had disported themselves upon the greens, their limbs covered with imported pants and gay with hosiery of many colors. And they had lifted up their voices ecstatically, crying: "That's holing 'em, kid!" and other words of joy and inspiration. Yet now there was none so low, you might say, as to give them the honor. Grief brooded over them, and their cusswords were muffled.

Somewhere in this favored land the sun is shining bright; somewhere the robins chatter on the fairways, and respectable citizens in funny rig-outs chase a small white ball into a thicket and speak to it in strange terms, but such frivolous pursuits are not for the sorrowing men of Normandie. Mournfully they survey a charred and twisted fragment of steel that was once the keenest mashie in St. Louis County, and their voices are choked, and they derive no comfort from their high-priced Scotch haberdashery. Their precious clubs are gone—the driver of matchless balance, the only midiron that ever felt right, the deadly stoppem niblick—all gone, gone to the four winds of heaven and Cohn's junk yard, and their quondam owners can only mumble pitifully the name of St. Andrew and wish they had never taken up the blooming game in the first place.

Mayhap the holocaust was a visitation of outraged providence upon a vulgar ostentation of wealth, and would never have happened to a muny course player with only four clubs; or perhaps it was the work of some man maddened by the fortunes of the pastime. Heaven works in a mysterious way its wonders to perform, but it's worth a man's life to say as much before a Class A member of Normandie.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McAdams

ON LOVING ONE'S ENEMIES.

Gilbert, you sound too harsh a note. (Oscar Wilde: Intentions.)

Of all the popular prescriptions for the attainment of virtue, none is less put into practice than that which enjoins upon every good man the love of his enemies. Solemnly, reverently declared for in public, in private this decree is either freely scoffed at or wholly ignored. Most men would no more think of loving their enemies than they would of loving their neighbors' churches. And this notwithstanding that the injunction is of nearly twenty centuries standing and has had in the meantime the theoretical sanction of every church in Christendom.

Here, as elsewhere, popular practice is far from coinciding with popular profession, and with good reason. The creed of loving one's enemies is, at least in our time, nothing more than a kind of protective coloration, adopted under the pressure of our subtle social relations, but any man of even the most rudimentary intelligence knows that there is neither sense nor logic in loving his enemies; more, his instinct is directly against it. He may profess to such love before his spiritual shepherd, he may talk of it in the town hall, but when he prowls forth into the everyday world of practical activity he follows no such rule; he is out for his enemy's hide in every instance.

In an enemy he recognizes someone who has got in his way, is dangerous to himself and his ends, and therefore must be removed. The feeling of hostility, i. e., enmity, that springs up in such cases provides him with the necessary incentive to proceed against such a dangerous fellow and put him out of the way—if he can. That is enmity, and as such it is obviously part of the life equipment of every successful member of the species. To tell a man that he should love his enemies, therefore, is really to advise him to conduct himself in an exceedingly contradictory and irrational fashion.

The Americans tried loving their enemies in both the Civil War and the world war, each time on the injunction of an unquestionably high-minded President, but they failed at it miserably in both instances—more miserably in the second than in the first. In the Revolution we did not attempt any love of the British. Goodness knows, even in our time we make no noticeable effort in that direction, but the Americans of '76, notwithstanding the fact that they were quarreling with their own "brothers," made no bones about cordially disliking them, and they frankly wished them in hell. But the forefathers won their war—won it conclusively and without virtuous quibble. Following upon that victory they did some very fine, independent, constructive work in government—work which no people, our own included, has since been able to parallel in excellence.

No such good consequences followed upon our Civil War, and apparently none will follow for us in the case of the world war, although we still have a few years of grace in which to rival the accomplishments of our forefathers. From the present outlook, however, we are apparently already out of the running, and it would not be at all surprising to learn that the cause of this was our silly attempt to pose as feeling no enmity for the German people, whom we were set upon bringing to their knees. We went to the war delightfully but absurdly protesting our undying love for "the great German people," regretting only the dirty work we felt it strictly necessary to do to them in order to set them once more in the right track of good government. And now what? We are still quibbling as to what shall be our attitude toward the enemy whom we have already destroyed! We are still at sea, bombarded with the question of whether it would be feasible to continue our professions of great love for the German people, whilst practicing upon them all the acts and manifestations of enmity and distrust. Certainly we have got ourselves into a horrible mess.

Evidently the gods never meant that the twin virtues of love and enmity should run together, but we have thought ourselves wiser than the gods, and now the fates are silently having their revenge upon us for our folly. It is always a dangerous business to try to love one's enemy. An enemy's status is that he is to be hated, pursued, warred upon and brought down; there is really no such thing as loving him. When love comes in the door, victory jumps out the window, whether the combat be in arms, amour, or philosophy. We would have been vastly better off in the late war had we done our fighting on that principle, and then let it go at that. The individual who has been successful has taken no chance with his enemies; that is why he has survived them. The nation that is successful risks no sentimental chances with its enemies. It is either at war or at peace with its bedfellows in government, and it acts accordingly.

MEXICO'S IRONY.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

THIS land of Freedom, proud of its law-abiding people, of its public schools, of its general intelligence, has many times found itself in the humiliating position of apologizing as a Nation for the nonpunishment by states of crimes against nationals of more backward lands. Our National Treasury paid for the lynching of Italians in the Parish Prison of New Orleans, paid for the mob murder of Chinamen at Rock Springs, Wyo. Luckily no citizen or subject of a foreign Power appears to have been burned at the stake in any of the Cotton States. That would have capped the climax. Our press and our speakers have a habit of characterizing Mexico as lawless. Utterances in this line have doubtless galled President Obregon. Now Mexico, following the example of Italy and China, embraces the opportunity of satirizing us. Several of her nationals were beaten up or killed at Herrin, Ill., along with a lot of American citizens whose offense had been strikebreaking. It is irony, bitter irony, that the City of Mexico levels at Washington. "What are you going to do about it?" is the gist of a formal and severe protest.

And what can the United States as a nation do? Our Federal system leaves Washington as helpless at Herrin as it was in New Orleans and in Rock Springs. In the long run, after the customary diplomatic evasions, we shall tap the nation's treasury and pay damages to Obregon's Government. Herrin is quiescent, Illinois is quiescent. County and State prefer to treat the massacre as a closed incident. Also Obregon's precedent for pleading incapacity to deal with any local disturbance in Mexico is handed to him ready-made. It's a poor rule that does not work both ways. Mob violence unpunished has sequels that are manifestly both widespread and serious.

RECOGNITION OF BALTIC REPUBLICS.

From the Nation.

RECOGNITION by the United States of the Baltic republics of Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania is a step toward a common-sense attitude to Russian problems. Soviet Russia made peace with them in the spring of 1920; the European Powers recognized them long ago; but our State Department, its policy controlled by a group of Pan-Russian exiles, has steadfastly insisted that it must wait until Russia was restored to anti-bolshevists before it could sanction any territorial changes in the old Russian empire. It made exceptions in the cases of Poland and of Finland, staunch centers of anti-soviet agitation; but it justified its refusal to deal with the Far Eastern republic and its refusal to face facts in the Baltic by this queer reasoning. Latvia and Esthonia have an importance out of proportion to their size because they are Russia's windows to the Western world; Riga and Reval are the market places where soviet Russia and Western salesmen meet. It is to be hoped that our recognition of them means that the State Department is slowly feeling its way out of the impasse into which its refusal to deal with Russian realities has led it.

Events in the Social World

Society Folk Returning From Summer Resorts and Camps, Prepartory to Eary Fall Rush Activities for Debutantes and Others—Preparations Begun for Veiled Prophet Gaities.

WITH September approaching and with the hot dullness of the summer becoming history, society and its followers begin to observe signs of the new season, groups of young people buying winter outfits preparatory to entering finishing schools and colleges, debutantes-elect worrying as to which would be the most appropriate sort of party to form a background for their initiation into the great playground of the world, brides setting their wedding dates and announcing their plans, and last but by no means least, great numbers of matrons who for years have been social leaders, planning their winter campaigns.

Of immediate interest are the many vacationists returning from their summer homes at the seashore, and from cottages and cabins on the lakes. Missourian a Member of Official Party to Brazil Fair

William H. Beck, State Department Attache, Will Attend South American Exposition—Events at Northern and Eastern Resorts in Which St. Louisans Figure.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The chief event in Washington society this week was the departure of Secretary of State Hughes and his party via the Pan-America Rio Janeiro where they will attend the Brazilian centennial exposition.

This hand of friendship to the important South American republic is sure to be productive not only of political advantage, but social interchange of courtesies as well. The Brazilian people have made great preparations for the reception of their distinguished guests. The Hughes party included Mrs. Hughes, Representative Stephen G. Porter, Miss Porter, Admiral and Mrs. Hilary Jones, Major-General Bullard and William H. Beck of Missouri, one of the attaches of the State Department.

The Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge will come to Washington the end of this week after a stay of several weeks in the Far West.

daughters, the Misses Nelle and Frances, have been in Washington all summer, will not return to Missouri, as Mrs. Millspaugh heartily indorses Washington as a summer resort and lauds the comforts of the Millspaugh home here. Miss Nelle, who was graduated from George Washington University last year will continue her studies for a degree at that university this winter. Miss Frances will continue to attend a Washington high school.

Representative and Mrs. Edward Hays and their son, Dallas, and daughter, Miss Kathryn, will go to Missouri in September. Representative Hays will return to Washington for the vote on the tariff bill which is in committee, and then will hurry back for the elections. Mr. Dallas has been attending the summer sessions of the George Washington University law school and Miss Kathryn has been attending the summer courses of the university specializing in modern languages. Both will return from Missouri to enter the regular classes of the university late in September.

It is expected that both Miss Nelle Millspaugh and Miss Kathryn Hays will be included in all the debutante parties of the winter, although no announcement has been made that they will be debutantes. It is recalled that the Misses Burleson, daughters of the Postmaster-General and Mrs. Albert Sidney Burleson during the Wilson administration continued their studies at George Washington University, and although they never made formal debuts were among the most popular Cabinet girls in Washington for many a year.

Cadet William Wren of West Point, has been visiting Representative and Mrs. Hays this week and last week end Ensign Duckworth passed the week end with them. Ensign Duckworth will go to Missouri to visit his parents before going to Seattle for duty on the U. S. S. Iowa.

Mr. John B. Henderson, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. John B. Henderson Sr., widow of the late Senator from Missouri at Bar Harbor, has returned to Washington and has reopened Boundary Castle for the season.

Mrs. Selden P. Spencer, wife of Senator Spencer who went to San Francisco to see her son, Selden P. Spencer Jr., before he left for the Orient has gone to Lake Geneva, Wis., where she will remain until the return of Senator Spencer who is touring Europe with a senatorial commission.

Yachting races for the junior championship at Marblehead, polo, golf and tennis at the country clubs and a continual round of entertaining at the clubs and hotels made the week especially lively.

HARBOR POINT, Mich., Aug. 26.—Harbor Point golfers fought hard for the president's cup, offered annually in the premier event on their beautiful course, and it was won by Ed Standard of St. Louis with W. And once again are hundreds of women confronted with the opportunity to share in our foremost underpriced Suit offering, made possible by the whole-hearted co-operation of one of America's leading makers of high quality apparel of distinction.

The Fur Trimmings Alone Are Worth More

The fur trimming alone on many of these Suits is worth as much and in some instances more than the sale price of the complete garment. Other trimmings of braid, fur and embroidery are worth from $10 to $30—yet the sale price is only $39.

Most assuredly we could sell many of these Suits at $127.50 each; many more at $110 and again many at $95 and $85 each; and the poorest in the lot at $49.50. But it would take weeks to do it. We want to sell them all in one day, and therein lies the secret of setting the price at $39 for any Suit in this lot.

Women seeking their ideals in Fall and Winter fashions will look no further. Here is the stopping point; the ultimate in Suit modes. Exquisite three-piece Suits—a rarity at $39—styles richly embroidered and braided and others trimmed in an artistic new manner. Also smart tailored models in Fashion's most recent conceptions. The choice of colors is practically unlimited. Plenty of navys and blacks.

Other first flight contestants were H. W. Bond, R. C. Dobson, St. Louis; S. Christopher, Kansas City, Mo.; W. H. McCurdy, Evansville, Ind.; Forbes Watson, S. Gardiner, H. C. Murphy, New York; H. K. Chapin, C. F. Erickson, Chicago; C. B. Munro, Pittsburg.

Mrs. Henry Meier of St. Louis, Mrs. Charles A. Chapin of Chicago and Mrs. William L. Munro of Pittsburg have been constituted a committee on entertainment at Harbor Point clubhouse for the remainder of the season and all of next. "Putting teas" are being held every Saturday afternoon.

At a children's cotillion in the Harbor Point Casino the other evening Master Duncan Dobson and little Miss Mary Lees Kennard, both of St. Louis, led the grand march. A similar affair is being arranged at Wequetonsing.

As the resort season draws to a close social functions at the two Harbor Point clubhouses are becoming larger, more frequent and more animated. Mrs. H. M. Meier of St. Louis gave a dinner party and dance for 35 at the golf clubhouse, and Mrs. John T. Stewart of Indianapolis gave a party there for Mrs. Meridith Nicholson and her son, Charles Lionel Nicholson.

At the beautiful clubhouse on Harbor Point Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Murphy of St. Louis this week gave a dinner for 23 guests, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Whitelaw and James D. Filley of St. Louis, each gave similar parties.

A three-weeks' series of races by the boats of the Little Traverse Bay Yacht Club, composed mainly of St. Louisans who are summer residents of Harbor Point and Wequetonsing, ended this afternoon, and tonight at the Harbor Point Casino the most elaborate ball of the 1922 resort season was given.

Hundreds of toy sailboats decorated walls, ceiling and were suspended from the many-colored electric lights, and a sailboat with all canvas spread stood on the stage. F. C. Lake of St. Louis, who is chairman of the club's Executive Committee, presented beautiful cups to the owners of the two yachts that had made the best scores, and these went to George Simmons, St. Louis, of the Alpha, and J. Herndon Smith, St. Louis, of the Tiger. The ball was arranged by a committee consisting of Norris B. Gregg, J. B. Kennard Jr., St. Louis, and George Duffield, Detroit.

The Rainbow, owned by E. H. Steedman of St. Louis, who is a Wequetonsing cottager, was withdrawn before the series of races was finished to allow Mr. Steedman to take her to Chicago for the Lipton cup races. The Rainbow brought home one of the cups from the recent regatta of the Charlevoix Yacht Club on Pine Lake in which a number of the Chicago Yacht Club boats that made the Chicago-to-Mackinac run over the longest fresh water sailing course is the world participated.

The officers of the Little Traverse Bay Yacht Club are as follows: Honorary commodore, William R. Manierre, Chicago; commodore, J. Herndon Smith, St. Louis; vice commodore and treasurer, William Barnett, St. Louis; secretary, J. B. Kennard Jr., St. Louis.

A. L. Shapleigh of St. Louis won the free-for-all aboard his yacht, Loafer, and Norris Gregg of St. Louis came in second on Bonnie.

Recent visitors from St. Louis at the Harbor Point clubhouse are F. Winston Johns, Ed Thomas, Mrs. J. V. Hackett, M. R. Compton, John Jay Johns, Mrs. J. C. Hinchmann, Miss F. E. Hinchmann, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lamont, Warren B. La-

Keeps Hair In Curl On Hot or Windy Days

Here's a hair curling secret that is decidedly "worth while." Just apply a little liquid silmerine before doing up the hair, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose, drawing this down the hair from crown to tip. In three hours you will have as beautiful curls and waves as you could wish for. The waviness will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired. And it will last ever so long, regardless of heat, wind or dampness.

You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store and a few ounces will last a long time. It is neither sticky nor greasy and is pleasant to use. It is doubly useful because of also serving as a beneficial dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous. It's fine for both long and bobbed hair.

Monday, August 28th, will witness one of the most commendable Coat sales this store has ever held. As a fitting finale of the August Economy Sales, it undoubtedly ranks at the very top of the value-giving list. As an exposition of the new Fall and Winter styles, it is in a class by itself. As an economy occasion, we have every reason to believe that it can be classed with any of the really great Coat sales held in America.

Included are all the effects best suited for misses and women. Belted, straightline, wrappy and tailored models in dozens of effective variations.

There are scores and scores of styles—fur trimmed, embroidered and tailored—stunning models, every one—"copies" of expensive wraps worth many times Monday's price.

The August Economy Sales have come to be an institution in this community—a series of events looked forward to because of the extraordinary savings they bring. In preparing this event several weeks were spent in the selection of these Coats—dozens of manufacturers were visited—price concessions greater than ever before were received—and we, in turn, are sacrificing the major portion of our profits.

ST. LOUISANS BUSY ENJOYING LEISURE AT BAY STATE RESORTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—The closing days of the season are filled with affairs of all kinds, sport, social and charitable. In the latter class was the fair for the Episcopal church at Wenham, held on the grounds of "Sunnyfields," and the weather man was most unkind, for a steady drizzle marred the garden party which had been planned. The fair was held with considerable success, every one making the best of the conditions. Among those helping was little Miss Bettina Thomas, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Thomas of St. Louis, who sold peanuts and marshmallows.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcsolm Thomas and family of St. Louis came East recently for their usual August visit with Mr. Thomas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Rand Thomas, on "Monstone Farm," Ipswich. Mr. Thomas is now on a short business trip to St. Louis and Mrs. Thomas is visiting friends in New London, Conn., while Miss Bettina remains with her grandparents.

Mrs. Luther Ely Smith of New York, who is spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. Samuel Kennard of St. Louis, at Magnolia, entertained at a luncheon party at the North Shore Swimming Pool, Wednesday afternoon.

Bridge is the one unfailing pleasure at the hotels and every evening the lobby contains numerous groups deeply engrossed over their cards. On Saturday night, at the Oceanside, Magnolia, at one table were noted Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey and Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Hyde of St. Louis. Mrs. Hussey wore a brown frock with embroidered lace overdress and a girdle of old-rose. Mrs. Hyde was gowned in heliotrope crepe with a black girdle.

Dr. and Mrs. B. J. McMahon of St. Louis are recent arrivals at Hotel Rock-Mere, Marblehead, coming in time for the gayeties of yachting week.

Mr. David R. Francis Jr. and a party of friends of St. Louis motored down from the Francis summer home at Rye Beach and were at the Rock-Mere, Marblehead, for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Avis and Miss Virginia Harnett of St. Louis are making their first visit to the North Shore, stopping at Hotel Preston, Beach Bluff.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Loose of Kansas City are entertaining Mrs. Sidney C. Partridge of Kansas City at "Sea Rocks," their summer home at East Point, East Gloucester. Mr. and Mrs. Loose are not entering into the social life of the North Shore this year as in previous season, owing to the recent deaths of Mr. Loose's brother and Mrs. Loose's sister.

Del Monte's at Magnolia had its usual gay crowd Saturday night, every table being taken by a lively party from the hotels or cottages. Mr. Nolan Hussey of St. Louis entertained a party of 12, including his sister, Miss Helen Hussey, and Miss Phyllis Hull of New York. Sig. Gustavo di Rosa and Mme. di Rosa came with a party of eight and Mrs. Eugene A. Pery, daughter of Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick with a party of six.

Gloucester, in fact the whole Cape Ann shore, has long been the summer playground of some of the best-known artists of the country, and the annual exhibitions of paintings and etchings have always been of the finest. The seventh annual show is now being held at the Gallery-on-the-Moors and maintains the same high standard. Among the exhibitors is Thomas Barnett of St. Louis, "Snow and Ice" being the name he has given his painting. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett are spending the summer at their cottage at Rockport.

Mr. D. B. Hussey and Mr. Nolan Hussey of St. Louis, guests at the Oceanside, Magnolia, entered the four-ball invitation golf tournament of the Essex County Club last week but were unable to win out over the players who have been using the course daily since early in the season.

Mrs. C. F. Pepper and Miss Alice Baird of St. Louis are among the week's arrivals at the New Ocean House, Swampscott.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Pollock of St. Louis were at the Copley Plaza, Boston, this week, en route to the North Shore resorts.

St. Louis guests at Boston hotels this week included Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Avis and Miss Genevieve Avis, at the Touraine; Mrs. R. Vander Wind at the Lenox, Mrs. J. R. Powell at the Commonwealth, Messrs. A. Burt Champion and Burley Champion at the Copley Square.

Mr. Harry A. Burns of St. Louis is visiting friends in Whitman, Mass.

The tennis tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club, Brookline, this week, is the most important event of the kind held in this section this season. Besides the national doubles championship, several other tournaments are being held. Among those entered in the junior championship was Thomas Eggman of St. Louis, who defaulted on the opening day.

Bishop William A. Quayle of St. Louis will preach at the Methodist camp meeting at Asbury Grove, Hamilton, Mass., on Sunday morning.

At Narragansett Pier.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 26.—The garden party for the benefit of St. Philomena's Church was held on the Casino green on Monday afternoon and evening after being twice postponed, and proved a most successful affair. The tradesman's table was in charge of Mrs. Robert J. B. Sullivan of St. Louis, who was assisted by her mother and sister, Mrs. James C. Cahill and Miss Lenore Cahill, and by Mrs. Isaac D. Kelly, all of St. Louis.

Interest in the polo tournament at the Point Judith Country Club was increased by the presence this week of Gen. John J. Pershing, who came from Washington to witness the match between the army team and the Meadowbrooks. Gen. Pershing was the guest of Philip S. P. Randolph of Philadelphia, president of the Point Judith Club, who gave a large luncheon in his honor previous to the game, at his villa, Wildfield Farm.

The residents of Narragansett Pier are much interested in the drive for funds for motorizing the Pier volunteer fire department, and many of the cottagers are contributing liberally. Among those who have given to the fund are Mrs. William Cullen MacBride, Mrs. B. S. Craib and Mrs. Isaac D. Kelly, all of St. Louis.

No trace has been found of the burglars who took the jewels of Mrs. D. S. Craib of St. Louis from "Shore Acres," the villa of Mrs. Isaac D. Kelly of St. Louis, several weeks ago. Like the robbery of a villa on the North Shore recently, it is thought the robbers may have come in a motor boat, making it impossible to trail them. The jewelry was covered by insurance, but the valuable keepsakes cannot be replaced.

At the annual meeting of the Newport Reading Room, perhaps the most select club along the coast, Mr. Bradford Norman, father of Mrs. Daniel Jones of St. Louis, was elected a member of the Executive Committee.

After the close of the tennis tournament society at Newport is looking forward to the next big event, the Horse Show, which will be held at the Casino the last three days of the month.

Rear-Admiral John D. McDonald, commander of the Atlantic fleet, gave a reception aboard the flagship Wyoming Thursday afternoon, which was attended by many visitors from Newport, Jamestown and the Pier. The main deck was used for dancing and the ship's band played.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kauffman of St. Louis, who have had a villa at Watch Hall this season, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Carl Langenberg of St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Kauffman and their guests were among those attending the dinner and costume ball at the Misquamicut Golf Club Saturday evening.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY IN BRITISH CAPITAL

Americans Rapidly Returning Home—"Camel Walk" Their Contribution This Year.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Tales of airplane cures are sending large numbers of health seekers to London's airway terminus at Croydon. The deaf and dumb particularly have great faith in the power of airplane acrobatics to cure them, for their only hope of regaining their powers of speech and hearing is through some shock, say their medical advisers.

These shocks the air pilots endeavor to give the patients in aerial loops and spins and sudden dives. The cures effected, however, are few and far between. This is due to the fact that patients are expecting to be shocked, it is said, and for that reason no shock is experienced.

The only cures recorded so far were from sudden dives—the patients being unaware that the the pilot intended stunting. On the other hand, if cures do not take place, it is claimed for aerial joy riding that it has a markedly beneficial effect upon the patients.

The members of Prime Minister Lloyd George's family, who are on a holiday in Wales, recently participated in a historical pageant presented in the famous Harlech Castle in Merionethshire. One of the episodes was the assembly of Owen Glyndwr's Parliament in 1405 in Harlech Castle and the leading characters were impersonated by Dame Margaret Lloyd George, wife of the Premier, as Lady Glyndwr; Miss Megan Lloyd George, their daughter, as Lady Mortimer, and Maj. Gwilym Lloyd George as Lord Edmond Mortimer. Dame Margaret made an appealing picture in a crimson tunic lined with ermine and emblazoned with blue lines and a crown studded with rubies and diamonds. Miss Megan's dress was of red and white, half of it emblazoned with gold lines and the other half with the gold and silver arms of Mortimer.

The American accent and tortoise shell spectacles are disappearing from the streets of London. The exodus of tourists has begun and the great liners which a few weeks ago brought thousands of Americans to England are now taking them home again. All ships sailing for America for the next month are choked to capacity. Even the freighters which provide accommodations for a limited number of passengers are figuratively hanging out the "standing room only" sign.

The tradition exists that every year the Americans bring something new to London. In the last decade they introduced, and London assimilated among other things, jazz music, soda fountains, electric signs, 10 different types of standarized automobiles, several brands of patent breakfast food and a small army of excited cocktail kings.

This year's contribution, which Londoners eagerly welcomed, was the "American walk," otherwise known as the "camel walk." It is the dance step of the season, a straight forward walk without a wriggle or shake. Paris also took it up eagerly and spread it over the continent.

Other American imports which are fast catching in London are wireless broadcasting and baseball.

INJURY FROM PITCHFORK IS FATAL TO POMONA (MO.) MAN

POMONA, Mo.—Joe Grant, 22 years old, a World War veteran, died in a Springfield hospital as the result of injuries received in a peculiar accident near this city. In company with another man he had been hauling hay into a barn to get it out of the rain. Grant climbed into the barn loft and called to the other man to toss him the pitchfork. When the fork was pitched to him, it pierced his cheek just below the left eye, penetrating the brain and paralyzing his entire left side. He was taken to the Springfield hospital but died in a few days.

INDIAN IMPROVEMENT PLANS UNDER WAY

Commissioner Burke Working Out Program With Particular Regard to Health and Education.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Plans for the improvement of the condition of the Indians, with particular regard to health and education, are being worked out by Commissioner Burke of Indian Affairs with the approval of Secretary Fall, and an increase in the estimates for the Indian Bureau probably will be asked for in the next Indian appropriation bill.

The American Red Cross recently acceded to a request from the Interior Department for the assignment of three trained nurses to be detailed to the Indian Bureau for one year, as the first step in Commissioner Burke's program. In addition plans for enlarged school facilities to educate 20,000 Indian children of school age not now in school are being worked out. Approximately 6000 of this number belong to the Navajo tribe and have never been to school.

The nurses assigned to the Indian service, it was said at the Indian Bureau, will make a survey of conditions on Indian reservations and give a demonstration of what may be accomplished by women trained as nurses and in welfare work, to lay the foundation for asking Congress for an appropriation to enable the Indian Bureau to employ on the reservations women of a higher grade for matrons and general field service, according to Commissioner Burke's plans.

"There is a great opportunity," Commissioner Burke said, in commenting on his plans, "for improving home conditions among Indians and in teaching sanitation and looking after the health of children.

"It is planned, if the money can be obtained, to enlarge many of the school plants by porch and other cheap construction, and it is also hoped that two abandoned military posts, Fort Wingate, N. M., and Fort Apache, Ariz., can be transferred by the War Department to the Interior Department, to be converted into Indian schools. Both of these posts are desirable and well located, and should care for probably 1000 pupils.

Wequetonsing Golf and Dinners Figured in by St. Louisans

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WEQUETONSING, Mich., Aug. 26. —T. S. McPheeters, David Ingle and D. H. Hodgman upheld the banner of St. Louis in the annual golf championship tournament on the Wequetonsing course, but none of the trio got as far as the semi-finals. The cup was taken down by H. T. Bradley of Chicago, who turned the same trick last season, and the runner-up was B. B. Harris of Champaign, Ill. Bradley reduced the course record from 74 to 72, the old record having been his own.

But E. R. Thomas of the Missouri metropolis came to the rescue in the second flight and was awarded the cup after downing M. A. Brown of Cincinnati 1 up, after a hard-fought match of 36 holes. He was the only St. Louisan who entered. The third flight went to E. J. Littlefield, Detroit expert.

Recent dinner party guests at "Weque" include Miss Betsy Stix, R. F. McNally, Mrs. Ames Cushman, Mrs. Henry Cushman, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Porter, the Misses Helen J. and Katherine G. ST. LOUIS TO HAVE BIG RADIO SHOW IN THE COLISEUM

All Kinds of Wireless Apparatus for Sending and Receiving Will Be on Exhibition Veiled Prophet Week.

EXPERTS TO GIVE TALKS FOR AMATEURS

Exposition Given Under Auspices of St. Louis Radio Association for Those Interested in New Science.

Plans have been completed by the St. Louis Radio Association for what will be the largest and most complete radio show and exposition ever held in the Middle West. To accommodate the attedance which this show will draw from St. Louis and neighboring States, the show management has chartered the St. Louis Coliseum for the period from Oct. 6 to Oct. 11.

Radio receiving and transmitting apparatus of several hundred different makes, types and sizes will be on display. The public will be given an exceptional opportunity to study these makes from the standpoint of design, construction and operation. The country's foremost manufacturers, jobbers and dealers have contracted for space and since they will show their entire lines, the exhibits will be of greatest value to the radio enthusiast — professional, amateur or layman.

Arrangements have been made for special lectures and demonstrations to be given by the country's foremost radio engineers. The show management is now negotiating with such leaders of the radio world as Maj. E. H. Armstrong of super-regenerative fame, Hiram Percy Maxim, the "grand old man of radio"; K. B. Warner, "Eddie" of QST, Paul F. Godley, the man at the head of the recent amateur Transatlantic tests, and several others intimately connected with bringing the art of radio transmission and reception to its present stage. The messages which these men will deliver to the public and the technical data which may be received from them will make an evening's attendance at the show not only intensely interesting, but also highly instructive. In fact, the show management has arranged its plans so that a radio education may be assimilated by even the most inexperienced novice by attending the many radio talks that have been scheduled.

An exceptionally complete and novel advertising campaign has been planned to advertise the show. Approximately 10,000 invitations have been sent out to all the prominent radio manufacturers, jobbers and dealers throughout the country. Details regarding the show and exposition will be featured in the Post-Dispatch, all the leading radio journals, and through various other agencies.

Anyone "listening in" on their radio sets these days may hear the radio amateurs of the Middle West signing off: "C U at the St. Louis Radio Show Oct. 6 to 11." The show is being supervised by the St. Louis Radio Association with the close co-operation of the Electrical Board of Trade and the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

The very fact that the show is being held during Veiled Prophet week, and at the time when the Missouri State Radio Association in conjunction with the American Radio Relay League is holding its annual convention in St. Louis, gives promise that it will be the most successful of its kind ever attempted.

SECRETARY HUGHES TO RUN STATE DEPARTMENT BY WIRELESS

Messages from Cabinet Officer at Sea Will Be Given Right of Way.

On and after August 24th, when Secretary Hughes sails from New York on the "Pan American" on the 4000-mile cruise to Rio Janeiro, he will be in constant communication with this Government through a special radio set just installed on this Shipping Board vessel.

Practically, at least, the Secretary of State will maintain a floating State Department throughout his trip—although technically "at sea." Official communications from the "Pan American" will be cleared immediately and received with "right of way" either at the Naval Radio at Bar Harbor or the Radio Corporation's stations at Port Jefferson or Riverhead, Long Island. Messages will be forwarded from either the Naval Station at Annapolis or commercial stations on the coast.

The special equipment, which was rushed from Washington to New York a few nights ago by a special messenger who stored the apparatus in an empty berth rather than trust it to the baggage car, will be capable of sending from Rio Janeiro to Bar Harbor. It comprises an arc transmitter with universal amplifiers, used in conjunction with tuners consisting of three stages of radio amplification and an audion detector with two stages of audio amplification. This set is capable of using wave lengths varying from 150 meters to 20,000, but probably about a 2400 wave will be used for transmission—in sending, the short stations will use longer wave lengths, possibly as high as 2100 meters.

Radio's Aid in Making Daily Weather Surveys for Europe and America

Valuable Reports Now Received From Hitherto Inaccessible Regions—Carries Warnings to Ships.

On Aug. 16 there came to the United States Weather Bureau a radio message composed of curious code words and figures, which would mean nothing to the average fan, but which meant much to the forecasters of the weather. It was the first daily European meteorological report from France, forwarded in exchange for a report on conditions in North America sent daily by the United States Weather Bureau since June 15.

Radio has taken a vital part in gathering and disseminating meteorological data for some time, especially in the United States, where the science is farther advanced and the speed of transmission higher than in any other country. Now radio has begun to serve the Old World with news from the new. Early in June arrangements were made between Capt. Wehrle of the French Meteorological Service and American Weather Bureau officials for the exchange of meteorological observations from about 30 main stations in the United States and Canada, and a similar report from 22 European stations—the exchange to be made daily by radio. Beginning on Aug. 16 the United States Weather Bureau incorporated the French report in its daily statements which are broadcasted from some 80 stations throughout this country.

In France a daily broadcast from the Eiffel Tower now carries the American weather report to all radio stations within its range in Western Europe. Weather reports from the West are especially valuable to Europe, where meteorology is international, the weather in one country materially affecting that in another. As the course of most storms, as well as what are termed "highs" and "lows" of barometric pressure, is generally from West toward the East, European countries are vitally interested in the weather in North America today, since it will affect their country within a few days; storms and cyclones on our two coasts eventually reaching Northern Europe. By means of the newly arranged radio exchange, France collects the information from 22 European stations and sends a composite report from the Lyons station to our naval station at Bar Harbor. The United States Government collects its local data and transmits a general survey every evening from Arlington to Bordeaux, so that it reaches its destination before the Europeans are awake on the next day, and gives news of a storm long before it arrives.

The development of the science of meteorology in the United States has been remarkably fine and its establishment dates back fifty years, when, with the aid of line telegraph, reports were received from as far west as the Great Plains. Today there are 210 Weather Bureau stations in the United States and 30 in Canada, all of which co-operate in gathering weather statistics. Observations are taken twice daily, at 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. (seventy-fifth meridian time), but it requires a full hour and many telegraph lines to distribute all the information to Washington and 125 other Weather Bureau offices, where the observations are charted and released to the public. Observations of the barometer, state of weather, wind velocity and direction are taken. When the reports are all received at Washington, the forecasting is done and the information disseminated.

Besides the stations in the States and Europe, Washington gets advices from 36 stations in the West Indies, Cuba and Central America; 17 points in Mexico; 12 ports in the Pacific; and 9 in Alaska; making a total of 336 reports including the United States and Canadian observations.

Radio serves many of the collecting and transmitting stations; for example, all European reports come in by that means, as well as 16 of the 36 West Indian reports, 12 from the Pacific and Far Eastern stations and 4 of the Alaskan points. "Wireless" was first tried experimentally in 1900 and much progress was made by the Weather Bureau, the first of the Government Departments to use it, but in 1904 Roosevelt's radio board recommended that the Bureau cease its experiments, assigning development work to the Army and Navy.

Radio-sent reports from the Far East have the curious effect of reaching San Francisco before they start, due to the difference in time; messages sent at 8 a.m. Standard Eastern time in Japan, reach San Francisco at 5 a.m., three hours earlier, and Washington at 11 a.m., but it is really about 12 hours after the observations are taken before they reach headquarters.

Officials of the weather bureau point out that radio has aided in the advance of the science of meteorolgy more than anything else in the past two decades, and they expect it to accomplish much more in the next few years. It serves especially in collecting weather data from vessels at sea, as well as making possible the sending of storm warnings and forecasts to the ships. Previous to the use of radio on the sea, no information of approaching storms was available. Today practically every ship sends a full weather report twice daily, all of which are forwarded either to San Francisco or Washington.

The Navy co-operates in both collecting and disseminating this information, and broadcasts a weather report twice daily from Arlington, San Francisco and the Great Lakes. Local services are broadcasted daily by 36 naval radio stations on American coasts, primarily for ships.

Weather forecasts and warnings are sent by land telephone to approximately seven million telephone subscribers in this country, which is particularly valuable in the rural districts, but the latest and most complete service, thanks to broadcasting stations in all but one State, makes the weather reports available to somewhere between three-quarters and a million people who have radio-receiving sets, among them many isolated farmers who never got the benefit of weather reports before.

In the future, forecasters look for data from the most remote places sent by explorers via radio. Amundsen, who is sending reports from the far North almost daily, is the first to do this, which is a step toward an improved and complete weather survey of the world.

RADIO LINKS FOR CENTRAL AMERICA

Five Powerful New Stations to Be Built for Wireless Communication.

The Radio Corporation of America announces that it has received orders from the United Fruit Co. and the Tropical Radio Telegraph Co. for five radio stations, three for Central America and two for the United States, each with a sending radius of more than 2000 miles. The erection of these five stations will fill an important and essential gap in the radio system of the Americas.

The three Central American stations will be located on the corners of the triangle embracing Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama. The Tropical Radio Telegraph's stations will be located at Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, and at Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, the city designated as the capital of the new Central American Union. These stations will connect with the United Fruit Co.'s station at Almirante, Panama.

The United States terminals of this communication system will be at New Orleans, Louisiana, where the present station of the Tropical Radio Telegraph Co. is to be enlarged and new apparatus installed, and at a new station which the Tropical Radio Telegraph Co. will erect in the vicinity of Miami, Fla. Intercommunication between these five stations, and ships to shore communications with them, will open up entirely new routes of communication between the Americas, one of which will be the opening of the radio route between Bogota, Colombia, S. A., and the United States, a distance of more than 2000 miles.

Vacuum tubes of the latest design, and many times more powerful than any tubes heretofore used in sets for commercial service, together with the highly efficient multiple-tuned antenna, will form some of the special features of these new stations

SWEDEN TO EXPEND $2,000,000 ON RADIO

American Firm Gets Contract for Plant of Enormous Power.

Competing with the English, French and Germans, American bidders have been successful in securing a contract with the Swedish Government for furnishing apparatus for a high power radio station to handle direct wireless communications between the United States and Sweden. The total cost of the station erected will probably be over $2,000,000.

The need of direct telegraph connection between Sweden and the United States was emphasized very considerably during the war and immediately thereafter.

The new station will be situated in the vicinity of Gothenburgh, which is on the west coast of Sweden, and the contract with the builders calls for the installation of two 200 k. w. Alexanderson alternator equipments, which, when associated with the well-known multiple tuned antenna, will each deliver to the antenna a current of 600 amperes, and is similar to the equipment which is being supplied to Poland by the same company. The receiving equipment will consist of two complete and independent modern sets, composed of tuners and the necessary amplifying apparatus, and will be used in conjunction with receiving aerials devised for the reduction of static disturbances.

At the time that the apparatus contract was signed a very important traffic contract was signed which assured the direct communication between Sweden and the United States for a long period of years.

The wave lengths used will range from 2500 to 4500 meters and the power actually delivered to the antenna at these wave lengths will be equivalent to over 100 kilowatts.

FORTY STATES NOW HAVE HEARD K S D

Rhode Island and New Hampshire Join Post-Dispatch Circle of Listeners.

Rhode Island and New Hampshire are two new states which have just joined the K S D circle of listeners. This brings the total to forty, not counting the District of Columbia. Massachusetts and Connecticut, of the New England States, had previously reported.

Navy Radio 7000 Miles Direct.

PROF. DUVEY SAYS FEAR IS GREATEST ENEMY OF PROGRESS

will harm him, whether that agrees with his own conclusion or not?"

"Surely," Prof. Dewey answered. "There can be no disagreement there. All that I object to is calling such guardianship education. This guardianship may be necessary to the educational process; for if the child loses his life, he will have no mind to educate. But the child who has been most perfectly trained as to conduct, the one who acts in every way as he is told to act, and even holds the opinions which he is told to hold, is quite apt not to be educated at all. He may make a good soldier, he may make a 'good citizen,' in the sense that he may be depended upon not to murder or steal, not to drink, swear, gamble or get married too often; but such a person may only be trained; he may not be educated at all. It is quite possible that he cannot think.

"This confusion of training with education is responsible for many of the grievous errors in our educational system. Children may be trained to behave, but so may animals. It is doubtless necessary to give them some such training. But the very basis of such training is fear of what they may do without it. When we are trying to draw out human intelligence there must be no such fear. We must have no misgivings as to what the child shall think. The moment we stipulate what a child shall think, we make it impossible for him to think at all. Dealing with human intelligence as though it were merely a matter of animal training constitutes the real viciousness as such measures as the Lusk Laws. However such laws may be defended from the standpoint of public comfort, they do not permit us to educate our children. Their tendency is to make of them a lot of well-trained apes."

"But isn't the school teacers' union," I asked, "simply trying to substitute one set of standards for another?"

"No," he said. "That is why I am interested in it. Such an attempt might naturally have been expected, but some real minds have evidently been working out their program. I have studied their program. I may take exception to it in certain details. But it is preeminently an educational program, not a mere statement of economic demands. It stresses the necessity of freedom on the part of the teacher, intellectual freedom, freedom to arrive at conclusions from the facts. This program, instead of calling for the dissemination of any particular conclusions, is set against any such propaganda. If this program were followed in our schools, it would not necessarily mean greater radicalism or greater conservatism. It would simply mean the releasing of the thinking power of the children who are soon to constitute our city—releasing their power to cope with the problems with which they will have to deal."

"But the teachers' union makes the usual labor union demands, doesn't it?"

"Should Boost Organization."

"I believe so," he said. "It stands for higher pay, which is sorely needed; for a better regulation of working hours and an improvement in the physical conditions of the schools, which are not now equal in this respect to the better class of factories. Looking at it not from the standpoint of the economic advantage of the teachers, but from the standpoint of the children's needs, all New York ought to get together and boost for this. We can't afford to have the best brains of the community drawn into other work, leaving those who cannot make a living at other professions to teach our young. And surely we cannot afford to risk the children's health and safety."

"But doesn't it naturally go against our grain," I asked, "to have our school teachers tied up with the labor movement? The tactics of the labor unions are quite generally being brought into question now. You wouldn't attempt to defend them in toto, would you?"

"No," said Prof. Dewey, "although I am not sufficiently near to the labor movement to be able to make any sweeping pronouncements, I am inclined to take exception to some of its tactics. That labor should organize is, of course, essential. Labor is life, and there can be no two opinions as to whether life should be organized or disorganized. But if there is anything wrong in the policies and objectives of organized labor as we see it today, we should all welcome the appearance of the Teachers' Union in the field. It is to our interest generally that labor shall have the cleanest possible program and the highest possible aims. The school teachers' union, functioning actively within the labor movement, should be able to accomplish much toward this highly desirable end. It is standing for human freedom at the very point where freedom is most essential. It is standing for the right to develop thinking power. It is standing for fearlessness as opposed to dogma, for education as opposed to propaganda, and for reliance upon the great power of human intelligence to solve life's problems rather than upon traditions and superstitions which have so conspicuously failed.

"In chemistry, physics, physiology and other sciences we have made great progress, for in these our thinking power has largely been released. No one is afraid of the conclusions that we may reach in those lines now, and it is pretty generally conceded that the proper method of teaching is to present the facts and to let them be worked up according to the capacity of the minds that work upon them. But in politics, ethics and so-called social sciences we have not yet learned this lesson. We still surround these subjects with prohibitions and warnings, and we are still hunting heretics among our school teachers—among the very people whose intellectual freedom is most necessary to all society. If New Yorkers who realise this would only get together, they might change the whole situation within a very short time. The fearful, the superstitious, those who have no faith in life will doubtless get together on the other side; but all New Yorkers who dare to think should now organize themselves as an auxiliary of the Teachers' Union. It is all a matter of whether we have faith in life or are afraid of it."

EDISON BELIEVES MAN IS FORMED OF LIFE UNITS

was what, in his view, was the supreme problem in connection with these entities and the problem of life after death.

"The thing that really matters is what happens to what one may call the 'master' entities—those that direct the others. Eighty-two remarkable operations upon the brain have definitely proven that the seat of our personality lies in that part of the brain known as the fold of Broca. It is not unreasonable to suppose that these entities which direct reside within this fold. The supreme problem is what becomes of these master entities after what we call death, when they leave the body.

"The point is whether these directing entities remain together after the death of the body in which they have been residing, or whether they go about the universe after breaking up. If they break up and no longer remain as an ensemble, then it looks to me that our personality does not survive death—that is, we do not survive death as individuals."

The final question I put to Edison was: "Then, if these life-units, or entities, break up as you suggest, what becomes of the theory of eternal life?"

"If they do break up and do not remain together after the death of the body, then that would mean that the eternal life which so many of us earnestly desire would not be the eternal life and persistence of the individual, as an individual, but would be an impersonal eternal life—for whatever happens to the life-units, or whatever forms they may assume, it is at least assured that they themselves live forever.

"I do hope myself that personality survives and that we persist. If we do persist upon the other side of the grave, then my apparatus, with its extraordinary delicacy, should one day give us the proof of that persistence and so of our own eternal life."

The great Edison has another 15, perhaps another 25, years of life before him in which to accomplish his latest and what to many will seem his most vital task—the solution of the greatest problem in the world—whether man lives forever.

GERMANS IN ORGY OF BUYING AS THEY AWAIT INEVITABLE CRASH

other German dynasties than the Hohenzollerns. All such looking into the possible future is, of course, the purest speculation. No seer, however great his gift, could tell what will come out of the present chaos.

So far as the wayfarer can see into the German mind, there is no appreciable rancor toward either the English or the Americans. Toward France there is a smouldering flame of hatred, not so much, I take it, because of the war itself as because of French policy since the war. In their present bitterness there are undoubtedly many thousands of Germans who would gladly march against France even in a desperate cause foredoomed to defeat. Men who were saying shortly after the war that they wanted no more of it will tell you now that they would willingly shoulder arms against France. Such is the crop of tares brought forth by the peace of Versailles and the stupidities committed in its name.

Unless a way is found to end war, war, I believe, will come again to Europe should the follies of her so-called statesmen go on much longer unchecked. One thing at present, above all others, appears to be needful to get Europe back to health and sanity—that is the fixing of reparations at a definite lump sum that Germany can hope, in the next 20 or 30 years, to pay. Following upon such a settlement, a loan would be required in order that Germany might patch up her battered economic structure.

Obviously, the present situation, which is without a parallel in the history of the world—that of a highly industrialized nation functioning virtually without a currency system—cannot endure. Either that system must be restored by the stabilization of he mark, or there will be a crash that may shake the world. One or the other.

France's Two Policies.

France pursues two policies directly opposed to each other. She seeks to cripple Germany at the same time that she seeks to get gold from Germany. She must take one line or the other; she cannot permanently follow both. If she is to have her money she must allow Germany to come back as a productive nation. She cannot eat her cake and have it, too.

Europe is sick unto death—Berlin's is the atmosphere of the sick room. The somber pleasure making that the tourist finds here glosses but does not conceal a spreading disease. Will a wiser statesmanship than any now prevailing find the cure before the malady has gone too far to be arrested?

FOR A NATION that Loves Music

MUSIC has been called the international language. Its broadening influence is now carried through closed doors when a Radiola is installed in the home.

Wherever there is a broadcasting station, you will find thousands of homes where the family gathers in the evening to hear the concerts, news, lectures and dance music transmitted through the Radiola. The character of the Radiola installed in the home should be determined partly by the distance of your home from a broadcasting station and partly by the use to which the Radiola is to be applied.

Tell the dealer frankly what you expect—whether you are content with telephone headsets, or whether you want to flood a whole room with broadcasted music. Ask him questions. If he is an R C A dealer he will explain what each of the R C A Radiolas can do.

The Gardner business coupe has been designed to meet a demand for a practical car for business use. It has a number of very distinctive and individual features. The seat upholstered in straight-grain genuine leather, is wide and roomy, with plenty of extra leg room. Just back of the seat is a convenient compartment which affords ample carrying space for suitcase, tools, extra tubes, etc. The door windows are raised and lowered with automatic rotary-type noiseless lifters.

The business coupe has cowl ventilator and rain-proof windshield and permanent metal sun visor.

The sedan is of sturdy construction. The body is finished in special Gardner limousine blue, black enameled fenders and nickel-plated, satin-finished hardware inside the body.

A feature on the new sedan is the large tilting steering wheel and non-slip rim and aluminum spider. A dome light, artistic and unobtrusive, is the final touch to the furnishings of the car.

These new models are being exhibited for the first time in St. Louis by the Mound City Auto Co., 2309 Locust street.

MAXWELL CLOSED MODELS CUT IN PRICE

William Robert Wilson, president of the Maxwell Motor Corporation, announced today that prices on the Maxwell sedan and coupe are reduced $150, affective immediately. Prices on the open models remain unchanged.

In his statement Mr. Wilson says that since the new series of the Maxwell were introduced 10 months ago the demand has never been satisfied and that the public has particularly evidenced a decided preference for the de luxe closed models. This has led to greatly increased production on the sedan and coupe with resulting manufacturing economies which are now passed on to the public. The Ward Motor Co. are distributers for the Maxwell in St. Louis.

$250,000 CAMP GROUNDS DEDICATED AT DENVER

There's an All-States avenue in Denver's $250,000 free municipal camp grounds at Overland Park on which every automobile traveler in the United States has been asked to drive; in fact, register and camp awhile. It's the roll call avenue of the nation.

Five thousand campers from everywhere were present when Mayor Dewey C. Bailey officially turned the camp grounds and the avenue over to the people, and Donald L. Leslie of the Washington, D. C. navy yard, one of the campers, responded. Although used for two years, dedication of the city's newest camp grounds was delayed until it had been made the "largest and best equipped tract of its kind in the world," according to Mayor Bailey. It covers 160 acres, and in the summer months has a "mile of tourist tents."

Records at Overland in the middle of August showed that 8983 cars had been registered, containing 29,940 motorists, a gain of 33 1-3 per cent over last year, and lacking only 9905 of the total of last year's motorist registration.

While Common Sense Auto Polish --- the greaseless cleanser -- removes ALL grease, road oil and grime down to the original finish, and thus restores the Factory Lustre, it is as easy to use as an ordinary Oil "polish"!

It cleans and polishes in one operation and leaves a clear surface, smooth as glass, DRY AS BONE--- so dry that you can sprinkle dust over the freshly polished surface and then "flick off" every particle with a silk handkerchief!--the ONE preparation you have ever seen that will pass this test.

So, Today! Not the paint shop, but a bottle of Common Sense — an investment of $1.00 that will add at least $150.00 to the appearance of your car.

From your nearest dealer - Druggist, Accessory or Hardware, 50c, 1.00. Or send direct to the Laboratory for a supply by return mail, postpaid.

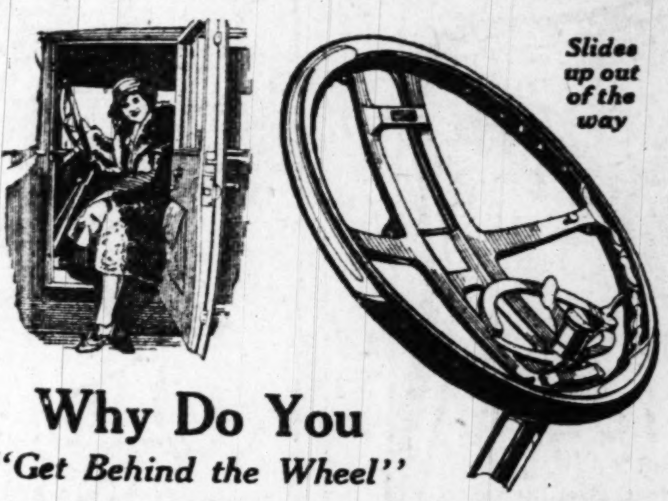
CHEVROLET INAUGURATES UNIQUE WINDOW DISPLAY

An innovation in the sale of motor cars has been inaugurated by the Chevrolet Motor Co. in its retail branch store in the General Motors Building at Detroit. The company has started an elaborate scheme of window dressing, similar to that of a department store, and it will be continued each month with a seasonal display.

PAIGE ROPORTS NEW AUGUST SALES RECORD

The Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. reports that during the first 15 days of August they built and sold upwards of 2000 automobiles which is more than 20 per cent increase over the business which the company ever had in the same period in any month in any year. The new record is a 400 per cent increase over the same half month of 1921.



Slides up out of the way

Why Do You

when looking over a new car? Because you want to know about its driving comfort! And, now that you stop to think of it, you usually must slide and twist to get behind the wheel.

Your auto dealer can eliminate this discomfort by equipping the car with a Neville "More-Room" Steering Wheel. Simply push it up out of the way and you walk in and out with ease. Big and handsome of black walnut and polished aluminum. Made for every make. Insist on having one on your new or present car.

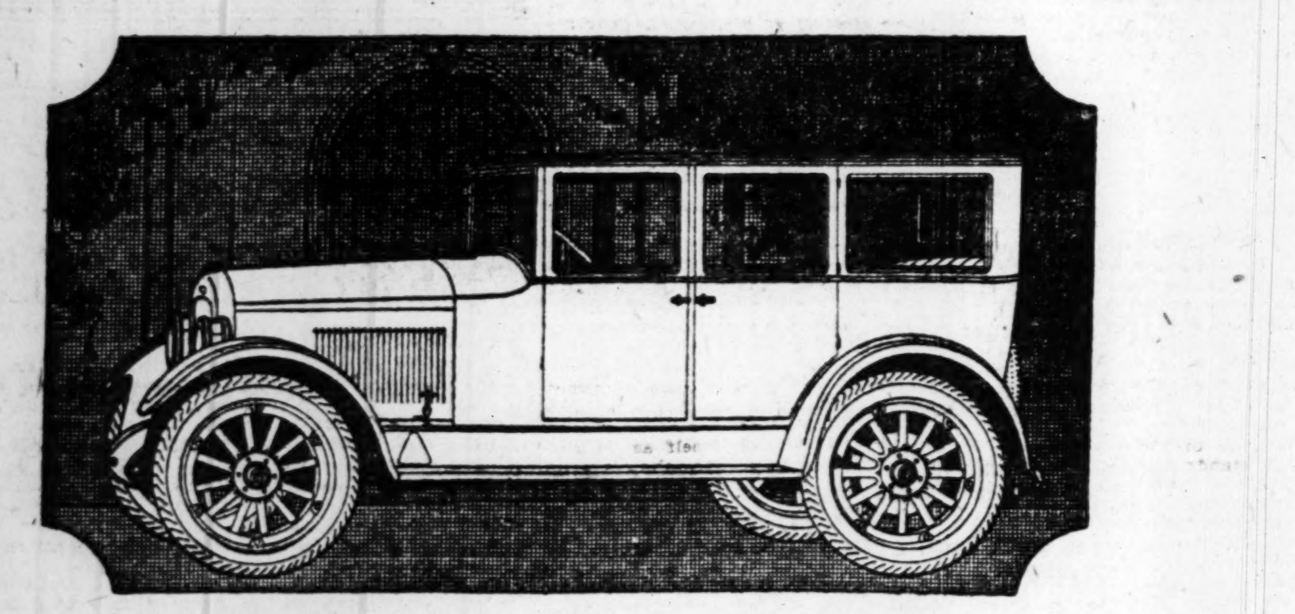
A New Standard of Value



Six Cylinders—Four Doors—$1465

Take a look at the Jewett Sedan in the illustration. Have you ever seen smarter lines—more distinctive appearance?

Then remember that it has an all metal body with four doors and the best of coach work. That means no embarrassing rattles or squeaks.

Inside you will find soft, inviting upholstery—broad seats—all those appointments that spell comfort and pride of ownership.

Up under the hood is a fifty horse power, six cylinder motor offering vast reserve power and the smoothest of riding qualities.

Under the body is a superb chassis—as strong as fine engineering can make it—designed and endorsed by the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company.

Could you ask for anything more in appearance, comfort, power and dependability. Then try to realize that all this can be yours for $1465 f. o. b. Detroit.

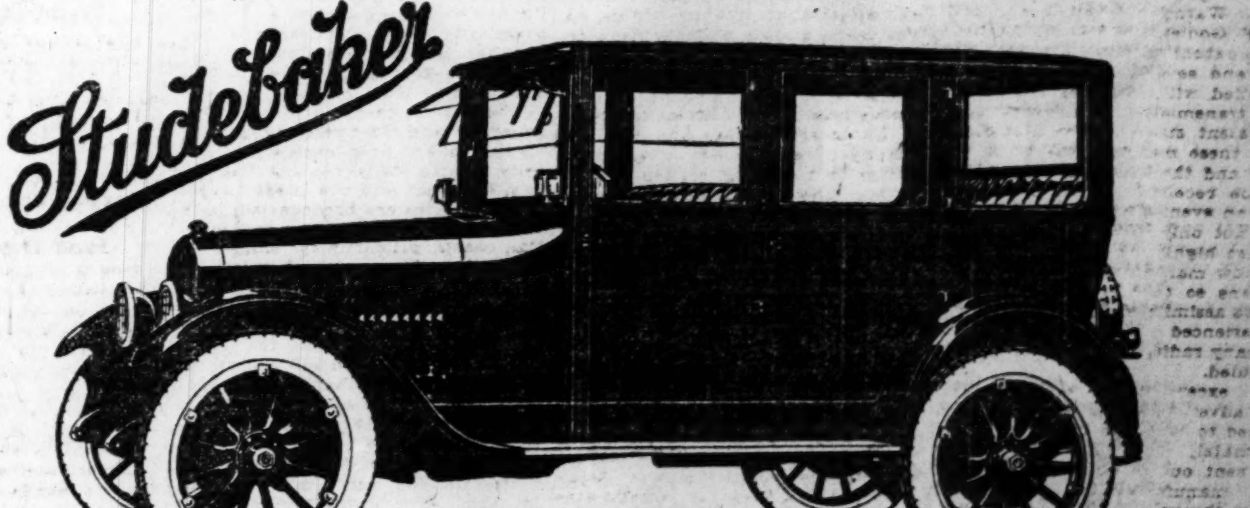
Studebaker



Light-Six Sedan

$1550

THE body of the Studebaker Light-Six Sedan is built in Studebaker plants. So is the chassis. That means complete manufacture by Studebaker. That saves the middlemen's profits.

The result is large economies which Studebaker is now offering to the customer in a new low price of $1550 for the Light-Six Sedan. The lowest price for which it has ever sold and the lowest at which a car of such quality was ever offered.

The materials entering into the manufacture of the Light-Six Sedan are the finest that money can buy. The workmanship is unsurpassed. The performance, comfort, economy and all-round satisfaction of the Light-Six, as well as its high resale value, are recognized everywhere.

The Light-Six Sedan is handy to drive because of its convenient wheel base. Its lack of vibration and quiet, smooth operation and its special equipment will appeal to you.

The Light-Six Sedan has no competitor in the value you get for your money—a Six for the price of a Four, yet a superior kind of performance that you won't find in a Four.

Four doors that swing wide open; dome light; mohair velvet plush upholstery; cowl ventilator; side coach lamps; rain visor and windshield wiper; eight-day clock; thief-proof transmission lock.

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR

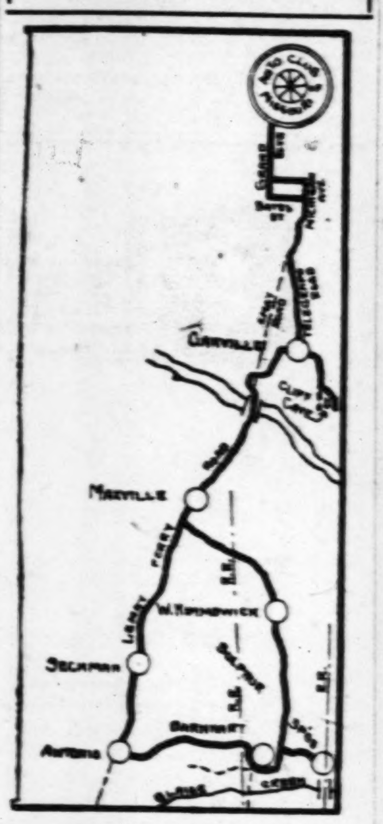
COUNTY FAIRS ARE OF AID TO AUTO DEALERS

Automobile manufacturers are unanimous in their agreement that the state and county fairs which are now being held in every section of the United States are of specific value to the automobile industry, especially from the viewpoint of the local automobile dealer.

The idea of the state and county fair, although considerably older than the automobile industry, has prospered and expanded into a really vital American institution since the first mechanically successful automobile, driven by Elwood Haynes, chugged its way along a country road in 1894. Having its inception, for the most part, in a week of fun and merrymaking, the state and county fairs have gradually developed into an educative feature, where the products of the particular state or county are exhibited and explained to the thousands of visitors.

With the advent of the automobile, a new attraction was added, and today finds the automobile exhibition one of the strongest and most interesting of the features of every fair.

ROUTE TO CLIFF CAVE



TOUR SOUTH OF CITY OVER FAIR ROADS

64-Mile Jaunt Takes in Cliff Cave and Sulphur Springs.

A motor jaunt to the south of the city taking in Cliff Cave and Sulphur Springs is offered motorists as the nineteenth of a series of Sunday automobile trips by the Post-Dispatch and the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

This jaunt is approximately 64 miles in length and over roads that are fair in dry weather but a bit soggy immediately after a heavy rain.

The route is via Michigan and Ivory avenues as far as the Telegraph road which is followed as far as Oakville, where the route turns left to Cliff Cave. Upon leaving Cliff Cave you retrace the same route as far as Oakville, where the Baumgartner road is followed as far as the Lemay Ferry road.

The Lemay Ferry road is then traversed as far as Maxwell, where you turn left on to the Old State road which is followed through West Kimmswick on to Sulphur Springs.

From Sulphur Springs you return on the Old State road and continue on to Antonio where you pick up the Lemay Ferry road and head back to the city, passing through Seckman and Maxwell.

The complete log of the jaunt which starts and ends at the Auto Club is as follows:

246,600 MOTOR VEHICLES BUILT DURING JULY

Shipping reports to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, 90 per cent complete, indicate that July shipments from all factories will reach a total of 28,412 carloads, 28,022 driveways and 6855 boat.

On this basis it is estimated that 246,600 passenger cars and trucks were produced by all makers in July, exceeding July, 1921, by 39 per cent, and the best previous July (in 1920) by 20 per cent. The decrease under June, of 14 per cent, is seasonal and expected. This is a record for production in July and is the third largest single month's production in the history of the industry, being exceeded only by the two preceding months.

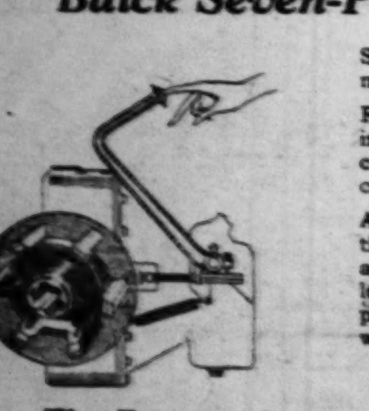
Buick Seven-Passenger Touring—$1435

Sweeping refinements in motor, chassis, body and equipment mark the Buick seven-passenger open car for 1923.

Re-designing has brought the car's height down several inches with no sacrifice of head-room; an entirely new cantilever spring suspension provides a degree of riding comfort unexcelled.

Above the windshield is a visor of distinctive design, there is a cowl ventilator, a gasoline gauge on the dash, a rear-view mirror, a transmission lock, the shifting lever has been extended. The entire car shows a completeness of equipment not to be found elsewhere within a thousand dollars of its price.

The Buick Line for 1923 comprises fourteen models: Fours—2 Pass. Roadster, $865; 5 Pass. Touring, $885; 3 Pass. Coupe, $1175; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1395; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1325. Sixes—2 Pass. Roadster, $1175; 5 Pass. Touring, $1195; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1935; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1985; 4 Pass. Coupe, $1895; 7 Pass. Touring, $1435; 7 Pass. Sedan, $2195; Sport Roadster, $1625; Sport Touring, $1675. Prices f. o. b. Flint.



The Famous Buick Clutch

A finger's pressure disengages the Buick clutch yet the clutch is absolutely positive in its action. The clutch in all 1923 models has been still further improved by making the clutch hub a drop forging with ground bearing surfaces, instead of malleable iron.

CHANDLER ANNOUNCES KHAKI-TOP ROADSTER

The khaki-topped Special Roadster just brought out by the Chandler Motor Car Co. brings the number of Chandler six models up to 11.

A maroon body trimmed with polished aluminum and nickel, black individual fenders, wire wheels and khaki top gives the Special Roadster a colorful harmony.

The rear deck is embellished with polished aluminum bars that conform to the gracefully curved body and afford protection when the easily handled top is lowered.

The new model has a low khaki top and visor and beveled glass wind wings combined with comfortably arranged seat.

Distinctive style feature include the imposing nickel-shelled Chandler radiator, nickel-rimmed barrel-type head lamps, with miniatures of identical design on the cowl, and individual cast aluminum steps. The Special Roadster is founded on the standard Chandler six chassis.

GIVE CAR ON RIGHT THE "RIGHT OF WAY"

Many Fatal Auto Accidents Can Be Avoided if Drivers Adhere to Code.

If every automobile driver will adhere strictly to the code of giving the car on the right the right of way, many of the fatal automobile accidents that shock the readers of the daily papers every day can be avoided.

This is the opinion of Dai H. Lewis, acting executive chairman of the American Automobile Association, who has been studying driving regulations for many years.

"No automobile driver should be compelled to watch both sides of the street," said Mr. Lewis. "The rule of the road, both in the city and in the open country, is that the driver on the right has the right of way, and there should be a severe punishment for any person who violates that rule.

"The increasing number of automobiles that congest traffic in the cities brings more and more to the front the question of right of way. Most cities provide in their ordinances that the A. A. A. system of giving the road to the man on the right, except on through boulevards, shall be effective, but unfortunately it is not always observed. There is always the fellow who is willing to 'take a chance' in order to display his driving skill, or to 'show off' before some fair companion, and this type of driver should be the target for every policeman's attention.

"Automobile driving should be a pleasure. There is seldom an occasion where extreme haste is necessary, and the motorist loses mighty few seconds in observing the rights of the man on the right. After you reach the hospital or morgue, it doesn't matter much who had the right of way, but a little patience would avoid many a run for the ambulance and many an operation for the surgeon, as well as considerable physical pain for the driver who forgot to consider the other fellow's right to the right of way."

JOHNSON AUTO CO. BUYS NEW BUILDING

The Johnson Automobile Company, St. Louis' oldest Ford dealer, yesterday purchased the large residence and lot at 3702 and 3706 Washington boulevard which is to be used by the company as a Washington boulevard entrance to their main sales and service building at 3667 Olive street.

With the new purchase the company now has a total of over 65,000 square feet of floor space. The main building which is now under reconstruction and was originally the hom of the Ford branch in St. Louis contains 24,000 square feet of floor space while the large service lot adjoining the building on the east has a total of 21,000 square feet of floor space and the new Washington boulevard has approximately the same floor area.

GOODYEAR SETS NEW SALES RECORD IN JUNE

As a striking index of improving business conditions the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. in its semiannual statement issued this week reports a larger number of automobile tires sold during June than in any month in the history of the company.

Citing the fact that production and sales for the half-year ending June 30, 1922, had materially exceeded those of the same period last year, President E. G. Wilmer's report adds, "Goodyear sold and delivered 779,590 automobile tires in the month of June, 1922. This is a new high record in Goodyear history and exceeds the previous monthly peak record of 724,948, in the month of March, 1920.

RICKENBACKER ADMITTED TO NATIONAL CHAMBER

Directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in meeting recently voted to admit to membership the Rickenbacker Motor Co. of Detroit, Mich. The N. A. C. C. is the governing body of American automotive manufacturers.

It was said the Rickenbacker company had not only complied with the stringent requirements of the chamber's membership qualifications but that it had far exceeded the minimum production.

A truck, when properly handled, becomes an important factor in the advancement of humanity. Any discourtesy committed lessens the truck's economical prestige.

"A CAR FOR EVERY FAMILY IN AMERICA"

"Population used to be the point to which automobile statisticians related their predictions of 'saturation.' Today with one motor vehicle to every 10 persons in the United States there seems to be a fallacy in the problem of saturation predicated on population," said F. E. Bradfield, vice president of the Velie Motors Corporation. "Iowa alone expects to have one car registered for every 5.2 persons by the end of the year. California has a car for every 5.3 persons. In the Middle Western states as a group there is a car for every 7.7 persons.

"A more logical proposition would be to relate the number of cars to the nation's wealth. When it is considered that with all its billions of wealth in use, the United States still has an untapped wealth of 150 billions, the point of car saturation appears to be a long way off.

"For our country's prosperity means cars—and more cars. There is no utility comfort, convenience or luxury that ranks higher in the esteem of Americans. And justly so. The car has done and is doing more to develop our country socially, commercially—in every way—than any other one factor. A good car for every family in the country is a distribution that may well be desired."

What quality can compare with the Dependability of the CADILLAC

THE man who has owned a Type 61 Cadillac for any length of time, and experienced its wonderful efficiency and dependability, is vastly more interested in its performance than in any other consideration.

He realizes every day he drives it that he has a motor car which he need not fear will fail him, and which he can rely upon to accomplish any transportation-task he may impose upon it.

He feels uniformly secure in contemplating its power, its acceleration, its dependability, its comfort and road-restfulness and any other features for which the Cadillac is admittedly famous.

This confidence-inspiring performance, he believes, is the most desirable and valuable quality in a motor car—the quality which nothing else can equal, and for whose absence nothing else could possibly compensate him.

He is quite sure that it is developed to a higher and more satisfying degree in the Type 61 than in any other automobile he has ever owned or investigated.

Consequently, he is firmly and inalienably attached to his Cadillac.

He considers Type 61 the greatest motor car performer in the world, and believes that its unequalled dependability stamps it the world's greatest motor car value.

MOTOR TRUCKS IMPROVES BUSINESS IN WEST

Proof that both the farmers and commercial houses of the West are finding the motor trucks their greatest aid in business is sighted by Vance Day, sales manager of the General Motors Truck Co. of Pontiac, Mich.

"In an effort to get quicker service from the farmers," Mr. Day says, "a creamery company in Iowa has adopted a new means, in a marketing program of paying a premium for cream gathered by truck." Although the new plan has been in force less than a month, the creamery is receiving four times as much cream as formerly, and of a much better quality, it is claimed. It was also shown that an average of 3600 pounds of butter are now being made weekly by the company.

It is also claimed that the company has found that their products arrive at the creamery in a much better condition, due to the speed and facility with which it is handled, as compared with the former method of using horse and team to care for this work.

It is his contention that the truck is becoming more and more popular with the farmers of the Northwest. Mr. Day points to the latest figures of the U. S. Bureau of Census, which shows that in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska more than 33,000 trucks are in daily use on the farm.

NEW TYPE MILK TRUCK INTRODUCED BY PEVELY

A new type of milk truck with a capacity of 1250 gallons of milk will be put into operation by the Pevely Milk Co. this week between Vandalia, Ill., and the company's plant in St. Louis.

The new truck, which is a five-ton White chassis, is equipped with a glass-lined, steel-welded tank with a two-inch cork installation and has a galvanized hood covering the entire tank. A rack for surplus milk cans has been provided on each side of the tank. The body is the product of the Elyria Enameling Tank Co. of Elyria, O.

COURTESY CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED BY A. A. A.

Co-operating with the Chicago Automobile Trade Association and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the American Automobile Association is launching a campaign among its members for more courtesy between automobile drivers The A. A. A. feels that the motorist is already overburdened with multitudinous traffic regulations, many of which it is practically impossible to avoid breaking at times. The association feels that more courtesy among drivers of motor vehicles would tend to eliminate much of this breaking of regulations.

Careful study over a period of years has convinced officials of the A. A. A. that minor accidents are in certain circumstances unavoidable and it is felt that a little additional courtesy between drivers whose cars are involved in such accidents would go far toward eliminating a large percentage of friction and trouble that now follows such events.

"There is a certain fraternal bond among men who drive automobiles," said Dai H. Lewis, acting executive chairman of the A. A. A., "and this fraternal bond could be largely emphasized through a little additional courtesy. Accidents occur at social functions, at theaters and in fact in every place where the public meets, and courtesy and good breeding prevents the least suspicion of trouble.

"The largest public gathering in the world is that of automobile drivers on the highways of the nation, and certainly the same courtesy that prevails in other walks of life should prevail here. A few softly spoken words when a minor accident does occur would often turn a potential lawsuit into a life-time friendship, for there is nothing that draws men together like a willigness to assume the blame, even when one knows that one is not entirely at fault. I believe that the automobile courtesy campaign now being launched by the A. A. A. in co-operation with the Chicago Automobile Trade Association and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce will go further toward making the roads and streets of our country safe for both motorist and pedestrian than all the laws that could possibly be evolved."

"Never before have so many tires been made and sold as now," says Mr. Louis Wyner of the Universal Tire Co., Michelin tire distributers, who points out that records of 1920, the banner tire year, are now being exceeded month after month.

"This is due," says Wyner, "to the remarkable reductions in costs which have been made by the leaders in the tire industry, exceeding the achievements of most if not all other industries.

FOODSTUFFS EXPORTS SHOW SHARP FALL

Department of Commerce Says Decrease Means Slow Return to Pre-War Status.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Foodstuffs exported during July declined sharply, according to foreign trade reports issued today by the Department of Commerce. Grain exported during the month aggregated $46,000,000, as compared with $64,000,000 July a year ago, while for the seven months ended with July grain shipments aggregated $275,000,000, against $460,000,000 during the same months of 1921.

Exports of meat for July amounted to $13,000,000, as against $16,000,000 last year, while for the seven-month period the total was $78,000,000, compared with $100,000,000 during the corresponding months of last year.

Exports of wheat for July aggregated 15,000,000 bushels, worth $20,000,000, against 25,000,000, worth $37,000,000, in July a year ago.

Flour exports for the month totaled 921,000 barrels, at $54,000,000, against 1,000,000 barrels, at $9,000,000, a year ago.

Corn shipments for the month aggregated 14,000,000 bushels, at $11,000,000, against 15,000,000 bushels at $11,000,000 a year ago.

Exports of oats in July aggregated 4,000,000 bushels, at $2,000,000, against 263,000 bushels at $134,000 a year ago.

Rice exports for the month aggregated 29,000,000 pounds, at $1,000,000, against 63,000,000 pounds at $2,000,000 a year ago.

Rye exports for July aggregated 2,000,000 bushels at $3,000,000, against 931,000 bushels at $1,000,000 a year ago.

The general decline in the exports of meat and meat products for July and for the seven-month period, the department said, is a tendency which has been noted for some time. "Most of these adjustments," the statement said, "are in accord with what has been anticipated in the trend of foodstuffs trade and they indicate in general the slow return to pre-war conditions which should be expected in the export trade with Europe."

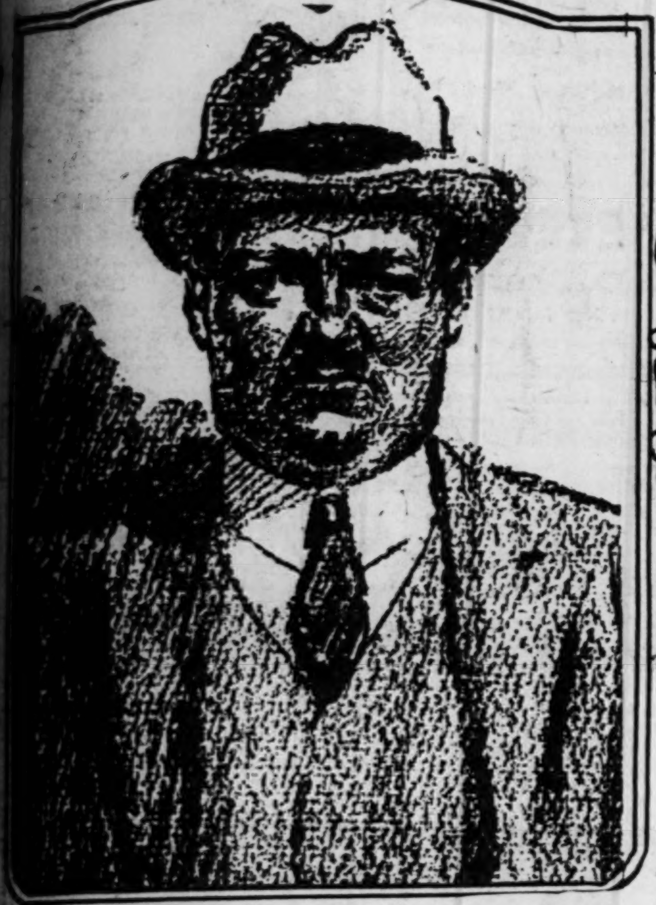
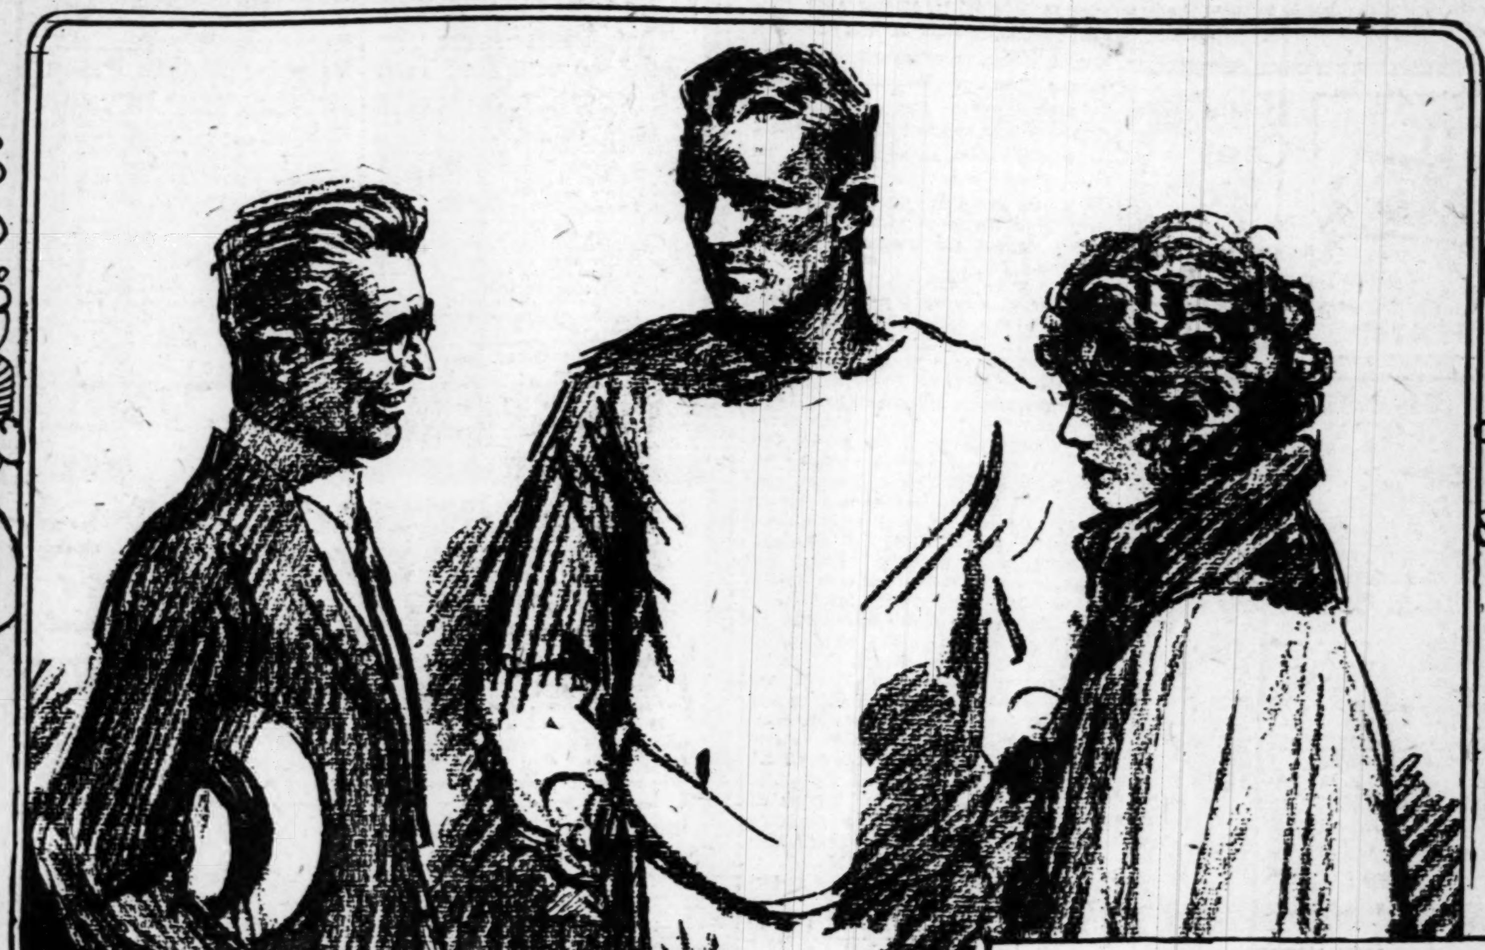
BETTER LATE THAN NEVER

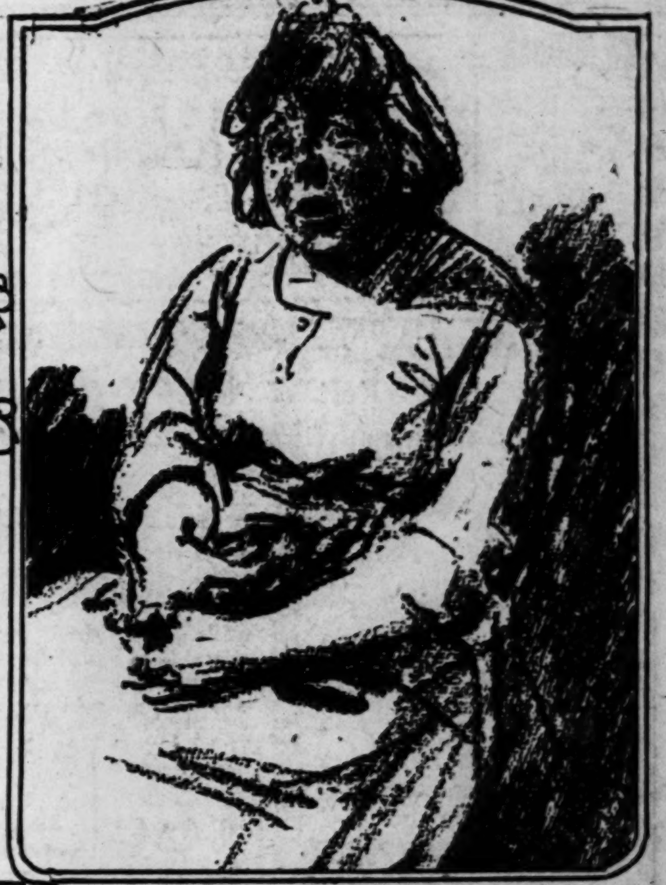
By W. E. Hill



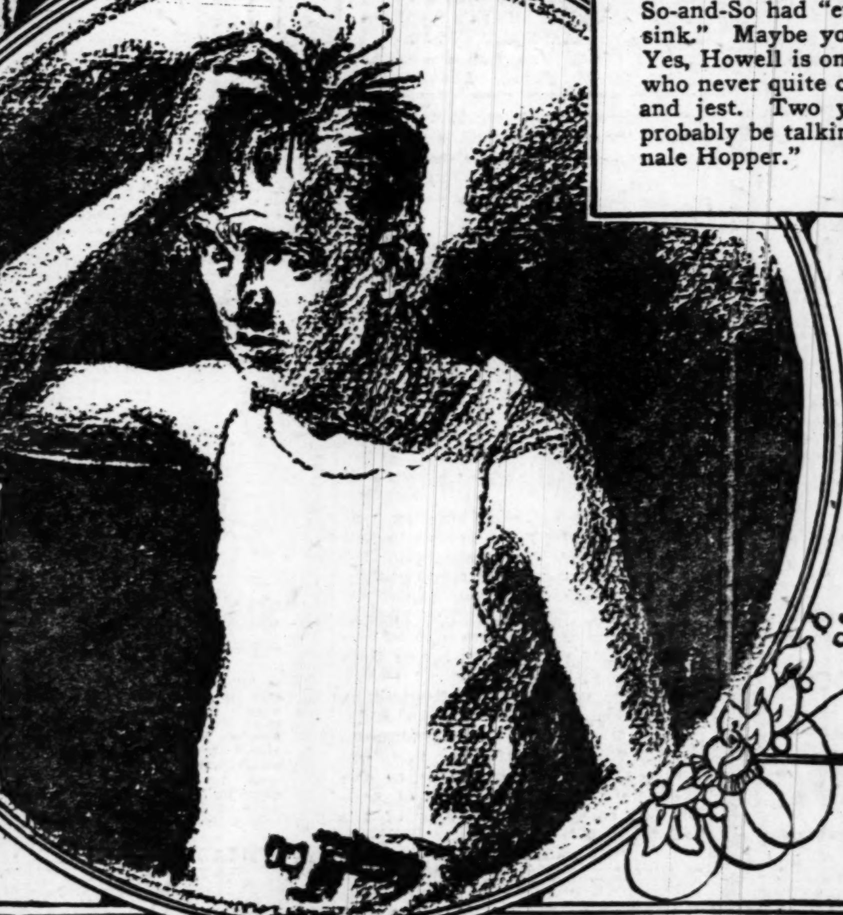
The man who never thinks of the snappy comeback in time has a hard life. He's always figuring out what he should have told Morris when Morris wanted to push the Pittsburg deal, or what he should have said to Mrs. Ronnells, provided, etc., etc., etc.



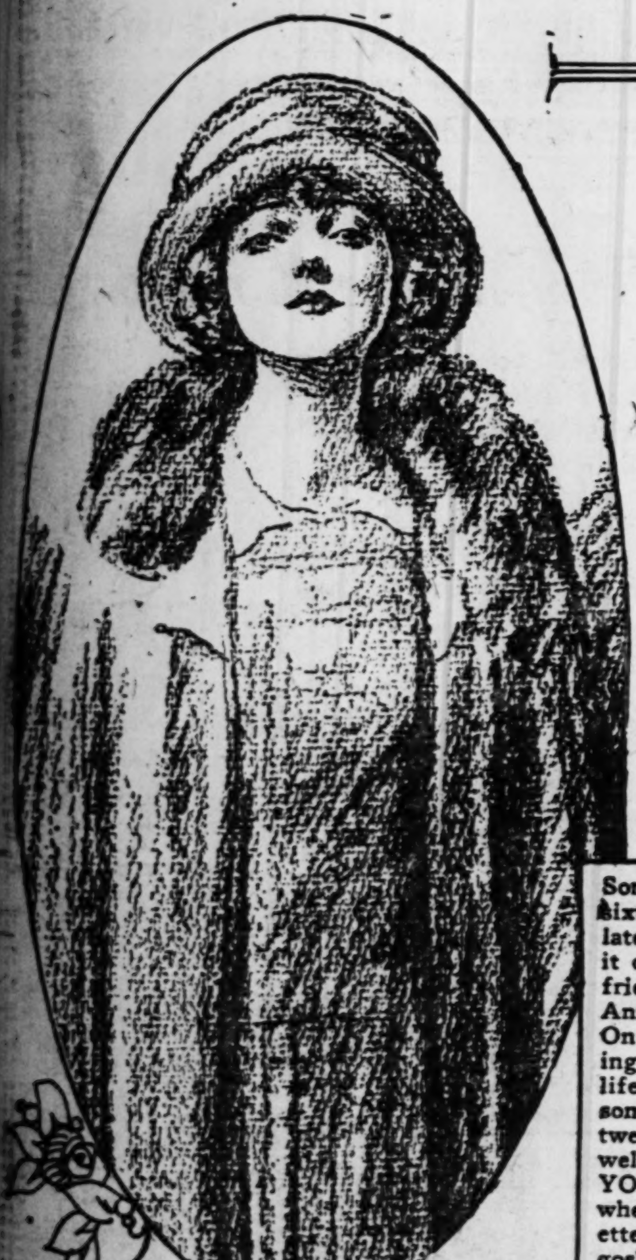
"Well, peoples, the first hundred years is the hardest they say! We should worry." Howell is the original comic boy. Just LISTEN to him! Pretty soon he will be saying that Mrs. So-and-So had "everything on but the kitchen sink." Maybe you've guessed it by this time. Yes, Howell is one of those unfortunate jokers who never quite catch up with the current gibe and jest. Two years from now Howell will probably be talking on "Mad Money" and "Finale Hopper."



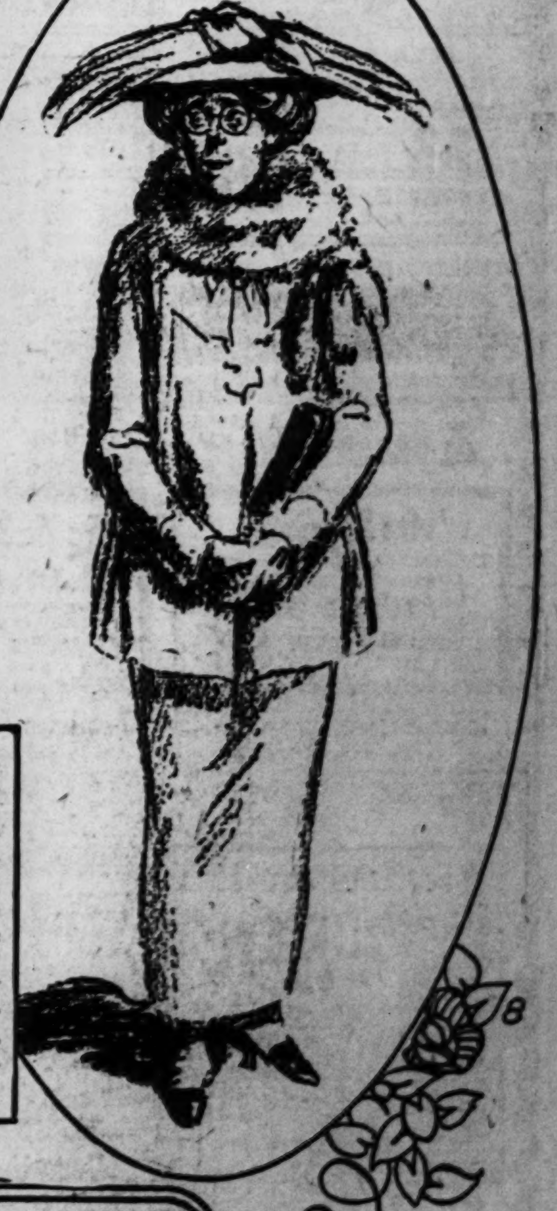
Olga never gets the tunes until a year or so after they have ceased to be very popular, and then she gets them hard. You'd think her little throat would burst. This morning she's cleaning the insides out of a broiler and taking "The Love Nest" on high.



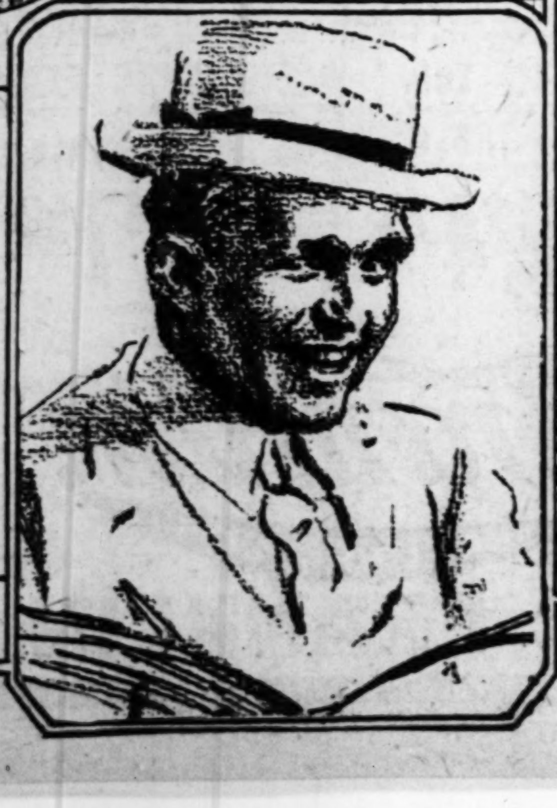
Of course a man is only as old as he feels—when he has his hat on—but it is a tragical moment for Ethelbert when he discovers too late that his hair is thinning out on top. He knows that all flappers are convinced that a man whose hair is thin on top is a villain. The movies told them so. Now Ethelbert is frantically trying to cover up the fatal defect with a bottle of hair tonic highly recommended by testimonial writing pianists



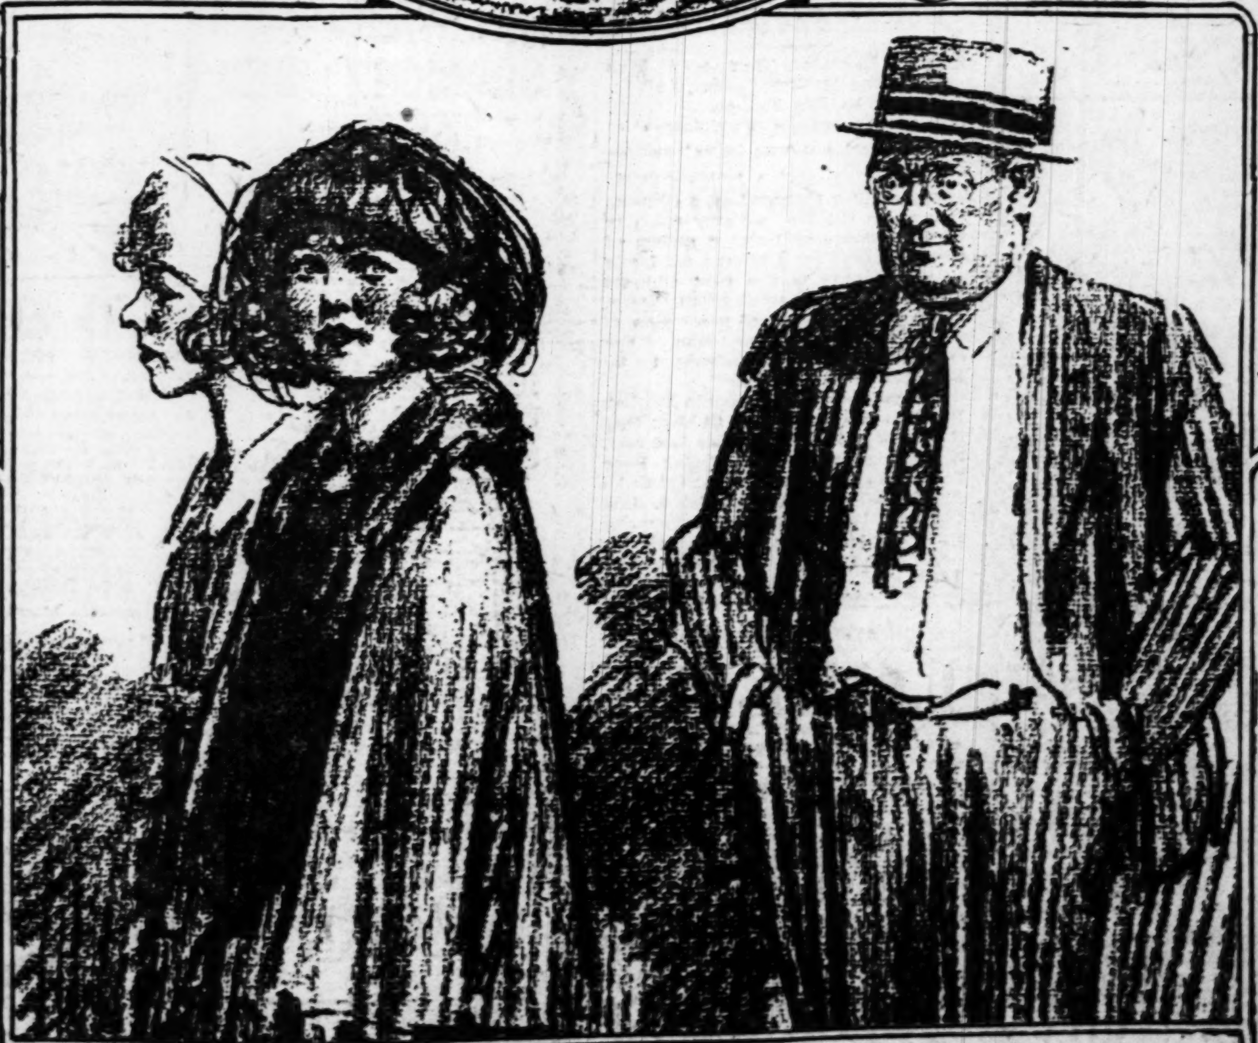
Some people have a sixth sense for being late. Especially when it comes to meeting a friend at lunch time. Annette is like that. On time means nothing in her gay young life—if she gets there some time during the twenty-four hours, well and good. But if YOU dare to be late when meeting Annette! Oh, gee! Oh, gosh!



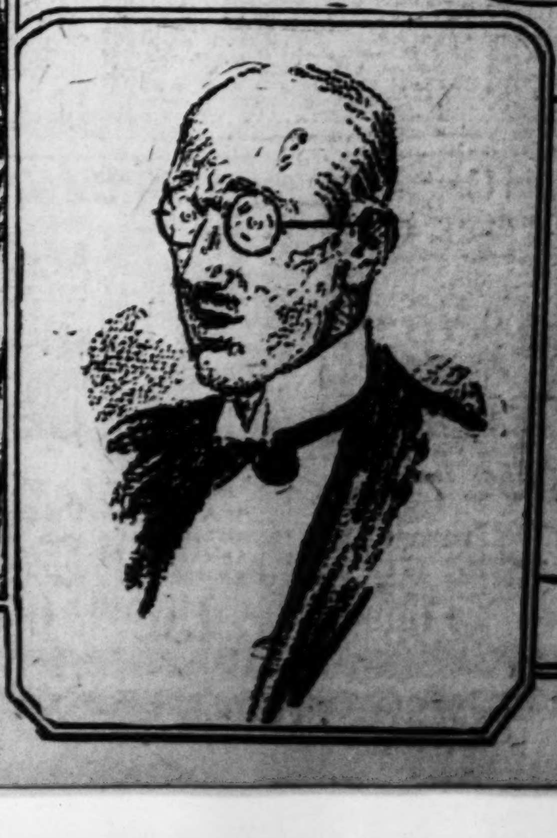
Cousin Delight Bascomb is awfully conservative, so to speak, about dress. Style may not get to her until it ceases to be style, but on the other hand, why take up anything until time has proved its worth? For instance, if five or six years from now bobbed hair stands the test, Cousin Delight will, maybe, bob her hair.



Say what you will, there's no enjoyment like the enjoyment of the man who gets the point of the funny yarn a little bit late. You will see him giggling to himself all the way home.



The man who marries a little bit late in life wants them young. The older he is the younger she'll have to be. And if he can find one that's cute in the bargain, with maybe a little lisp—OH, BOY!



"What was that? What was that she said to the little fella?" Something really ought to be done about the man who sits next you at the musical show and is just a little late on getting the jokes. They have to sink in gradually—but, oh, so gradually, and unless frowned on heavily he'll expect you to help.

$5000 REWARD

Will be paid to anyone who can prove to us that they have ever seen as good a show as "The Broadway Flappers," the sensational burlesque show which plays a week's engagement at the Gayety Theater this week. Don't miss this show! Two frolics daily 2:15 and 8:15. Prices, 18c to 68c! If you don't come to the Gayety you are missing one of the real joys of living in good old St. Louis! Why don't you get up a party? Phone for good seats.

GRAND JURY INQUIRY IN ELECTION HINTED

Cases of Discharged Election Clerks to Be Considered if Fraud Is Indicated.

The cases of Otto Ens, 3939 Greer avenue, and E. R. Hicks, 4231 Easton avenue, clerks in the Election Board office, discharged Thursday by the Election Commissioners, will be placed before the grand jury if evidence is submitted to show intent to falsify election returns, Acting Circuit Attorney Johnston told Chairman John B. Edwards yesterday, after Edwards submitted facts which caused the board to dismiss the men.

They were dismissed Thursday night at the conclusion of the recount in the successful contest of Charles H. Turpin, negro, against Robert E. Walker for the Republican nomination for the constableship, Fourth District. Walker had been credited with 198 votes through glaring errors made by clerks in the Election Commissioners' office in tabulating returns. Ens, Republican clerk, and Hicks, Democratic clerk, called off the vote from tally sheets to clerks who transcribed the abstract used in making official returns, which gave Walker a majority of 39. They denied any intentional error, but were held responsible, as they were said to be the only clerks handling the tally sheets.

Johnston, assistant to Circuit Attorney Sidener, and acting in the absence of Sidener, told Edwards conclusive evidence of intent to falsify election returns would have to be submitted. The Election Commissioners will present a full report of their findings in various primary election irregularities early this week.

Recounts in other contests growing out of the primary election Aug. 1 will be made by the Election Commissioners, starting tomorrow.

Harry W. McChesney, defeated by Crittenden E. Clark, negro, for the Republican nomination for Justice of the Peace, Fourth District, which result was not changed after a recount based on fraud charges by McChesney, yesterday filed a second contest attacking Clark's qualifications as a candidate. McChesney charges Clark was not a qualified elector in the Fourth District May 31, last, at which time Clark filed his declaration of candidacy, but, instead, was a qualified elector in Ward 27, Precinct 17, in the Eighth District. A hearing on the protest will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

In his declaration Clark gave his residence in Ward 6, Precinct 4. Books of the Election Commissioners, McChesney charges, show Clark applied for a transfer to Ward 6, Precinct 4, on June 7, last, and voted in Ward 27, Precinct 17, in a school tax election March 28, 1922. McChesney charges Clark is ineligible as a candidate and says his name should be substituted for Clark's on the November election ballot, as he received the next highest number of votes.

The Election Commissioners will begin a recount tomorrow in the contest of John Eyermann, defeated by Ed Hoffmeister for the Republican nomination for the constableship, First District. Hoffmeister won on the face of the official returns by 238 votes. The board then will take up the contest of Frank Matousek, who lost the Republican nomination for the constableship, Second District, to Harry Lohmann by 12 votes. Lohmann has announced that he will apply to the Surpeme Court for a writ of prohibition to prevent opening of the ballot boxes.

CHINESE FARMER CHARGED IN WARRANT WITH DRY VIOLATION

Prisoner Explains That Still Was Medicine Making Legacy Left by His Father.

A warrant charging violation of the Volstead act was issued yesterday by United States Commissioner Atkins against George Lee, a Chinese farmer on the Hall's Ferry road, in whose home a still and a gallon of whisky were found by the St. Louis police. George is the first Chinese "moonshiner" arrested in St. Louis, and his explanation of possession of the still stamps him as being of the type of "Chinese" designated by Bret Harte as "peculiar."

George protested in pidgin English that the still "no belong to him; that it belong to his father who had used it for long time make medicine. Poor father die year ago. No think he die from moonshine medicine. Just die, and leave George still to make more medicine so George no die."

He was released under a bond of $1000.

ECZEMA

Also called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

I believe eczema can be cured to stay. I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and NOT merely patched up to return again. Remember, I make this statement after handling nearly a half million cases of eczema and devoting 12 years of my life to its treatment. I don't care what all you have used nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured—all I ask is just a chance to prove my claims. If you write me TODAY I will send you a FREE TRIAL of mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will surely convince you as it has me. If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you really thought this world held for you. Just try it, and I feel sure you will agree with me.

7000-ACRE COAL LEASE CLOSED

Chicago Concern Agrees to Mine Minimum of 19,000,000 Tons.

A contract by which the Southern Gem Coal Corporation of Chicago will lease for 25 years from the Willis Coal and Mining Co. of St. Louis, 7000 surface acres of two-vein coal property in Perry and Randolph counties in Illinois, for which negotiations began six months ago, was completed with the end of the coal strike in Illinois.

The Chicago concern agreed to mine a minimum of 19,000,000 tons in the period of the lease. The property includes two mines, and the lessor contracted to open a new 5000-ton shaft. The St. Louis company will continue to operate its three other mines on its 8000 acres in the vicinity of Sparta.

TEST MADE OF THE NEW THOMPSON SUB-MACHINE GUN

Weapon Especially Designed for Riot Duty Fires .45-Caliber Pistol Ammunition.

Tests of the new Thompson sub-machine gun, which fires .45-caliber pistol ammunition either in single shots or in bursts, as a machine gun does, have been made by the officers of the 138th (First Missouri) Infantry. A report on the gun will be made to the office of the Adjutant-General of Missouri and it is possible that a number of the guns will be purchased for the various National Guard regiments of the State.

The gun may be fired from a fixed position like an ordinary machine gun, but it is usually fired from the shoulder, or supported by a sling and fired from the hip. Col. C. S. Thornton, commander of the 138th, who tried out the gun on the regiment's rifle range near St. Charles, said that the lightness of the piece and the little recoil in firing were two of the advantages which recommended it.

The gun fires clips containing 20 rounds, or drums of 50 and 100 rounds. The barrel is short and is provided with projecting rings or fins for cooling. The stock and butt which rests against the shoulder in firing are like those on other guns. A grip is provided for the right hand near the trigger, and a second grip for the left hand is farther toward the muzzle of the piece under the barrel. Especially designed for riot duty, the ammunition used does not carry the distance that the service rifle does.

MID-ATLANTIC WEATHER BUREAU IS BEING ADVOCATED BY FRENCH

PARIS, Aug. 26.—A mid-Atlantic weather station, consisting of a specially fitted ship cruising around a designated spot, is strongly advocated by the French meteorological bureau. Col. Delambre, director of the bureau, says:

"A vessel of 2,500 tons capable of both sailing and steaming should cruise around where the transatlantic traffic is greatest to disseminate broadly weather forecasts and news. Such weather forecasting by a floating island would extend by three days the French, Spanish and British forecasts.

"Moreover, such an island station would be priceless for centralizing all the weather observations taken by the 300 ships, of more than 500 tons each, which, on the average, are cruising the Atlantic at the same time. It would also be a relay for transatlantic radio traffic."

The annual cost of maintaining such a floating weather station is estimated at 3,000,000 paper francs (about $600,000 normally).

So agreeably surprised were we at the wonderful amount of large orders we have received from our weekly advertisement run in last Sunday's paper, that we have decided to give St. Louis and her surrounding territory another opportunity to get in on this wonderful special of Delmar Club Canned Goods. "Yes, Madam," the quality is superior to any other brand, not only in St. Louis, but in the United States. Mr. K. V. Moll, who has exclusive charge of this department, has spent his lifetime—from a little boy he was taught by the old school, the best factories and packers in the whole United States and Canada, where quality could be obtained. This has been a lifetime study with Mr. Moll. He is proud of the fact that he is a Delmar Club man.

READ CAREFULLY, Mrs. Housewife, these prices. Load your pantry to its utmost capacity, as this is a wonderful opportunity to save money. PRICES GOOD ONE WEEK. All orders over $15.00 will be delivered within a reasonable distance in the city and close-by suburbanites. Out-of-town customers, mail or money order—or certified check—should accompany all orders.

Church Robbers in Russia Captured.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Aug. 2.—Valuable jewels stripped from the historic icon of the Iberian Virgin by robbers who broke into the famous Iberian chapel at the gates of the Red Square on April 7, have been recovered by the Moscow police. Thirty members of a gang who looted many churches, chapels and convents before and during the Government requisition of church treasures have been arrested, and loot valued at many millions of dollars has been recovered. The jewels from the Iberian icon alone were estimated to be worth nearly $3,000,000.

SWEDISH INDUSTRIAL RECOVERY IS SHOWN BY TRADE FIGURES

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 8.—That Sweden has definitely survived the post-war crisis, and is one of the first nations in Europe to show a natural and consistent recovery, appears from the monthly report on the foreign trade of this country during June.

The export of timber and sawn wood, a staple commodity, has grown so rapidly that the volume is now 97 per cent of the peace-time figures. At the end of June the timber sales were close to 600,000 standards, which is considerably more than half of the normal yearly output. The export of matches is 95 per cent of the pre-war normal and it is encouraging that the export of iron ore has even surpassed pre-war figures by 3 per cent. As regards wood pulp and paper, which America buys from Sweden in large quantities, the figures for the month exceed the 1913 figures for the corresponding month by 18 to 72 per cent. It is reported that one reason why the quotations on sulphite pulp are high is the increased demand from the United States for the manufacture of artificial silk. News print, which is shipped in great volume to America, shows an export figure 72 per cent above that of 1913.

A similar indication of prosperity is seen in the increased imports of raw material needed for Swedish industries. American dealers in copper will be interested to know that Sweden's imports of that metal have reached 84 per cent of the pre-war figures.

Boy, 12, Saves 3 Girls from Drowning

By the Associated Press.

NEVADA, Mo., Aug. 26.—A 12-year-old boy here several days ago saved three little girls from drowning. His name is Wilford Haunschild. He has been cited for bravery. He arrived just in time to rescue all three of the girls. Two of them had hurried to the rescue of a third little girl who ventured too far from the bank and the two others were themselves beyond their depth when Wilford arrived.

2500 Reclaimed Army Blankets

As Good As New—All Wool and In Khaki Color

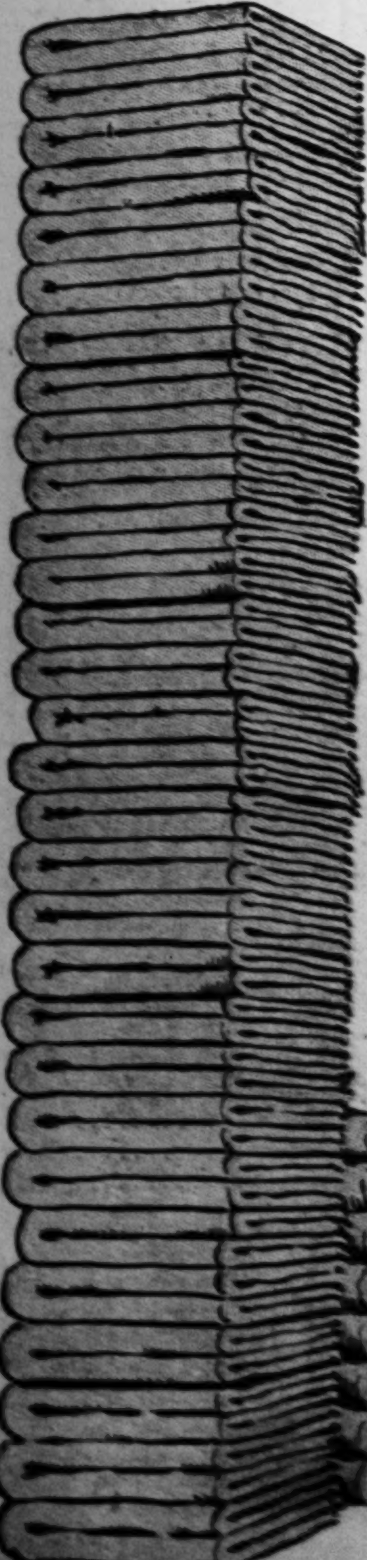
Large Twin Bed Size and Can Therefore Be Used for Double Bed



¶ We guarantee these Blankets all to be in perfect condition.

¶ You cannot buy the cheapest kind of a cotton Blanket at this price. But because of a fortunate purchase, we can offer these guaranteed ALL-WOOL reclaimed Army Blankets without restriction as to the number you want up to the entire lot at $2.75.

¶ Think what an opportunity this means to the club owner; to the man who has camp cottages which he rents furnished; to the family living in a camp cottage; for use on a sleeping porch or as a spare blanket in the bedroom itself.

¶ These will find many other uses; for instance, tourists will use them as robes, and they are most practical for such use, too.

¶ If you need Blankets for any purpose, you cannot afford to miss this great sale. Buy half a dozen; a dozen—the total cost is little more than you will pay for one wool Blanket that, from the standpoint of serviceability, is practically the same.

Sale Starts Monday Morning at 8:30 in the Blanket Shop—Second Floor

BANKER 100 YEARS OLD RECALLS OLD MEMORIES

John A. Stewart, of New York, Pays Tribute to Federal Reserve Board.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Aug. 26.—John A. Stewart, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the United States Trust Co. of New York, America's oldest banker and patriarch of the trust company fraternity in this country, celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary here at his home today.

Stewart, who was Lincoln's adviser in the Civil War, who came to the rescue of Grover Cleveland in 1894, when the Government's gold reserve was dangerously depleted, and who was president pro tempore of Princeton University for the two years following Woodrow Wilson's election as Governor of New Jersey, does not attribute his long, active life to any particular habit of living.

In Good Physical Condition.

Barring a slight impairment of hearing, Stewart is in fine physical condition.

In recalling today some of his earliest memories, Stewart said that the first President of the United States he saw was Andrew Jackson, who delivered an address at the city hall when he was a boy. He recalled vividly the great fire which almost destroyed New York in 1835. He watched the flames consume the better part of the city from a knoll near what is now Twenty-seventh street and Third avenue.

In touching on banking developments during the last 60 or 70 years, Stewart paid a tribute to the Federal Reserve Board, saying that it had stabilized and strengthened banking conditions throughout the country.

Panic of 1837.

"The first financial panic occurred in 1837, two years after the great fire. I was then still a boy. The next panic occurred in 1857 when I was an officer of the United States Trust Co. The president of one of the largest banks in New York on that occasion went out on his front steps and addressed a crowd of depositors who were eager to withdraw their money. He assured them that his institution would be able to continue specie payments indefinitely, and told them that everything would be all right. The next morning his bank, as well as numerous others, suspended payments and closed its doors. Such panics as that, and those of 1873, 1893, and 1907 are impossible now. These were virtualy national disasters. The State and national banking acts have helped to reduce these old evils, but the establishment of the Federal Reserve Board was the most potent factor. The board and its various governors well merit the confidence of the bankers and the public at large."

Stewart was born on Aug. 26, 1822, in Fulton street, New York City, when the present Wall Street was dotted with green meadows. His father, John Stewart, was born on the Island of Lewis, one of the Hebrides group on the northwest coast of Scotland, while his mother, Mary Aikman, was born in New York City.

When the United State Trust Co. of New York was organized in 1853, as the first American trust company chartered exclusively to render fiduciary service, Stewart became secretary of the company. When Joseph Lawrence, first president of the United States Trust Co. resigned in 1865 because of ill-health Stewart was elected president, then being 43 years of age.

ECONOMY MEASURES TAKEN BY THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 6.—The Sublime Porte is considering seriously the note from the allied high commissioner regarding the reduction of government employes, and it is expected that action will be taken which will make good the monthly deficit of 500,000 Turkish pounds in the wages to government servants.

In addition the Sublime Porte has decided to abolish the legations and consulates in various neutral countries. Some palaces on the Bosphorus will be rented to millionaires.

The economy measures provide for the reductions in the salaries of schoolmasters, hospital nurses, and office boys; the abolition of superfluous government offices and the retirement of a large number of army and navy officers.

A LIFE-LONG
CURE FOR PILES

Persons who are afflicted with Piles are in constant misery. There is especial Danger in such diseases, as you are liable to get Cancer of the Bowels or Consumption.

Piles make a person dread the time when the bowels must operate, as it is always accompanied by the most excruciating pain.

Years ago it was supposed that the only Cure for Piles was to have them cut out. That cure, however, was more painful and dangerous than the disease and many people preferred to suffer along with it.

DR. HENRICH'S PILE TREATMENT

Has demonstrated that the Surgical Operation for Piles is a thing of the past, because the knife nor scissors never did and never will cure Piles permanently. "The Henrich Cure is Safe and Sure"—that's what every man and woman knows that has tried and been Cured by my Mild Medical Method. Read what a Cured Patient says:

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. [illegible], 1920.

W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D.

Dear Doctor—I want to thank you for curing me of a very bad case of Bleeding and Protruding Piles, after using all kinds of medicines and ointments, which did me no earthly good.

Your Treatment is very mild, as I did not have to quit work, hence it did not cause me any pain.

It is surely fine that you can now be permanently cured without undergoing a dangerous surgical operation nor losing any time from your business.

I heartily recommend your wonderful Treatment to all sufferers from any kind of Piles. Respectfully,

EDWARD [illegible], [illegible] La Salle St.

Dr. Henrich's Pile Treatment is effective in all varieties of Piles—Itching Piles, Bleeding Piles, Protruding Piles and Blind Piles. It acts promptly and the cure is for life. Examination and Advice is Free.

Call this week. Room [illegible], of the [illegible] Building, between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN SKIN AND BLEACH FRECKLES

Recipe for a Bleaching Lotion Which Does Not Irritate

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.

RECOGNIZES COUNTERFEIT $10 BILL AS ONE MADE IN 1914

Federal Secret Service Agent Here Recalls Raiding Plant and Sending Two Men to Prison.

Stephen A. Connell, operative in charge of the local bureau of the United States Secret Service, has informed a West End bank that sent him a counterfeit $10 bill, which the bankers believed to be new, that he would not look for the counterfeiters because he knew where they are. They are serving terms in the Leavenworth penitentiary for subsequent counterfeits.

As soon as Connell looked at the bill he recognized it as one that had been made in Enid, Ok., in 1914, by Lee O'Dell, who did a handcuff-escape act in vaudeville, and Martin L. Hamman. Evidently this specimen has been in circulation in and around St. Louis for eight years.

On Nov. 21, 1914, Connell issued a warning to banks to watch for these counterfeits, bearing the name of the Union Bank, Chandler, Ok., the date Nov. 16, 1907, the serial number W-6269 and the picture of President McKinley. Connell arrested O'Dell in St. Louis and Hamman in Enid. The counterfeiting plant and plate were found at Enid, along with 400 of the bills. The prisoners pleaded guilty. They were sentenced in December, 1914, to five years each in the Federal penitentiary. After they had served their terms they were caught counterfeiting in Cincinnati, O., and are now serving five-year terms for that offense.

EXPLOSION FATAL TO FARMER

Joseph Bernaldo, 37 years old, a farmer, died at the city hospital shortly after 2 a. m. yesterday from burns suffered at 8:30 Friday night when he was blown through the door of a shed by an explosion of gasoline, which occurred when he struck a match, on the farm of an Italian near McLaran Station, St. Louis County.

Bernaldo was found with his clothes ablaze and was wrapped in sacks and brought into the city. Policemen were told the shed contained a tank of gasoline from which there had been a leakage. When Bernaldo struck the match the waste gasoline ignited and the blaze spread to the tank. A motor truck in the shed and the structure itself were destroyed.

DR. W. O. COFFEE

Relieving Deafness, Head Noises, Catarrh With New Treatment Wednesday and Thursday.

Dr. W. O. Coffee, the noted specialist, says that catarrh is a constitutional condition, must be treated through the system as well as the nose, head and throat. He says 90% of the cases of deafness, head noises and ulcers of the ears are caused from catarrh. If the hearing is getting better and worse with each cold, or noises gradually getting worse, or one ear is getting real bad and the other just getting started with crackling or other noises, most cases can be helped or completely relieved by his new non-surgical treatment. He treats diseased tonsils, diseased turbinated bones. He treats 50 patients a day here and is making many wonderful cures. J. R. Meyer of East St. Louis, Ill., had catarrh, deafness and head noises 20 years; completely relieved. Mrs. Minnie Schierer, 3210 Pestalozzi st., almost totally deaf, suffered 46 years; hearing being rapidly restored. J. W. Proctor, 3120 Whittier st., almost totally deaf in one ear 26 years; hearing restored almost normal. J. C. Patterson, Elmer, Mo., 86 years old, suffered with catarrh, deafness and head noises 8 years; completely relieved. If you suffer with deafness, head noises or catarrh of the nose, head, throat or system, he wants to examine and explain his new method of treatment to you free of charge. If you cannot come to St. Louis write him for his book on catarrh, deafness, head noises, eye diseases, cross-eyes. He will send it free. He says catarrh often causes stomach trouble, rheumatism, etc. He is in his St. Louis offices, room 409 Odd Fellows' Bldg., 816 Olive st., every Wednesday and Thursday. Hours, 8:30 to 4:30. He will make a special 20% discount on glasses fitted and all operations this month. Don't submit to an operation until you get his opinion.

STOP LAW VIOLATORS MUST PAY

Caulfield Orders Less Leniency Shown Accused Motorists.

City Counselor Caulfield said yesterday, after reading in the newspapers of persons charged with violating the boulevard stop ordinance being released without the payment of costs, that he would instruct the prosecutors in the city courts to be more strict, allowing no one to be discharged without at least the payment of costs if proven guilty of violating the ordinance.

Caulfield said he thought the boulevard stop law to be a good law and expressed the opinion that if violators were punished, it would be more effective.

STOCK AND BOND AVERAGES UP TO NEW HIGH PRICES

Advance in Steel Workers' Wages an Event of Week — Little Encouragement Can Be Drawn From European Situation.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Important developments in the labor situation and the continued firmness in securities in the face of the shifting tides of the strike negotiations have been the features of the past week in domestic business and finance. Despite the failure to reach a hard coal settlement, despite the inability of the railroad executives to agree with the brotherhood mediators and despite striking demoralization in certain parts of the foreign exchange market, stock and bond averages achieved new high record prices for the present movement. In doing so they clearly reflected financial opinion to the effect that the railroad difficulty finally will be adjusted without prejudicing the prospects for profitable business operations during the fall and that our industrial revival can progress at least moderately, in the face of distinctly unsatisfactory conditions on the continent of Europe.

"Virtual ending of the soft coal strike, even at the higher level of wages, contributed, of course, to the feeling of optimism. With bituminous production reported to a 9,000,000 tons basis as was expected to be the case by the end of the week, many shortages will be relieved quickly, although the steel industry probably will feel a curb from this quarter for some weeks to come. The 20 per cent increase in wages by the leading steel companies also was taken as a bullish factor. It was inferred that the steel industry must be confident of its ability to dispose of its products this fall at profitable prices. In fact, some observers were led to see in the wage increases support for the theory that we are entering into a period of 'inflation' to be accompanied by results happy or otherwise, according to their varying economic philosophies.

"Certainly the wage increases do make for higher prices in certain commodities. The cost of producing both coal and steel obviously is increased. It must be remembered, however, that both steel and coal prices have already risen sharply as a result of the scarcities created by the strikes and that these prices will tend to drop as the shortages are relieved. In addition, it is clear that certain other commodities are cheap and show little disposition to advance. Rubber, for example, has been fluctuating close to the low levels of the year. It may be doubted whether copper, in view of the European situation, will be able to achieve any sharp advances for some time. Automobiles and tires obviously are cheap and will continue so, while the oil industry as in such a position that the maintenance of existing relatively moderate prices will be considered reasonably satisfactory.

The Foreign Situation.

"The situation with regard to prices is, in other words, exceedingly diverse. A scarcity of labor, due partly to immigration restrictions, is a distinct likelihood. The cost of coal and steel, and possibly building materials, is likely to be high this fall. The heavy industries are the ones principally involved. On the other hand, certain commodities, including the important grains, are cheap and will not be affected materially by the other situation. After all, with wheat around a dollar in the Chicago market, the farmer's purchasing power will be moderate. The futility of high tariffs in raising the prices of his products has, furthermore, been conclusively demonstrated. Other consumers, meanwhile, show themselves unwilling to pay high prices to meet their daily needs, and they probably will continue to impose their will on retail merchants. Accordingly, it is difficult to believe that the country is on the verge of a general boom. A moderate improvement with irregularity is much more probable.

"Little encouragement can be drawn from the European situation. German marks have now given way in a manner and to a point which suggest, that an Austrian-like climax is in sight. France, England and Germany are unable to agree on the terms of a moratorium or the guarantees to accompany it, and whether any useful settlement can be reached in time to save the existing German currency structure seems doubtful. Meanwhile the franc has dropped 2 cents since last April and the French budgetary situation is unsatisfactory. Sterling, nevertheless, remains firm, and Britain is proceeding with arrangements for commencing service on her debt to this country. In addition there are signs of improvement in Czecho-Slovakia and Rumania. Progress has not been wiped out in Europe. It is useless, however, to minimize the unfortunate consequences of that continent's inability to secure a businesslike completion of the reparations difficulty."

Rails Down Saturday.

"While prices in the main on the Stock Exchange declined fractionally from yesterday's closing levels there were no signs of general liquidation. The market appeared to slow up on recessions. The railroad list continued to reflect the unfavorable outlook in the strike situation and practically all of the rails yielded from ⅛ to ⅝. Among the industrials several specialties which have shown special strength of late continued to gain, among them Studebaker and Mexican Petroleum. Equipments were softer with the rails. Bonds were unsettled and several of the cheaper rails made some ground. Volume of trading in both markets was only moderately large for the Saturday session.

"A similar tone ruled the foreign exchange market. Transactions were in moderate volume and price changes showed considerable irregularity. Rates for the currencies of the countries engaged in the late war moved in reverse to their recent trend. French francs and German marks scored a small recovery from their extreme low points of yesterday, while sterling reacted slightly. At $4.46⅝ sterling was ⅛ lower. French francs gained 8½ points in selling up to 7.57 cents and Belgian francs made a similar advance. German marks recovered to .05⅝ of a cent and then dropped back to .05⅜ at which they were still ⅛ above Friday's low quotation. Italian lire were practically unchanged. Other European rates were mostly firmer.

"Trading in the commodity markets was quiet with price changes confined to a comparatively narrow range. Cotton traders appear to be reluctant to make large commitments either way pending publication of the Government's crop estimate next week. Day to day price fluctuations are governed largely by the weather and the foreign situation has had an unsettling influence. Futures were traded in at from 7 to 24 points below yesterday's closing prices. Wheat which had improved yesterday on reports of damage from drouth in the Northwest continued to advance in the early trading, but later settled back on profit-taking for the week-end.

"The effect of the curtailment of business activity resulting from the combined influences of the strikes and the midsummer dullness is indicated in the weekly statement of the Clearing House. Loans and discounts show a decrease of $37,670,000 and total deposits are less by $45,222,000. A decrease in the surplus of $41,584,200 reduces this item to $7,036,360. The reserves of the member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank are less by $45,919,000.

LIQUIDATION OF STANDARD OILS CURB FEATURE

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Further realizing sales in the Standard Oil group were incidents of the day on the Curb Exchange. Standard Oil of Indiana had closed Friday night at 114⅞. It opened this morning at 114¼, then, under a wave of selling, sank to 112⅞. At around this level supporting orders were encountered and there was a partial recovery, but not enough to avoid the substantial net loss on the day. Standard Oil of New York sold at 436 as against 441 on Friday. Standard Oil of Kentucky started a fraction higher but it too came down a half point or so in sympathy with other members of the group.

Independent oils were dull, with New England Fuel a shade lower and Cities Service preferred and Maracaibo holding steady. There was a moderate demand for Salt Creek at a fractional advance.

New York Telephone, on small buying orders, rose to a new high. Goldwyn Pictures was in fair demand. Timken Roller Bearing and Mesabi Iron held firm, but realizing appeared in the radio issues carrying the common below 5 again.

Goldfield Development was the leader in the mining department, establishing another new high record.

Record Cotton Planting Seed Sale.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 26.—The largest sale of cotton planting seed ever made in the history of the cotton planting industry, according to cotton men here, was consummated today when Pat S. Grogan of Corpus Christi purchased from B. A. Stufflebeme of the Kasch Sedding Breeding Farms of San Marcos a solid trainload of 15 cars of Kasch improved pedigreed seed for a consideration of $42,000. The seed was purchased for various farmers of Nueces County and delivery is to be made in November in time for next season's planting.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Industrial shares as a rule were well sustained and a number of them were decidedly strong, while the rails were disposed to sag in today's dull market.

There might have been some selling in the railway list induced by the President's threat to seize all roads which could not provide adequate facilities as the result of the shopmen's strike. But the slight decline in this section of the market could have been explained just as well by the technical position—the necessity of some reaction after an advance which had lasted for over a week and had carried prices up 5 points or more.

The check to the decline of the foreign exchanges was helpful. Cable advices that the German Reichsbank had sought to stem the panic by dumping over dollars and foreign securities in exchange for marks, accounted for the recovery from Friday's low of .04½ to .05¼, the quotation today.

In the stock market there were a number of interesting features. The public utility group was notable for new high records in North American and Consolidated Gas. American Tobacco stocks, which on the investment yield have been considered by some as selling out of line, had a brisk advance. An early decline in Studebaker was speedily checked and the stock went up again. American Telephone and Telegraph had a further recovery.

In the last half hour the Wall street trading became more active. The chief incident was the violent advance of nearly 10 points in Consolidated Gas. Steel common closed 1¼ above the opening. Railway shares mostly redeemed ground lost at the start.

The Bond Market.

Bond prices moved irregularly today in a moderately active market. United States Government group quotations were scarcely changed from the final levels of the preceding day. A partial recovery in the first hour in French francs did not help the French Government and industrial [illegible]. In fact, both the City of Soissons 6s and the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean 6s touched their lowest prices of the year. United Kingdom 5½s of 1922 also were [illegible]ary. In the traction group, Third Avenue adjustments were in demand at a new high and the Interboro refunding 5s after a [illegible]tional decline, rallied.

Among the speculative members of the railroad group the Eries were a weak [illegible] and there was selling in the M. K. & T. adjustments, the Seaboard bonds and the Frisco issues. New Haven 6s went higher and so did Rock Island, Arkansas & Louisiana 4½s. Industrial bonds were [illegible]less. United States Realty 5s moved up slightly to their highest price of the year.

Canadian provincial bonds were [illegible] and quite active this week in the New York market.

North American.

North American continued its remarkable advance and was easily the feature of the day's trading. The last 10 points of the rise has occurred within the last few days since the publication of the report for the year ending July 31, on which it was figured that over $22 a share had been earned on the stock.

GOVERNMENT SEPTEMBER COTTON CROP ESTIMATE ANXIOUSLY AWAITED

LONDON EXPECTS GREAT ACTIVITY IN NEW ISSUES

Believes Last Three Months of Year Will See Such Output Provided No Serious Political Event Prevents.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of the Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in review today says:

"A curious feature of our markets and possibly of yours is the apparent apathy on the part of business men to epoch making factors such as present economic and political conditions in Europe. As regards our markets the absence of the workings of our old currency system and the facilities of a free gold market make the money market unwisely indifferent to international financial developments. For eight years Lombard Street so completely derived its income from treasury bills and foreign exchange operations as to diminish its concern over the continued absence of commercial bills. These conditions, collectively considered, denote an unhealthy and unsatisfactory position.

Investment Outlook.

"Apart from disturbing political considerations, it is believed that the outlook favors steadiness in investment security with increased activity in speculative descriptions pending a real revival in trade. A big international revival, however, is considered impossible until European conditions are better, but as commodity prices are still 150 per cent above the prewar level a moderate revival is likely to cause a moderate rise in money rates. Your situation, however, probably will be specially affected by the continued gold remittances resulting from our commencement of service of our debt to you.

"Again assuming no political catastrophe, great activity in the matter of new issues is expected during the final three months of the year on both sides of the Atlantic. Argentina probably will be a big borrower in connection with her maturing debt both locally and in America. Meanwhile, amidst almost universal financial and commercial depression in Central Europe improving conditions in Czecho-Slovakia and Rumania are welcomed. Given your recognition of Obregon Mexican securities also are likely to rise further.

Post-War Problems.

"Some assert that after your autumn election, if Europe condition is still bad and assuming that Britain has settled her debt satisfactorily we and you will draw closer in the matter of a united policy for aiding peace and prosperity. The Round Table Quarterly writing on economic conditions in Europe says that Europe is suffering less from the direct effect of war than from her failure to adjust herself to the changed conditions which have emerged from the war. The plight of Europe, however, has been aggravated by the disintegration of what was really the foundation of the peace settlement; namely, the co-operation of the United States in the affairs of the old world."

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review today says:

"Exchanges on countries directly concerned in the hostilities of the World War and now engaged in conflicts over settlements provided in the peace agreement, were acutely unsettled in the past week, a crumbling away of their exchange rates being generally attributed to the attitude of France and statements made by French leaders. The direct influence of these dissensions was shown in another disastrous decline in German exchange that carried the mark down to the new low record of .05 of a cent to the mark. Offerings of German exchange were in large amounts even in dollar equivalents in the first half of the week, but in the past few days the profounded weakness was due to a practical withdrawal of buyers. French exchange also moved downward, checks on Paris yielding from 8 cents to 7.46 cents, a new low for the year, and Belgian and Italian moved in close unison with French.

"Sterling was in steady inquiry from many sources and showed only a trifling recession. Dutch, Swiss and Swedish were also in steady demand, Swedish crowns moving up to a new high level for the year. There was special weakness in exchange on Portugal, escudos falling from 7.25 to the new low level of 5.30. Czecho-Slovakia continued its upward movement, selling at the new high record of 3.60. Chilean exchange was also extremely strong, paper pesos selling at 14.60, a new high for the year. Strength was also shown in exchanges on Finland."

"A steadier tone ruled the foreign exchange market. Transactions were in moderate volume and price changes showed considerable irregularity. Rates for the currencies of the countries engaged in the late war moved in reverse to their recent trend. French francs and German marks scored a small recovery from their extreme low points of yesterday, while sterling reacted slightly. At $4.46¾ sterling was ⅛ lower. French francs gained 5½ points in selling up to 7.57 cents and Belgian francs made a similar advance. German marks recovered to .05⅞ of a cent and then dropped back to .05⅝, at which they were still ⅝ above Friday's low quotation. Italian lire were practically unchanged. Other European rates were mostly firmer."

CHOICE YEARLINGS AND HEAVY STEERS LOWER

Hog and Lamb Markets on Higher Levels at Close of Week.

In respect to volume cattle receipts this week were the most generous of the year, there being over 35,000 head here the first five days of the week. Most of the run, however, went to the plain and grassy classes, with only a sprinkling of good cattle available. Choice yearlings and heavy steers sold steady fore part of the week, but late were 25c lower. New top for the year of $10.65 on heavy cattle was made. A range of $10 to $10.40 caught the toppy kinds, with yearlings bringing that price in several cases. Plain and medium steers sold fully 50c to 75c lower and were hard to move, and sold from $6 to $8.50. Range steers were a drag on the market, closing around 75c to $1 lower. Market was bad, due mainly to the breaking of beef prices down East. The best range steers sold from $7 to $7.65, while a spread of $3.50 to $6.75 caught the bulk of deals. Fat yearlings, both mixed and straight heifers, were steady until late, when a quarter was taken off, while plainer kinds were slow and generally 50c to 75c lower. The fat cow market broke 50c late also. Good cows were quotable up to $7, but a spread of $5.50 to $6.50 caught the rank and file. Medium grass cows were around 50c to 75c lower, as were common heifers toward the close. Canners and cutters sold on a steady basis, with canners from $2.25 to $2.40, and cutters from $2.50 to $3.50. Bulls were unchanged, selling from $3.50 to $5.50. There was fair demand for stockers and feeders. Choice grades were in strong call, but plain kinds were slow late and mostly 25c to 40c lower. A spread of $5.50 to $7.75 caught the bulk of sales. Dealers were very little changed after Monday. The market's high point came early, with a top of $11.25, which was 50c lower than last week. Late best veals sold around $10 to $10.75. Yearlings, selling from $2.65 to $3.50, were considered fully steady for the week.

Hog Prices Higher.

Hog receipts of 47,100 for the week just closing have been fully an average for this time of year, although reflecting a decrease of 20 per cent from the rather liberal supply of the preceding week. It is apparent that the recent decline in hog prices instead of causing general liquidation from the farmers is having the contrary effect, and encouraging them to hold back their unfinished swine. The relief in the way of lessened receipts aided sellers in checking the downward trend of prices and enabled them to force a general upturn of 15 to 25c for the week on the bulk of the butcher and heavier weight swine. There has been a pronounced falling off in the receipts of 200 to 300 pound finished hogs during the past week or 10 days and this has resulted in buyers again looking with favor on strong weight hogs quite a contrast to their attitude through the spring and early summer. Not long ago the gap between heavy and butcher weight swine was $1 to $1.25 per cwt., but this has narrowed into not to exceed a 25 to 50c margin. A soft spot in the market throughout the week has been the trade in pigs 120 pounds and under. Orders for such weights have been limited and prices are generally 25 to 50c lower for the week. Rough sows had a 25 to 50c break as compared with last week's close. This market had gotten out of line with other western centers on packer sows and buyers claimed adjustment was imperative. There have been right good clearances in hogs from day to day. At the week's close prices on various classes were as follows: Prime 275 to 300 pound hogs (nominal) $8.75 to $9.25; butcher and medium weights, 200 to 250 pounds, $9.40 to $9.70; shipping weights, 175 to 210 pounds, $9.20 to $9.70; lights, 140 to 175 pounds, $9 to $9.50; pigs, 120 to 140 pounds, $8.50 to $9.25; under 120 pounds $6.50 to $8.50 (green, grassy kinds sharply discriminated against); vaccinated stock pigs, $9 to $10; packer sows, $6.50 to $7; stags, $5 to $6.

Lamb Prices Up.

Just a fair number of sheep and lambs arrived during the past week, in fact, but few sheep were received. The supply of lambs is dropping off from the good runs received a few weeks ago, which is but natural at this season of the year. For the week to receipts total a little more than 13,000, against 14,000 received the previous week and in the neighborhood of 17,000 received during the corresponding week of last year. Sheep showed no change whatever during the entire week, but lambs were good sellers and prices on the advance and at the close of the week were 50@75c higher than at the close of the previous week. The week opened with best lambs selling at $12.25, but later the top reached $12.75 and a good lot of the lambs brought that price the latter part of the week. At the end of the week best lambs were selling at $12.50@12.75, fair to medium grades, $11@12, poor kinds, $10@10.75, best end of the cull $5.50@6.50, common ones, $3@4.50, good mutton sheep, not too heavy, $6, heavy and plain old ewes, $3@4, breeding ewes, $6.50@7, choppers and bucks, $2@3 and canners 50c@$1.

Although rather light, receipts of horses this week were of sufficient volume to care for the trade. Strike was said to have caused buyers to be a little backward about coming in recently. The best call came for a few good southerners and something with quality and good size out of work. A few choicy drafters also found fair outlet, but plain riff-raff was hard to sell and lower in most cases.

Mule trade was likewise very quiet. Some dealers thought the off grades of mules were a little lower, but anything desirable sold on practically the same level as previous week. A few good miners, and a few loads of cotton mules were on an active level.

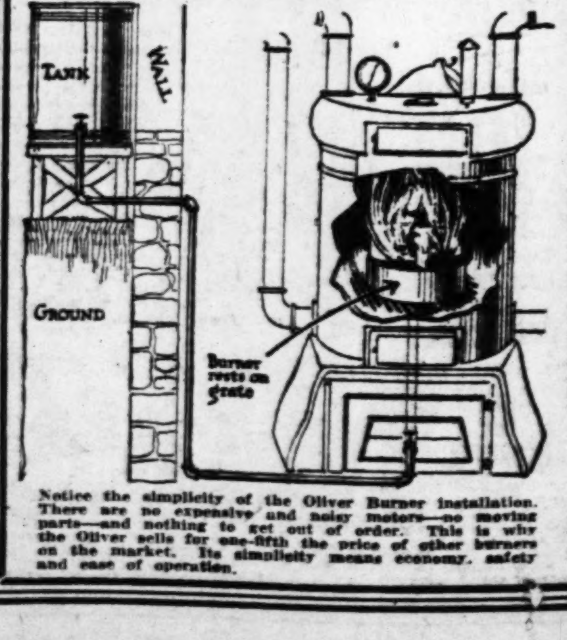
New Way to Heat Your Home

Does Away With Dirty and Expensive Coal and Wood



No more fires to build—no more dirty heavy coal to carry and lift—no more clouds of ashes to breathe or empty—no more heating problems—no more sickness from uneven heat—no more worries about coal shortages, poor quality coal or high prices.

The Oliver Oil-Gas Furnace Burner is a simple device which does away entirely with dirty and expensive coal. It merely sets on the grate of any furnace or boiler without a single change—no matter what make or type. It burns low-priced oil (kerosene or distillate) instead of high-priced coal. And it gives you all the heat you want for coldest weather, or little heat for mild days, by simply turning a valve.

The Oliver installed in your home brings you comforts and conveniences impossible to secure with coal. You have a clean, healthy heat at all times—without any attention to your furnace. In Fall and Spring you can save money by burning oil only when you require heat, instead of keeping a fire going to save the work of building and rebuilding fires.

Now is the time to have your Oliver Burner installed. Prepare now to enjoy the conveniences of the Oliver Burner in your home this Winter. Phone, write or call at our office for a demonstration or further information.

Notice the simplicity of the Oliver Burner installation. There are no expensive and noisy motors—no moving parts—and nothing to get out of order. This is why the Oliver sells for one-fifth the price of other burners on the market. Its simplicity means economy, safety and ease of operation.

WHEAT PRICES IRREGULAR AT CLOSE OF SLOW TRADE

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—All grains registered slight recoveries this week from the extreme depression of the previous seven-day period, but the market was hesitant and without leadership by either side.

Uncertainty over the European situation both as regards the financial situation and the probable demand for grains this year, dominated the wheat market, holding the swings to narrow limits. Export demand was slow. Improvement in the domestic industrial situation was a bullish factor and gave the market what firmness there was to discount bearish cables. Reported permission for India to export 16,000,000 bushels of wheat, and reports to the Federal and Commerce Department that Europe's imports for the current year probably would be considerably over last year's, were factors. Low prices for the season were scored Monday on all deliveries, but the dip brought out heavy buying and a strong upturn followed.

Corn was influenced primarily by weather and crop reports, and held firm on the bulges as reports of serious deterioration in some important sections became more insistent as the week wore on. Export demand was practically negligible.

Oats were dull all week and registered only slight fluctuations, entirely technical in nature.

There was no fundamental influence in the provisions market, but prices seesawed on hedging transactions.

Sentiment was mixed at the week-end session on the Merchants' Exchange. On the bear side was the talk of possible increased hedging pressure. Trade was light.

In the local cash grain market Saturday No. 2 red wheat was steady to 1c higher, while other grades were unchanged. Some good soft wheat was wanted by local mills. Ordinary quality, tough or garlicky met only slow demand. Receipts were light, however, and only a few scattered cars were unsold. Hard wheat was in light supply. There was a fair accumulative demand for the cheaper varieties and prices were steady. Yellow corn was ½c lower and mixed 1½c off. No sales of white corn were made. The market was dull and the bulk of receipts carried over. Cash oats were steady to ½c higher, but most of the sales were made at previous day's basis. There was good shipping and accumulative demand and offerings were well cleaned up.

The early range of prices of both wheat and corn, especially the latter, was narrow. The Liverpool market closed 1¼ to ⅝c higher. The early Winnipeg price was better than yesterday.

December wheat opened at $1.01⅝, May wheat $1.07, September corn 59½c, December corn 54⅝@54½c and May corn 57⅝c.

The three Northwestern markets combined Saturday had 886 cars of wheat, compared with 472 a week ago and 1152 last year. Minneapolis today receiving 383 cars, Duluth 148, Winnipeg 355.

Local wheat receipts, which were 105,867 bushels, compared with 206,519 a week ago and 231,367 last year, included 49 cars local and 38 through. Corn receipts, which were 62,400 bushels, compared with 117,000 a week ago and 46,800 last year, included 27 cars local and 21 through. Oats receipts which were 64,000 bushels, compared with 96,000 a week ago and 68,000 last year, included 18 cars local and 14 through. Hay receipts were 342 tons local and 195 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators Saturday were 1,240,863 bushels of wheat, 76,004 bushels of corn, 188,611 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 206,145 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 10,451 bushels of No. 1 hard winter, 23,733 bushels of No. 2 hard winter, 10,974 bushels of No. 2 corn, 26,884 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 13,667 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 3725 bushels of No. 2 oats, 34,042 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 7305 bushels of No. 2 rye, 1489 bushels of barley.

Primary receipts of wheat Saturday were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 1,698,000 bu. CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Wheat colsed ⅛c higher to ⅝c lower. September 101⅛, Dec., 103¼@103⅛, May 108@108⅛. Corn closed unchanged to ⅝@¼ higher with Sept. 60½, Dec. 55⅝@½ and May 58⅝. Oats closed 8 to ⅝c lower with Sept. 31⅝@⅝; Dec. 33⅞ and May 37¼.

Shipping sales for the day were 275,000 bushel wheat, 310,000 bushel corn and 210,000 bushel oats. Of this export sales were and 100,000 bushels oats.

Trade in wheat was narrow and without much feature all through the short session today. On the whole prices held fairly well and there was some bying on the advance of ⅝ to 1¼d at Liverpool for futures, and the rail strike news was also a bullish feature for the immediate future. Export trade news was bearish, and there appears to be little new demand. However, cash prices here were steady, and there were moderate sales to mills. Export buying was small. Receipts were estimated at 225 cars here. Northwest receipts were 531 cars against 814 cars a year ago.

In corn the local bulls were cautious as they feared heavy country sales on any material bulge. Kansas State report was bullish indicating crop of 100,000,000 bushels or 37,000,000 bushles less than August Government report. Damage has been extensive also in Nebraska, according to local experts. The cash market was easier with premiums ¼c off relatively. Receipts here were 320 cars, estimated.

Local cash interests were credited with buying oats in the local market. Receipts were 100 cars. The cash demand was indifferent and country sales also were small.

In previous the trend was lower early, but there was considerable buying on the dip and the market rallied a little on short covering and some buying by packers. Hog receipts were 6000 and the market was steady to 10c off.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER IN WEEK-END TRADE

Mine and Rail Situation With Foreign Conditions Factors in Market Trend.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The action of the cotton market during today's early trading was again regarded as reflecting the effects of opposing influences. The opening was barely steady at an advance of 2 points on May, but generally 1 to 25 points lower under renewed liquidation and Southern selling promoted by an unfavorable view of the German outlook and the continued uncertainty of labor conditions on the railroads and in the hard-coal mines. The market ran into a good demand around 21.80c for December, however, and soon rallied to 22.05c on reports of an increasing business in cotton goods and bullish crop advices. This bulge met renewed realizing and was not fully maintained, the early market being nervous and irregular.

Cotton; spot quiet; middling 22.25.

The market was steadier later on indications of a tropical disturbance south of Jamaica, moving northwestward, and apprehensions that it might move nearer the belt before Monday. December sold up to 22.13c or 33 points from the nearly low level and closed at 22.04c. The general market closed steady, net 3 points higher to 9 points.

People are Pretty Wise in this 20th Century

SIXTY YEARS ago, Abraham Lincoln said that you couldn't "fool all of the people all of the time." But today you can't fool many of the people any of the time.

It's getting to be a pretty wise old world. The man who still believes "that there's one born every minute" is the one.

People and products have got to make a name for themselves.

No product is ever any better than the man who produces it.

Take for example, the Hop Flavored malt extracts, for which there is so large a demand. We have been in the malt extract business for fifty years. We don't know it all yet. But we do know one thing. That to cheapen a malt extract in any way is to destroy its value.

Ninety per cent of the Hop Flavored malt extracts made today are filled with moisture, adulterated with cheap corn and flavored with cheap loose hops. They are not worth taking home because they can not give results.

Our "Puritan" Hop Flavored Malt Sugar Syrup is made only from the choicest barley produced in America. It is malted by our own secret processes which we have learned through fifty years of experience.

It has the hops right in it, and these hops are from the latest Bohemian crops.

The result is that there is probably more Puritan Hop Flavored Malt Sugar Syrup sold today than all the other malt extracts combined. People recognize quality and value. And in this day, Mr. Lincoln, you can't fool many of the people any of the time.

There are now several million people in America who ask for and demand

HARRISON WARNS PEOPLE AGAINST A HOUSE DIVIDED

Development of an Electorate "Caucasian and Unhyphenated" Required if America Is to Hold Own.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FREEPORT, Ill., Aug. 26.—Curbing of the tendency to centralize power in the hands of the Federal Government and development of an electorate "Caucasian, literate, high-minded, unhyphenated and thoroughly American" were urged by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi here today at the celebration of the sixty-fourth anniversary of the Lincoln-Douglas debate in this city.

The massacre of nonunion miners at Herrin, Ill., the East St. Louis race riot and the Dyer anti-lynching bill were referred to, directly or indirectly, by Harrison in his advocacy of noninterference with State affairs by Federal authority.

Harrison, after beginning with a history of slavery in the United States, told of the historic debates between Lincoln and Douglas. He praised Douglas for his stand for "popular sovereignty," at risk of his political life in Illinois, and declared, in his stand for a Caucasian electorate, that Lincoln had said he was "not in favor of making voters or jurors of negroes nor of qualifying them to hold office."

Senator Harrison's speech, in part, follows:

"Men in public life today seeking political preferment may challenge the convictions of Lincoln and forget the utterances of Douglas and appeal to race prejudice and pamper the pride of racial elements in order to obtain their votes, but in the heart of this country and in the sober judgment of its people they recognize that both Lincoln and Douglas were right when they stood for Caucasian electorate, literate and highminded, unhyphenated, and thoroughly American. America today is great, dominant and commanding, but if it is to continue so and maintain its great influence in world affairs its heart beats must remain American, its blood Caucasian and its ideals high. Whenever the principles upon which our fathers built this Government are changed and their teachings forgotten, our shores overrun by those who love another country better than America, then we will become "a house divided against itself" and it cannot endure.

"If the spirit of Douglas could return today, how violent would he be in his opposition to some of the newfangled ideas and tendencies of Federal encroachment upon the sovereign rights of the people. And I have no doubt that the silent Lincoln would throw the mighty power of his great influence against those things which he conceded in his debates with Douglas as destructive of popular sovereignty and the rights of the people.

"It would be a long stretch of the imagination to see Douglas in the Senate of the United States championing a measure that would clothe the Federal Government with power to go into the State of Mississippi and because of an infraction of the police laws of that State, be it murder or rape, to seek to impose penalties upon the taxpayers of the county in which the crime was committed for the benefit of the Federal Treasury because of the failure of its officers to enforce the law; and I cannot imagine that Lincoln would permit, with his approval, a law being passed vesting in the Federal Government authority to have gone into the county of St. Clair and extract from the sureties of the bond of the sheriff or other officers of that county and from its innocent taxpayers large sums as penalties because of the ruthless and inexcusable killing of many of its citizens a few years ago in East St. Louis.

A People's Right.

"I cannot in my wildest imagination see either Lincoln or Douglas permitting the arm of the Federal Government to reach into your State on that recent most inexcusable and reprehensible occurrence of citizens of your State being shot down in cold blood and to again punish innocent taxpayers of Williamson County because the officers of that county failed or were unable to protect the lives of its citizens.

"The people of a state must have and be permitted to exercise certain powers, and one of the most important of all is to see that its police laws are enforced and that the lives and property of its citizens are protected. The people have the power to say who shall be their officers, not only to make the laws for the protection of life and property, but to say what officers shall enforce them. Because mistakes are made in the selection and innocent people are sometimes injured, it does not and should not license the Federal Government to step in and thereby change the whole fabric of our constitutional rights. Let us enforce the laws, and the best way to do it is to see that the right kind of individuals are selected for their enforcement. Under the present tendency of Federal encroachment and concentration of power in the Federal Government there has been recently passed in the House of Representatives and is now on the calendar of the United States Senate a measure that proposes to do just those things against which Lincoln and Douglas inveighed and their spirits no doubt revolted.

Drama, Moving Pictures and News of Players on the Vocal and Silent Stages

Bebe Daniels, Mae Murray and Betty Compson on Week's Film Roll

First Run Attractions Are "Nice People," "A Delicious Little Devil" and "The Bonded Woman."

"NICE PEOPLE," William C. DeMille's film version of Rachel Crothers' is the feature at the New Grand Central, Lyric Skydome and Capitol Theaters this week. In the cast are Wallace Reid, Bebe Daniels, Conrad Nagel and Julia Faye.

The picture reveals the life of the flapper, presenting her as an excitement-craving person who lives her cigarettes, cocktails and a free hand in flirting. Confronted by a serious complication, however, the girl proves to be an all-together different sort and her finer qualities are awakened.

Bebe Daniels is seen as the girl, while Conrad Nagel is the modern youth who assists her in her wild pranks. Wallace Reid is the reformer.

A special feature at the New Grand Central only is Ralph Nicholls' stage presentation, "The Flapper Party," an atmospheric prologue with Elva Magnus and the Dancing Sextette of the Municipal Opera Co.

Katherine MacDonald in "The Infidel" will be presented at the Lyric Skydome the last half of the week, starting Wednesday.

Betty Compson's newest picture, "The Bonded Woman," a film play made from John Fleming Wilson's well known story, "The Salving of John Somers" is the feature picture at the Missouri Theater this week. Another musical revue also is being offered as an added attraction. The revue follows the lines of "Broadway Bits," which was given last week, but new acts are presented, including the comedy team of Bobby and Eddie Gorman and the Dancing Humphreys. Crossman and Ridge and the Missouri Chorus also are in the cast.

"The Reporter" is a two-reel comedy film which is also on the program, together with the usual organ solo and the short reel subjects.

In "The Bonded Woman" Miss Compson appears as Angela Gaskell, daughter of a sea captain. She is loved by Lee Marvin, a member of the ship-ownnig firm. Her father's life is saved by John Somers, his first mate. Angela learns that Somers has a craving for liquor. Her gratitude impels her to take an interest in him. She discovers that she does not love Marvin and that her sole desire is to save Somers from his weakness. She follows him to the South Seas, where they are wrecked on a desert island, and he finds strength to save himself, while both find love—for each other.

There are a storm at sea and several shipwrecks. John Bowers and Richard Dix have the principal masculine roles.

Mae Murray and Rudolph Valentino in "A Delicious Little Devil," open the fall season this week at the Liberty Theater. This is a Universal production in which Miss Murray is seen in the role of a cabaret dancer with whom Jimmie Calhoun, a young man about town, falls madly in love. Valentino, of course, is cast as Calhoun. The dancer, though billed under a high-sounding French name, is in reality a clean-hearted, little middle-class girl who follows her calling to support her family. The plot turns about the girl's struggle to prevent her environment from spoiling her and her effort to convince Calhoun that she is worthy of his love.

The management of the Delmonte Theater has announced that it will reopen next Friday, Sept. 1. The feature picture will be "Slim Shoulders," with Irene Castle in the leading role. Other announced features will be a fashion promenade and the personal appearance of Kitty Gordon in a vaudeville sketch.

Summer Stock Success in Louisville

LOUISVILLE has been added to Detroit and Cleveland as one of the central cities where a summer stock company has made a success in the legitimate drama.

Malcolm Fassett, playing in Louisville last season with Olga Petrove in "The White Peacock," decided on a venture of this character. When he reached New York, he made arrangements with the firm controlling the lease for the use of Macauley's Theater for the summer. Then he began collecting equipment, getting it from various storehouses, including the Belasco warehouses, and began the selection of plays. Virginia Hammond was selected as leading woman, and a capable company was obtained. Special attention was given to stage and scenic direction.

In a season of 18 weeks, which ended a week ago, "Daddies" proved the most popular production, and "Three Live Ghosts" won the most praise artistically. Other pronounced successes were "Polly With a Past," "Civilian Clothes" and "The Fortune Hunter."

Gladys Walton had an escape from death when a stage coach she was driving for the filming of Bret Harte's "M'Liss" turned turtle. Vernon Steele, the leading man, was badly hurt, but Gladys was unhurt. The accident occurred in one of the play's big scenes. The horses were galloping wildly when the front wheel struck a large boulder, overturning the coach. The horses dragged the vehicle 50 yards before they were stopped. The coach was wrecked and two minor players were rendered unconscious and had to be taken to the hospital.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

For the coming season signs points to less quantity and more quality. The nuumber of pictures will not be great, but the pictures will be "big." The tendency is toward the super-production rather than to a vast array of lesser works.

Costume plays are not wanted just now by the studios. Western and small town pictures are not greatly desired, either.

It is the custom among companies to loan players when there is nothing suited to them at the home studio. Thus a prominent player is seen in pictures of various companies while retaining his original affiliations.

The ordinary spectator does not realize how carefully a photoplay is worked out. An action that passes on the screen in half a minute often requires two hours of patient effort to get it just right. To obtain the effect of absolute naturalness, a director uses one of two methods. He either tells the players each move they are to make or else he explains the effect he wishes to produce and lets the player work it out. Each method has staunch defenders, and has been used with great success by noted directors.

Derby day at Epsom Downs, England, is the background of one of the big scenes in the new version of Hall Caine's "The Christian."

Elsie Ferguson is to appear in "Outcast," a play she made an outstanding stage success.

Eugene O'Brien was knocked down by a motor truck in Los Angeles. His scalp was torn open and he was severely shaken. In treating his wounds it was necessary to shave off his hair. So he will not be seen on the screen until his hair grows out.

The indisposition of Ginger, the dog actor, held up the filming of "Broken Chains" for several days. The idleness of the members of the cast during the dog's sickness added some thousands to the cost of the picture. Ginger is a cross between a collie and a Belgian police dog. He sits on a chair at the table, sleeps on a pillow, washes his face in the morning, draws his own drinking water and is all in all a mighty clever dog. His stunts form an important part of "Broken Chains."

Ella Hall, who abandoned the screen when she married Director Emory Johnson three years ago, has the part of an ingenue in "In the Name of the Law."

Valentino denies he came to America in the steerage. He came over in the style that became a graduate of a college of agriculture.

New York's famous old Eden Musee, with all its wax works and chambers of horrors, has been reproduced for "Up and at 'Em."

In large productions the heaviest expense is in the costuming. Another considerable item is the pay of the minor actors.

The only rehearsal for a photoplay is a dress rehearsal. A prominent director is of the opinion this procedure should be tried for the speaking stage.

Contrary to the general belief, the salaries of the leading actors do not form the heaviest item of expense. In a picture recently completed, in which six leading players appeared, a careful analysis of one day showed that the actors' salaries amount to less than one-thirtieth of the expenses for the day.

In the screen version of "Enter Madame," Clara Kimball Young will play the part of Madame Della Robbia, the temperamental opera singer with the American husband.

The King of Denmark received Ann Forest and congratulated her when she recently visited her native land.

George Fawcett recently did two pictures at one time, "The Old Homestead" and "Manslaughter." He admits he was kept quite busy.

For the filming of "Burning Sands" at Oxnard, Cal., a tent city, complete in every respect, housed 400 persons for three weeks.

A movie scout sent out by a large producing company to discover new screen eligibles in New England found only two possibilities, both women, in a search extending through two weeks. In the course of her investigation, the scout examined over 10,000 people. Among the men she found not even one who measured up to the requirements of the screen. The women furnished only two. Most of the girls were disqualified by irregularities of features or awkwardness of carriage.

Clyde Cook recently married Florence Miller.

When the mob scenes were being shot in front of King Richard's castle in Douglas Fairbanks' "Robin Hood," Mary Pickford put on a costume of the period and mingled with the extras. No one recognized her until the shooting was finished, then she made herself known and jokingly demanded pay for her services at the rate of $10,000 a week.

From figures compiled by the star, it appears that Charles Ray's pictures are about equally popular in the cities and in the rural districts.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven are again appearing, after a year's absence, in two-reel domestic comedies, similar to those produced by the Sydney Drews.

The South Sea Islands, which have formed the setting of numerous pieces of recent fiction and travel, have entered the movies. Their undeniable romantic appeal makes them especially suited for the movies. Scenario writers are hard at work taking advantage of the present desire to know more about the region, and soon many pictures with South Sea locations will be shown.

In "The Wise Duck," all the "actors" are ducks, which do some stunts that are as amazing as they are novel.

When William Russell returned to Los Angeles from Tia Juana, whither he had gone to grow a beard for his part in "The Men of Zanzibar," his friends did not recognise him.

The new version of "Tess of the Storm Country" will be eight reels instead of five, as in the original film.

Vaudeville Season Gets Started With Two Openings Today

Orpheum Theater to Feature Conroy and LeMair and Vera Gordon—Rialto Will Change Bill Twice a Week.

WITH the opening of the Orpheum and Rialto Theaters this afternoon, the vaudeville season of 1922-23 may be said to be instituted. Other vaudeville houses have opened previously, or are about to announce their first bills.

The Orpheum's first bill, which, like the subsequent bills of this season, opens on Sunday instead of Monday, will be largely a comedy affair. Conroy and Le Mair, blackface comedians, are to present "The Sharpshooters." Vera Gordon, character player of fun and pathos, will be seen in "Lullaby." Miss Gordon was the mother in the film "Humoresque."

Richard Kean, in classic selections, has been added to the bill since the announcement made a week ago. Jean Granese, songstress, is another entertainer for this week. George LeMaire, with Joe Phillips, will put on a sketch, "At the Dentist's." Others on the program are Monsieur Adolphus in a dance act, "Bohemian Life," and Jack LaViere, "all in the spirit of fun."

The Rialto will change its program every Sunday and Thursday this season. Today, a French-Canadian psychic mystery, "Shireen," will be presented. Others are Barber and Jackson, musical fun-makers; Walter Manthey and Co., Jack Benny, Lloyd and Goode, and a cat-and-rat family of animal performers.

Today's show at the Grand Opera House will include Josslyn and Turner in "A Day at the Races," and Gilroy, Haynes and Montgomery in "The Good Ship Nancy Lee."

At the Columbia, for the first half of this week, "The Golden Butterflies," also known as the Charity Ball Girls, will display the costumes and settings of the London Charity Ball, prepared by noted artists.

The Gayety Theater, only local exponent of burlesque thus far, today offers "Broadway Flappers" as its second attraction of the season.

Seeing Things at Night

By Heywood Broun,
Dramatic Editor of the New York World.

"THE OLD SOAK," by Don Marquis, which was produced at the Plymouth Theater Tuesday night, is the first important play of the new season. Here is an American play comparable in many ways to "Lightnin'." At the end of the second act Mr. Marquis, in his curtain speech, described it as an innocent play. This is a justifiable description. The play both suffers and profits by its innocence. It is innocent enough to bring into the theater an enormous amount of material freshly and truthfully observed. Unfortunately, the author has also been naive enough to hit upon the device of the young man who steals the money and spends it upon an actress, then speculates in order to pay it back and loses his all. Only an innocent person or case-hardened one would venture to utilize such a plot.

Like the young clerk, Mr. Marquis is no playwright to brazen out such a crime. The author has seemed to say, "Just let me get away with this and I will build it up into something worth while." And as a matter of fact Mr. Marquis has succeeded where the young man failed. If you are willing to bear with him during the time in which he is establishing the trite and time-worn premise upon which his story starts, he will pay you back. Out of evil comes much good. The plot which begins so feebly grows stronger as the evening progresses. Eventually rich dividends of delight are actually paid upon the stolen bonds.

Of course, the chief interest of Mr. Marquis, like that of Frank Bacon in "Lightnin'," has been in a character. The Old Soak is just as rich and complete a piece of authentic portraiture as Lightnin' Bill Jones. And Harry Beresford in the role gives a performance almost as good as that of Frank Bacon. (Beresford was seen in "Shavin's" in St. Louis last season.)

Uneven Merit.

It seems to us that the good things of "The Old Soak" are perhaps even a little better than the best moments of "Lightnin'." But Bacon had the advantage of being supplied with good second-rate material by Winchell Smith in those stretches between the high spots. There never are enough high spots in any evening to go completely round. One cannot expect to have inspiration served to all. But there are times in "The Old Soak" when even the seltzer runs out.

Fortunately almost all the poorer portions of the play come in the first act. It is then that the money is stolen and the actress brought on. After these preliminary obligations to tell a story have been disposed of, the play is almost consistently merry. And when it isn't merry it manages to be profoundly moving.

On top of that, to our great surprise, comes a scene of melodramatic excitement much more thrilling than anything which has been done all season. There is never any doubt about the play as long as Beresford holds the stage and develops the personality of the Old Soak. He is superbly aided by Robert E. O'Connor as "Al," the bartender, and Eva Williams as the hired girl. Some of the scenes of these three are very nearly in the mood or vaudeville, but it is vaudeville of the most gorgeous and unusual kind. The winning quality of the work of Robert E. O'Connor may be surmised from the fact that whenever Nellie, the hired girl, came on and said, "Oh, Mr. Hawley, Al's here," the audience broke at once into shouts of anticipatory laughter.

The play reveals the Old Soak not only in his negative phase as an anti-prohibitionist, but in the positive one of a good Darwinian. His is the observation "Heredity runs in our family." If there is anything in the hypothesis of the survival of the fittest, "The Old Soak" seems destined to live.

"A Serpent's Tooth."

"A Serpent's Tooth," with Marie Tempest as star, was presented Thursday night at the Little Theater. It was written by Arthur Richman. The cast includes Blythe Daly, Leslie Howard, W. Grahame Browne and Robert Lowe.

Perhaps it is no more than fitting that the comedy which brings Marie Tempest back to America should be a play not quite in the mode of today. Here is a method and style of acting from which the players of the new school have departed very radically. It is not within her intent to conceal from you the fact that she is an actress playing a part. If a bright line comes her way, Miss Tempest is entirely willing that you should realize that she knows it is a good line. She italicizes it. The quip is frankly aimed before being sent winging on its way. The marksmanship is excellent, and, for that matter, so is the acting, unless you happen to have been converted to the belief that there is something tyrannical in performances of such obvious efficiency. An audience ought to be able to grasp the humor of a line or situation without such vigorous reminders on the part of the player.

Possibly Mr. Richman's comedy is not old-fashioned enough. He has hit upon a scheme which is potentially fresh, and has then carefully gone over it and touched it with tradition. He has written a play about a mother who is moved to confess that her son is no good. Wearied of his worthlessness, she insists on the boy's fiancee hearing that he is a cad. This is a departure from the convention of the theater, but, unfortunately, Mr. Richman has managed to write the scene in exactly the same manner as if the mother were doing the usual thing and defending her loved one from attack.

Shunned Simplicity.

He has gone to the most outrageous lengths to keep simplicity out of the scene. For instance, when the girl asks why the boy has wanted to marry her in the first place, the mother pauses and says: "Let me tell you a story from the Persian," or something to that effect, and then she does. Mr. Richman must have had to cogitate severely before being able to think up a substitute for some simple declaration such as, "he wanted you for your money."

Miss Tempest plays with humor and zest, and sometimes with a flash of emotional intensity, but we cannot be moved to complete admiration by anybody so willing and indeed, so anxious, to have it known that her effects depend upon tricks of the most difficult kind.

It is particularly hard for us to be moved by this method when it is placed in contrast to the manner of the new school. It seemed to us that Leslie Howard, who is cast for the role of the son, belonged wholly to the new dispensation. In his work there was never a moment in which he appeared to be putting himself out in any way to score a point. That was not his game at all. He wasn't shooting. In the old sense of the word, he wasn't even acting. He seemed not a brilliant, glittering

It would be insincere for us to contend that we were ready to accept the young man as half as much of a rascal as the author intended. The villainy upon which the big scene was motivated consisted of no more than the young man's insistence upon leaving a dinner to his fiancee in order to go out and quiet a cabaret singer acquired by him in a previous entanglement. She threatened to come into the house and kick up a row.

To us it seemed very thoughtful of him to go out and induce her to talk it over elsewhere. In the next act the author made him a forger, but this was very obviously an afterthought for good measure. And as a matter of fact, nobody in the play was half so excited and outraged by his theft as over his conversation with the cabaret singer. We could forgive him everything because he was real.

"Manhattan."

OF late the great open spaces have been much in the minds of Broadway playwrights. Throughout the week the current heroines have longed for air. The poor little miss in "Manhattan" had never seen a cow. She felt that if she only had, her life might have been different. Eric Brierly of "Fools Errant" was no more than a man-about-town until he went to the iron country in Minnesota and was nice to the miners. Roughing it ennobled him to such an extent that he swept back into the drawing rooms of New York like a great gusty wind, and caused no end of discomfort to his friends by doing things to them which be called self-sacrifice.

The question of the comparative value of city and country life in the promotion of virtue or happiness, or both, is a large one. There is much to be said on both sides, but not by us. Nor do we think that the authors who have rushed in to tell the firstnighters to go West for their souls' sake are much better qualified to deal with the problem. The gospel of the land, as preached by the New York playwright to New York audience has always seemed to us conspicuously insincere. We know perfectly well that not one cent of the royalties will go into the purchase of wheat fields. On the contrary, the author who makes a success with the theme that life in the great city makes the misery and disillusion may be confidently expected to use the money to move in from New Rochelle and take an apartment around Times Square.

His Real Sentiments.

In most cases the actor who strides to the center of the stage to make the plea for God's green fields, and the trees and twittering of little birds, is a player who regularly insists upon having a clause in his contract that he may not be sent out of New York. And all this is rapturously applauded by an audience, composed for the most part of people who have never spent anything more than a week-end out of town, never expect to and don't want to.

But plays of this kind serve to salve the conscience of the city dweller. In his heart he knows that his way of life is not that set down for man in the original scheme of creation. Generally he is a little remorseful, and so when the heroine announces that she is done with the pace and madness of the crowded city, and intends to seek regeneration in the hills or the prairies, the city dweller applauds violently. Having done so, he feels that he has fulfilled his obligations to the soil and goes back contentedly to his three rooms and a bath.

THE play of the season which handles New Yorkers most roughly is "Manhattan," by Leighton Osmun and Henry Hull, at the Playhouse. The hero of the comedy is unfortunate enough to be not only a member of an old New York family, but an author as well. When the play opens, he is discovered in the act of writing an essay entitled "The Fourth Dimension in Ethics" for the Atlantic Monthly. The audience knows him at once for a highbrow and a pedant, and realizes that he is in a bad way. The wages of syntax is death. Fortunately, there is a familiar formula in the drama available for the young man who has become so overly intellectualized as to break out into essays. Playwrights have always felt that the need was a tough young girl to tone him up. Her toughness, of course, must be wholly vocal. It is necessary that her toughness should vary inversely with her grammar. You may depend upon it that her principles will be a great deal better than her enunciation.

Lory, the heroine of "Manhattan," is typical. She began practically every sentence "Gee!" but when the hero, Duncan Van Norman, asked her to go out to supper with him, she promptly resented the insult. Of course, the matter is compromised eventually, and instead of dining with Duncan, Lory marries him.

Naturally this point is not reached until the third act. Many difficulties have to be bridged. Early in the third act they are as good as engaged, when a lawyer, harbinger of misfortune, enters suddenly and informs the girl, "I have just learned that you have inherited 95,000 pounds from an unknown relative. That is about $450,000 in our money." We trust that, in order to keep the play fresh and timely, the line will be changed from night to night in conformity with the fluctuation of the pound sterling.

A Severe Blow.

Of course the disaster discouraged Duncan Van Norman enormously. He had been eager to marry the poor little waif and give her the advantages which were never hers. She should have soft shaded lights and travel abroad and see a cow. All that was ruined by the inheritance.

"THE OLD SOAK," BEST NEW PLAY OF SEASON THUS FAR

With that she didn't need his help to see a cow. She might even buy one. Duncan Van Norman could not endure the thought that anybody in his set should say that he had first wronged the girl and then married her for her money. As a matter of fact, he hadn't wronged her at all, but it was just the sort of thing everybody in his set would be pretty sure to say. They were a poor lot, but, after all, it was the only set he had.

Lory attempted to solve the difficulty in the most direct way possible by trying to give away the money. Her lawyer wouldn't let her. After that there was nothing for her to do but throw herself upon the mercy of Duncan. After a harrowing fourth act he decided to overlook the money and marry her anyway.

In spite of the number of familiar strategems which have been employed in "Manhattan," some of it is amusing. Everybody speaks in epigrams, and slang epigrams at that, but one or two are palpable hits. Lory, for instance, says that she lives "on one of those streets where Greenwich Village quits kidding itself."

An Outstanding Actor.

But by far the most interesting thing in the play is the performance of a player with a small part who does not even get on the stage until late in the third act and then proceeds to run away with all the honors of the evening. The actor is Albert Gran, whose first performances in America were in German at the Irving Place Theater. In "Manhattan" he has become Dutch. He, too, is a writing man, in fact a novelist, but literature has not devitalized him as much as Duncan Van Norman. The obligations of the role are largely to furnish low comedy, but Mr. Gran manages to be funny, dignified and appealing, all at the same time. It seemed a pity that the heroine could not ignore the express instructions of the authors and leap out of the plot to marry the Dutchman.

Marguerite Maxwell, who plays Lory, the heroine, is an actress new to New York. She seems a player knowing and using too many of the tricks picked up in stock companies. She tries too hard and hammers all her lines, particularly the jokes. And yet, in spite of all this, she manages to put a good deal of zest into "Manhattan," and serves to convince us that more comes out of many an indifferent play than is ever put into it.

"Fools Errant."

"FOOL'S ERRANT," at the Maxine Elliot Theater, also has to do with the advantages of not living in New York. The author is Louis Evan Shipman, editor of "Life," but the play is not very funny. It isn't intended to be. It is intended to be gripping. Well, it isn't so very gripping either. Eric Brierly goes about doing good deeds to people whether they want him to or not. Upon returning to New York he finds that one of his old friends, Mrs. John Pritchard, is unhappy. Her husband is having an affair. He promises to do what he can to help clear up the situation. In compliance with his promises he manages to get introduced to the woman, whose name is Greta Ellis. Then he hits upon the ingenious idea of marrying Greta in order to remove her as a rival of Mrs. Pritchard. He overlooks the fact that John Pritchard might be enterprising enough to go out and start a brand-new affair. As a matter of fact, Pritchard dies, instead. Mrs. Pritchard, who has always loved Brierly, follows him, after a lapse of a year to Minnesota. There, to her horror, she finds that the woman who came between herself and her husband is again keeping her from the man she loves. Everybody in the play is pretty sacrificial, and Greta agrees to go away and abandon Brierly to Mrs. Pritchard. Fortunately, somebody chances to remind him that, as a matter of fact, he has grown to love Greta. He suddenly remembers that he has and the play ends happily for everybody but Mrs. Pitchard.

The scene between the two women has in it elements of excellent drama, but Mr. Shipman is able to bring it into his play only by the most clumsy mechanism. He manages to write drawing-room conversation pretty well, but once the play gets into the open spaces, everybody talks in the most unnatural manner possible. They can't stand the change of climate. Lucille Watson, Alexandra Carlisle and Cyril Keightley perform well in spite of the limitations of the play.

A Roped-Up Play.

"THE Woman Who Laughed," which is at the Longacre Theater, is a play tightly bound up in an idea, an idea preposterous and inflexible. Frieda Neilson finds that her husband is having an affair with her sister-in-law, Minna Becker. Accordingly she drugs them both and ties them together with a rope. They get bored with each other, and when she cuts them loose everything is set for a happy ending. The play does not serve to hold the audience. Mr. Locke, the author, hasn't provided enough rope.

Eighty-Ninth Division Reunion.

The second annual reunion of the Eighty-ninth Division, comprising men from Missouri and other Middle Western and Western States, will be held at Omaha, Sept. 20 to 22, during the Ak-Sar-Ben fall festival. Many St. Louis men who went to Camp Funston, Kan., in the first selective service contingents, are members of the division. Arrangements are being made for round-trip fares at the fare and a half rate.

The most remarkable Novel ever written with a plot laid in the city which today dominates the world!

"Within These Walls"

by RUPERT HUGHES

A tale of past and present that weaves into its broad web the life-threads of four gay, reckless generations and rattles skeletons which, for nigh a hundred years, New York has hidden in her closets. Here is the first pen bold enough to scratch the truth through history's smug veneer. Here is a romance—beginning in the September issue of THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE—that draws the hot passions of a century to its veins.

Streets shift and house-fronts change; fashion captiously snips skirt-lengths and hat-brims; whale-oil lamps die down and electric lights flash out: but Father Time can't tell a thousand years of his children apart. Love and hate, faith and deceit, the willfulness of men and the weakness of women are eternal. Ideas alone alter—emotions and their consequences, never.

The first scenes of "Within These Walls" (so vivid and vital is the story that one has the sense of witnessing, rather than reading, the actual drama) are laid in Manhattan and its environs at the peak of the great plague of '37. The wonderful railroad, reaching clear to Harlem, has finally been completed. Mr. Astor's huge and palatial hotel is the talk of the town. Slave- and rum-selling are buttressing the fortunes of soon-to-be "leading old families."

Prominent merchants and financiers openly flaunt their indiscretions, and even ministers drain their several bottles of wine at a sitting.

Rupert Hughes has painted his pictures with veritable back grounds. He has scorned the evasion with which previous authors, touching upon the period, have slicked up their likenesses of nineteenth century society. He has staged his story with authentic properties. He has carried his unflinching plot without a Pecksniffian compromise—and without a breach of taste or decency—from the potter's field at Washington Square, around the years, to the cabarets of Greenwich Village there.

This is the great story of New York: a mighty portrait of its soul—the greatest story of the greatest and strangest city since man set up communities and worshiped their glamour—of New York, the ever-changing and ever-unchanged—New York, arbiter of national elegances and excesses—New York, the pander and the philanthropist—Babel with a thousand towers—general dealer in all the wares and weaknesses of earth—builder of palaces and wrecker of hopes—ever regilding her gauds, painting her old toys afresh for each generation, but always, at wanton heart, the same.

THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE has accustomed its readers to notable standards. A magazine whose contributors regularly include Booth Tarkington, Joseph Hergesheimer, Edith Wharton, John Galsworthy, Melville Davisson Post, W. L. George, Clarence Budington Kelland, Richard Washburn Child, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Mary Synon, among others of equal distinction, is not easily stirred to extraordinary announcements, but "Within These Walls" is such an event. It is so clearly destined to be the literary sensation of years that we must emphasize its publication and urge you not only to read the first of its equally important installments, but to provide as well against missing succeeding numbers (oversale is inevitable) by arranging with your newsdealer to save a copy for you every month.

AMERICAN DISPLAY AT ART MUSEUM NEXT

100 Paintings Selected for Exhibit Sept. 15—Open to St. Louisans.

The management of the City Art Museum announces that through the courtesy of the Missouri State Capitol Decoration Commission the mural decorations for the Museum of Natural Resources, which have been on exhibition since Aug. 7, will continue on exhibition until Aug. 31, when they will be forwarded to Jefferson City.

The subjects of the paintings are "Ha Ha Tonka," by Edmund H. Wuerpel; "Lead Mining," by Tom P. Barnett; "The Mississippi River," by Robert A. Kissack; "The Eads Bridge," by Frank Nuderscher of St. Louis, and "Water Power," by Ralph Chesley Ott of Springfield. The exhibition has aroused great public interest, more than 18,000 persons having visited the museum since the paintings were placed on exhibition in Gallery 32.

American Display Next.

The collection of modern Dutch paintings owned in St. Louis will also remain on exhibition in Galleries 25, 30 and 31, until the end of August. The exhibition will be followed by the seventeenth annual exhibition of American paintings, which opens Sept. 15. This is the most important exhibition of the year and will consist of about 100 paintings by as many contemporary American artists, largely selected from important exhibitions held in Chicago, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Rochester and Baltimore.

It will include important examples of landscape, marine, portraiture, interiors and still life by such eminent painters as John S. Sargent, Edmund C. Tarbell, George W. Bellows, Robert Henri, F. J. Waugh, Charles H. Woodbury, Emil Carlsen, Joseph de Camp, Charles W. Hawthorne, F. C. Frieseke, Richard E. Miller, Daniel Garber, Walter Gay, John C. Johansen, Carl Melchers, Ernest Lawson, Willard L. Metcalf and Edward W. Redfield; and also examples of the work of these younger men, who are attracting attention: Henry I. Stickroth, W. L. Carrigan, Le Roy Ireland, William Auerbach Levy and Fred Wagner. Among the women artists who will be represented are Cecilia Beaux, Theresa Bernstein, Felicie Howell, Adelaide Cole Chase, Mary Foote, Gertrude Chase, Lilian Westcott Hale, Jean McLane and Violet Oakley.

Open to St. Louis Artists.

The exhibition is open to every artist residing in St. Louis, or living within 10 miles of the city limits. Entry blanks may be had on application to the museum authorities. The entries should be received before Sept. 1. The jury for the local work comprises Edmund H. Wuerpel, director of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts; Ernest L. Blumenschein of the Taos Society of Artists, and Oscar E. Berninghaus, chairman of the Exhibition Committee of the St. Louis Artists' Guild.

Robert P. Bringhurst, at 3 p. m. today, will deliver the second of his lectures on "Sculpture and How the Sculptor Works," demonstrating with a clay model the development of a head from the rough clay to the finished work.

COMPETITIVE DRILLS AT CAMP

Student Soldiers Will Finish Summer Training Wednesday.

The members of the Citizens' Military Training Camp, who have been in training at Jefferson Barracks since Aug. 1, under command of Col. W. H. DON'T SQUEEZE BLACKHEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation—then, too, after they have become hard you cannot get all of them out. Blackheads are caused by accumulation of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of calonite powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition—anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should try this simple method.

Immac

BANISHES BODY ODORS

At least half the men and women in every walk of life unknowingly offend others with disagreeable body odors. It is now definitely known that one disagreeable odor is due to armpit secretions—not always perspiration.

People who perspire little or none are just as likely to be troubled, and the unfortunate fact about this offense is, that those who offend are rarely conscious of the odor themselves. This and all other body odors can be corrected by the regular use of "Immac", the wonderful new deodorant.

This fragrant snow white cream completely neutralizes odor, without stopping or interfering in the least with healthy perspiration. Men and women both, need it to keep their person fresh and clean.

It takes but a minute to apply to the armpits, feet or elsewhere, it is not sticky or greasy, and dries almost instantly. Perfectly harmless, and cannot injure or stain the clothing. Use it freely any time.

AMERICAN VETERINARIES MEET HERE TOMORROW

Methods for Preventing and Lessening Disease Among Animals Principal Subject for Convention.

Methods of preventing and lessening animal diseases, particularly livestock epidemics and diseases transmissible in meat foods, as well as various treatments, will be discussed at the fifty-fifth annual meeting of the American Veterinary Medical Association which will be held beginning tomorrow and continuing through Friday at the Planters Hotel. The convention of the allied Bureau of Animal Industry will be held at the same time and place.

The purposes of the association were given by its secretary, Dr. N. S. Mayo of Chicago, as "to promote professional interests, to elevate the standard of veterinary education and to protect the livestock industry as well as the public health by the prevention and control of animal diseases. As a result of its efforts the United States has the best organization for the prevention and control of animal diseases of any country in the world, and the system of veterinary inspection of meat food products is unsurpassed."

Governor on Program.

Gov. Hyde is on the program for the opening address tomorrow morning, and the remainder of the day will be taken up with the president's address and reports of officers and standing committees. A president's reception followed by dancing will be held in the evening.

Sectional meetings will be held Tuesday morning and Friday afternoon. Committee reports will take up the session Tuesday afternoon, and alumni and club reunions will be held.

Vaccinating Machine.

The small animals section will meet Wednesday morning, while the other groups attend clinics in East St. Louis Wednesday and Thursday. Officers will be elected Friday.

Demonstrations of apparatus will include a hog vaccinating machine invented by Dr. M. J. Huggins of the National Stock Yards, by which hogs are tied by the hind feet to an endless chain, lifted and carried to the veterinary, who stands with ready needle connected with a tank of cholera vaccine, and then are carried on into a pen and released as their feet touch ground. This is for hogs that are sold to farmers for stock.

HABIT

That Master of Our Unconscious Selves!

From childhood to the grave are we its willing victims with little thought, as through the years we glide, of the web it weaves about us; of the slaves we are to its persistent pursuit.

Too little do we realize, as we pursue our daily vocations, that we are either its victims or its masters.

Reckon this monster with your conscience and remember the proverb: He who conquers himself is greater than him who taketh a city!

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being sweetened to be smooth and palatable.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

Many physicians advise Staurt's Charcoal Lozenges to patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. Charcoal is also believed to greatly benefit the liver. These lozenges cost but thirty cents a box at drug stores, and you get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

Alkali In Shampoos Bad for Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

GOSSIP IN PARIS ON PREMIERS' CONFERENCE

Lloyd George and Poincare Are Temperamentally at Wide Variance.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—The difference in temperament between Premier Poincare and Prime Minister Lloyd George appears to have considerably influenced the recent negotiations between the two Government chiefs in London. The effect of their temperaments still continues, to the embarrassment of both Governments.

Premier Poincare is understood to have found the British Prime Minister lacking in the logical grasp of the German situation in the French sense, namely, that of having a reasoned conception built up with great care upon what the French regarded as facts.

Lloyd George was found to make his points with dramatic force and brilliant expressions and with his radiating and powerful personality. All these qualities of the British Premier found Poincare cold. The latter's thesis was harmoniously constructed and constituted a brief in which every point rested upon an official study of the conditions in Germany. Every conclusion was the result of a profound examination on the spot by experts.

The British Prime Minister appeared rather bored by the presentation of Poincare, whom he thought argumentative and dry. The French Premier, after making his exposition on any important feature of the French plan, listened on several occasions with some surprise to a reply which usually evaded his reasoning. He would then go carefully over the whole subject again, appearing to think that the English Premier had failed to understand the nature of his argument.

Lloyd George would again go off the subject, developing what seemed to him to be the largest political consideration.

Poincare would patiently bring him back to the particular matter under discussion. The latter would trace again all the outlines of his own logical structure. The consequence was that the French Premier, according to members of his entourage, formed the impression that Lloyd George was erratic and his mind quickly tired in the examination of a single subject.

It also was the opinion of the French Premier, according to those close to him, that once the British Prime Minister had reached a definite judgment by his own processes, he did not make any effort to explain the reasoning and the facts upon which he arrived at his decision. The negotiations were carried on with extreme courtesy, but in an outside conversation Lloyd George is credited with having exclaimed, "Oh, how dull!"

France will revert to war bread on Sept. 1, in an effort to meet the nation's bread requirements out of the domestic wheat crop and without the aid of foreign grain. This bread, while not as black and soggy as that which one chewed during the war, has a decidedly brunette appearance.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE ALMOST UP WITH WORK

Patent Office and Pension Bureau Rapidly Clearing Up Accumulated Cases.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—For the first time in many years most of the divisions of the General Land Office have their work in a practically current condition, according to a recent report of the commissioner of that office to Secretary of the Interior Fall. The clearing up of back work, it was said, is pursuant to Fall's policy of getting rid of all the work hanging over from the last administration.

Only one or two divisions are now slightly behind in the work, it was reported, and so rapidly is that being put out of the way that the entire Land Office shortly will be on the current basis. The General Land Office, it was shown, has made great strides to that end, in common with at least two other divisions of the Interior Department.

The Patent Office and Pension Bureau are rapidly clearing up cases which have accumulated in the several offices for the last few years, until now they are declared to be about at the peaks of efficiency. This, in the Patent Office, is despite the fact that applications for patents are coming in to the office in steadily increasing numbers.

GHIO HOME PLACE OF 100 ACRES IS SOLD FOR $200,000

"Tranquilla," at Carson and St. Charles Roads, Brings Record Figure for That Locality.

CONVERSION INTO CEMETERY PLANNED

Development Near Locust and Eleventh Streets Will Be Stimulated by City Club's Plans.

By Berry Moore.

Tranquilla, at Carson and St. Charles Rock roads, the home of the late James C. Ghio, was purchased yesterday by the Brown Real Estate Co. for $200,000. The tract, comprising 100 acres, is situated west of Wellston and was bought for conversion into a cemetery. The price is at the rate of $2,000 an acre, which is a record figure for land in this locality. The mansion which formerly graced the tract was destroyed by fire last winter. The place is one of the most noted in St. Louis County. The sale was made by the Ghio estate, represented by John B. Ghio, cashier of the State Bank of Wellston.

Several transactions in realty of more than ordinary importance were brought to a focus during the week, while trading in this line as a whole was decided. The most notable development was an option taken by the City Club, a men's civic and luncheon organization, on 60x122 feet at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Locust streets, as a site for a 12-story building, for its exclusive use, with the exception of the ground floor, which is to be reserved for stores.

The estimated cost of the building is $1,000,000, including the site, for which, under the option, $300,000 is to be paid. The site has 122 feet on Locust street and 60 feet on Eleventh street, and is vacant, with the exception of an ancient two-story building occupying the northern part. It is onwed by the Haussler Investment Co., of which Harry Haussler is president, and which purchased it in 1879 for $29,000, according to veteral real estate men.

The club's plans originally contemplated purchasing in addition an adjoining space 45x122 feet on the south side on Eleventh street, which would have given the requisite depth to the building on that street. The adjoining lot is owned by the James M. Carpenter estate and is held at $150,000, or at the rate of approximately $3333 a front foot, which is not regarded as relatively high, in view of the price paid for the Locust street corner. The price asked, however, is not in acordance with the ideas of the purchasing committee of the club as to the value of the frontage on Eleventh street. The corner lot was bought at the rate of approximately $2459 a foot for the Locust street frontage, or at $5000 a foot for the Eleventh street frontage.

Light on All Sides.

The lot owned by the Carpenter state has a public alley on the south, which is regarded as an advantage, in that it would insure natural light on all sides of the proposed building. The lot is bounded also on the south by the 12-story building of the Laclede Gas Light Co., which is an attractive feature. Negotiations are pending with the Carpenter estate for this lot at a lower price, it is understood.

The option on the corner lot was taken subject to the approval of the members of the club at a meeting to be held Sept. 11. Plans for the building have been made by the T. P. Barnett Co. The site is opposite the 16-story structure of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Locust streets, recently completed, and which was financed by the Mercantile Trust Co.

Development on this part of Locust street will not lag, according to real estate men, now that the City Club has elected to erect so pretentious a structure on the Eleventh street corner, which doubtless was influenced by the decision of the Jefferson Hotel Co. to enlarge the Jefferson Hotel through the erection at the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets of a 12-story annex on a scale even surpassing that of the present structure. The Jefferson Hotel Co. has concluded negotiations with the Mercantile Trust Co. for financing this project, which will entail an investment of $2,500,000.

Doctors' Building Deferred.

The higher cost of building material, it is said, will defer construction on the 7-story building for physicians projected for the vacant lot on the west side of Grand avenue, between Windsor place and Belle avenue, owned by the Grand Avenue Masonic Temple Association. According to Ben Altheimer, of the Ben Altheimer & Bro. Real Estate Co., who conceived the project, bids for the building aggregate $1,150,000, whereas it was believed the structure could be erected for $500,000 or $600,000, exclusive of the lot, on which an option is held at $150,000.

The Franciscus Realty Co. virtually closed contracts for a large North St. Louis corner, but details are withheld pending execution of the deed. The Cornet & Zelbig Trust and the Mercantile Trust Co. have taken earnest money on several heavy deals, publication of which will have a wholesome effect on the situation.

FOURTH STREET BUILDING BEING REMODELED, ONE FLOOR LEASED

The Collier estate, owners of the seven-story building at the northeast corner of Fourth and St. Charles streets, are remodeling the building at a cost of $50,000, under the direction of Mauran, Russell & Crowell, architects.

The building has a frontage of 90 feet on Fourth street anr 150 feet on St. Charles street. The improvements will be completed Nov. 1. The building will have six lofts with a floor area of 13,000 square feet each. The first floor will consist of two store rooms with a floor area of 6000 feet each.

John F. Cogswell of the Cornet & Zelbig Trust, agents for the building, has leased the seventh floor for 10 years to Kampmeyer & Wagner, bookbinders, now in the Lucas Building, who will occupy their new quarters Sept. 15.

Several other leases in this building are being negotiated, there being a strong demand for first-class space in this locality with very little available.

SYNDICATE TO BUILD HOMES IN MOORLANDS

Announcement was made during the last week that a syndicate composed of T. Francis Campbell, R. A. Kastings and associates, have organized a building and investment company to finance and to build high-class homes in The Moorlands exclusively. Five lots were purchased last week, and two homes will be started immediately, and will be completed by the first of the year. It was stated by Campbell that only homes of the highest type would be constructed. It is the intention of this syndicate to build in the neighborhood of 20 or 30 homes to range in price from $25,000 to $30,000, and Nolte & Nauman, architects, are making plans.

Campbell yesterday stated his faith in St. Louis real estate and its development, and that it is his opinion that the demand for homes will be even greater than it has been, and as the trend of high-class home development has been westward, he chose The Moorlands particularly because of its location and surroundings.

The Moorlands Land Co. reports the sales of lot in The Moorlands as progressing rapidly, and further reports that improvements in The Moorlands are going ahead rapidly. Boland Place is being completed rapidly and work being rushed on Moorlands drive and Claytonnia terrace.

Texas

NOT long ago the Lower Rio Grande Valley was solid brush. Then came irrigation. Now, no community our age can show equal per capita investment in schools, hard-surfaced roads, transportation facilities. We raise oranges, lemons, grapefruit, avocados, truck, melons, cantaloupes, cotton, broom corn, corn, grasses, sorghums, cattle, hogs, chickens, etc. We prove that only the Nile Valley has soil equal to ours, that we have cool, dry summers, warm, dry winters. Without question, we have what you have been searching the world to find. We still need capital and man-power. This creates your opportunity. We need factories and canneries, small and large, so badly that it means wealth to able persons locating them here. We have rich acreage properties, improved and unimproved city and town real estate. Send dime for Rio Grande Valley edition, addressing Southern Texas Real Estate Bulletin and Opportunies Guide, Box D-30, Alamo, Tex. We charge no commission.

Mrs. DeGonia and her daughter each sue for $65,000 on account of personal injuries suffered by them and DeGonia asks for $30,000 because of injuries he suffered. RTHCLIFFE SAID TO HAVE MADE 2 WILLS al Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
Cockspur St., London, S. W.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The news that Northcliffe made two wills, one before he died, and that a big battle is already being waged them, will appear tomorrow in Riddell's well-informed News the World. Lord Riddell was a friend of the publisher.

It is understood the second will Lady Northcliffe sole execu. It is being opposed on the d that her husband was of up mind when he made it.

The News of the World story de three interested parties have caveats against the grant of of the will or letters of ad istration to the estate. The caveats were filed by three firms of solicitors, none of whom have divulged the names of their clients.

Four Codicils.

The first will is dated March 22, 1919, and has four codicils, dated June 13, 1919; June 23, 1920; Oct. 8, 1921, and April 27, 1922. The trustees of this will are Henry Preuss Arnholz and Sir George Sutton, both old friends of the publisher. Arnholz is a member of one of the firms of solicitors that has filed caveats against the second will. He and Sir George have not filed answers to the caveats against the first will.

After making the statement that the second will was made shortly before Lord Northcliffe died, the News of the World continues:

"No information is published concerning the contents of these various documents, but it is rumored Lady Northcliffe is the chief beneficiary under all. No doubt the two sets of testamentary dispositions differ in other respects.

"A writ of summons has been issued, thus commencing the suit to determine which of these testamentary papers shall be admitted to probate. The first will, with the codicils, is being put forward on the ground that the testator was of unsound mind at the date when the second was executed. This will have to be decided by the courts.

Struggle Over Papers.

"The case is of more than private interest, as upon the decision will no doubt depend the destination of what has been known as the Northcliffe Press, a vast influence for good or evil. Already various groups of financiers have been nibbling after Lord Northcliffe's shares in the Times, one of the other chief stockholders whereof is Sir John Ellerman, one of the leading shipping and commercial men in the country."

J. L. Garvin, editor of the Observer, thinks there will be a bitter struggle for control of the Times and others of the Northcliffe papers. He thinks the issue will largely be determined by the terms of the will finally accepted as binding.

Editor's Suggestions.

Garvin admits he knows nothing of the terms of the will but suggests the publisher tried to tie up the Times so it cannot be sold. His idea may have been to carry on his attacks against Premier Lloyd George, whose friends are said to be anxious to purchase control.

The editor lists the names of the newspaper and industrial magnates supposed to be after the Times. This list includes Sir John Ellerman, Sir William Berry, owner of the Sunday Times and the publishing firm of Casell's; Lord Rothermere, Lord Northcliffe's brother; Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the Daily Express; Sir Mackay Edgar, Anglo-Canadian financier and millionaire.

Garvin declares Lord Northcliffe must have paid £900,000 for control of the Times and £2,500,000 since.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM

TO THE SHOPMEN OF THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM:

Since the leaders of the railway shopcrafts ordered the members of their organizations to strike July 1, against decisions of the United States Railroad Labor Board, constant efforts have been made to find a basis for a just settlement. I believe you are familiar with those negotiations and the unsuccessful efforts to bring about a settlement which have been made by the Labor Board and individual members of the board, by members of the President's cabinet, by representatives of various organizations, and by the President himself.

The final conference in New York, August 23 further demonstrated that the differences which exist are of such a fundamental nature that they cannot be composed. We of the Illinois Central System believe there is nothing to be gained by further negotiations on a question which admits of no compromise. Moreover, we believe the situation has been unfavorably affected by reports frequently sent out by leaders of the shopcrafts that a nation-wide settlement was about to be effected, and that it can serve no good purpose to continue to hold out these false hopes. While we are deeply interested in the general situation, we believe that we can accomplish a great deal more for that part of the public served by us, for our employes and for ourselves, if we concentrate our future efforts largely upon the conditions on our own railway system.

No one regrets more than we the unfortunate situation of our former employes who gave up their positions upon orders from the leaders of their crafts. On June 14, when the strike vote was being taken, we addressed a letter to all Illinois Central System shopmen in which we appealed to their better judgment and counseled them not to vote in favor of placing in the hands of their leaders the power to call a strike. We were of the opinion then that if they placed such a power in the hands of their leaders it would be unwisely exercised and a strike would be called, resulting in untold suffering and hardships to the strikers. We had the interests of our shopmen at heart and did not want to face the situation of having to fill their places. We appreciated that in any emergency which might arise the public welfare demanded that our trains be kept running.

On July 10, ten days after the strike had been called and some of our shopmen had complied with the orders of their leaders to desert their posts, we again addressed them. The public had to be served with transportation and, if our shopmen who left our service were not going to return to their positions, new men had to be employed to fill the vacancies. We did not want to employ new men until we were absolutely sure that those who went out would not return. It therefore became necessary for us to fix a time within which those who left their positions could return without loss of pension, seniority and other rights. We waited ten days for our former employes to make up their minds, hoping all the time that they would return, and after having waited that long we gave them another whole week within which they could return without loss of any of their rights.

Holding, as we do, that service to the public is our first and highest duty, we could no longer continue a waiting policy and thus run the risk of not being able adequately to take care of those depending upon this railway system for transportation service.

After having taken every precaution we could consistently take in behalf of the men who went out, we began employing new men. The men who took the places of those who left our service have courageously and efficiently assisted us in rendering to the public an unimpaired transportation service. We believe they are entitled to very great consideration, not only from us, but also from our patrons. We submit that no fair-minded person with a correct understanding of the situation would have us deal unfairly by these men.

There is no dispute about the right of workmen to leave their positions. Neither can there be any question about the right of others to take the places thus made vacant, nor the right of any man to work when and where he may wish. Those rights are essential to civilization. The President of the United States has asserted that he will, if necessary, use the full power of the United States Government to sustain these rights. Neither can there be any question as to the attitude of the Illinois Central System toward labor organizations. We believe in the principles of organizations, and we stand ready to work hand in hand with those organizations which will work with us in serving the public.

From the beginning of this controversy we have felt that the members of the shopcraft organizations were being misled and it is a matter of deepest regret to us that we were not able to induce more of our shopmen to guard against ill-advised action. We believe that the vast majority of our employes in all departments, as well as the vast majority of our patrons, feel in their hearts that the Illinois Central System has dealt fairly by the striking shopmen. In addition to the letters which we addressed to them, reasoning with them and exhorting them to let their better judgment prevail, our officers appealed to them personally, worked with them and did everything they honorably could do to induce them to vote against the proposed strike; to refuse to give up their positions after the strike had been called, and, finally, to return to the service in time to preserve their pension and seniority rights unimpaired.

We hold no feeling of resentment toward those of our former shopmen who, as a result of being misled, gave up their positions and the benefits and privileges which they formerly held. So long as vacancies exist, we shall give preference to those of our former shopmen who have not resorted to violence or damaged company property.

However, frankness compels us to make clear that the vacancies are being rapidly filled. Our mechanical forces are largely depleted at only one of the main shop plants on the Illinois Central System. At all of our other shops our mechanical forces range all the way from substantial forces to more than 200 per cent of normal. This disparity has made it necessary for us to transfer some of our work from the shops having the smallest forces to those having the largest. The total number of men employed in the mechanical department of the Illinois Central System on June 30, the day before the strike, was 13,507. On August 24, after almost two months of the strike, there were 12,653 employes in the mechanical department, of whom a very large percentage were old employes who remained faithful by refusing to strike. Therefore, on August 24 we had only 854 fewer employes in the mechanical department than on the day before the strike.

On July 3, the Labor Board, by resolution, called for the formation of new organizations to take the places of those which had refused to abide by the decisions of the board. The following is quoted from that resolution:

> Whereas, in the future submission of disputes involving rules, wages and grievances of said classes of employes of the carriers it will be desirable, if not a practical necessity, for the employes of each class on each carrier to form some sort of an association or organization to function in the representation of said employes before the Railroad Labor Board in order that the effectiveness of the Transportation Act may be maintained.
> Now, therefore, be it resolved that it be communicated to carriers and the employes remaining in the service and the new employes succeeding those who have left the service, to take steps as soon as practicable to perfect on each carrier such organizations as may be deemed necessary for the purpose mentioned above, and
> Be it further resolved that if it be assumed that the employes who leave the service of the carriers because of their dissatisfaction with any decision of the Labor Board are within their rights in so doing it must likewise be conceded that the men who remain in the service and those who enter it anew are within their right in accepting such employment—that they are not strikebreakers, seeking to impose the arbitary will of an employer on employes—that they have the moral as well as the legal right to engage in such service of the American public to avoid interruption of indispensable railroad transportation and that they are entitled to the protection of every department and branch of the Government, state and national.

In response to the resolution of the Labor Board, the employes of the mechanical department of the Illinois Central System have perfected their own organizations, as follows:

Association of Machinists, Helpers and Apprentices,
Association of Boilermakers, Helpers and Apprentices,
Association of Blacksmiths, Helpers and Apprentices,
Association of Sheet Metal Workers, Helpers and Apprentices,
Association of Carmen, Helpers and Apprentices,
Association of Electricians, Helpers and Apprentices.

The foregoing organizations furnish the machinery through which representatives of the employes may at any time obtain conferences with representatives of the management. In case differences arise which cannot be composed, the way is always open for an appeal to the Labor Board. The feeling among the employes of our mechanical department in regard to the desirability of these organizations is evidenced by the fact that only 185 failed to join them.

In closing this communication, we desire to avail ourselves of the opportunity to extend the sincere thanks of the management to those shopmen who have remained loyal and faithful in the crisis through which we have been passing and have helped us to discharge our obligation to the public.

C. H. MARKHAM,
President, Illinois Central System.

SENATORS SEEK FINAL ACTION ON BONUS TUESDAY

Bill Will Be Taken Up Monday and Pushed to a Vote Under Unanimous Consent Agreement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26. — A unanimous consent agreement to take up the soldiers' bonus bill Monday and push it to a final vote was entered into today by the Senate.

With a view to getting a vote late Tuesday it was agreed that after 6 p. m. Monday no Senator should speak more than once nor longer than 20 minutes on any amendment.

The unanimous consent agreement was proposed by Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, but it imposed no limitation on debate on the bill itself. It was suggested, however, that there might be a move to that end later should it prove necessary.

Fight "Passage" Over Veto.

Senators Underwood, Democrat, Alabama, and Borah, Republican, Idaho, said they would offer no objection to speedy action. Senator Underwood gave formal notice that his fight would be against passage of the measure over President Harding's veto in the event that it was returned to Congress with executive disapproval.

By common understanding the Senate did not undertake today to bring to a vote any of the several amendments thus far offered. Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, presented his amendment proposing the reclamation bill as a part of the bonus with preference given veterans in reclamation work and financial assistance for them in developing homesteads on the reclaimed lands.

In promising his support to any bill that would give the former service men the justice to which he believed they were entitled, Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, told the Senate it would be forced to decide among other things whether it would listen to "the cry of commercialization of patriotism" when it had not done that at the end of the war. Congress, he said, had proceeded to vote, and had made no apology for doing it, to pay shipping claims, claims of munition makers and claims of the makers of uniforms and other equipment for the service men. It had done so, he said, on the statement that those contractors would have made profit had the war not ended. There was no cry of commercialization of patriotism then, he said. It was called "business."

"Commercialization of Patriotism."

"But those were inanimate subjects," he went on. "Those claims must be met and met promptly, but the soldier, the men who fired the shots, must wait. It is commercialization of patriotism, when his compensation is to be adjusted."

The Arizona Senator said he must remind the Senate that the original demand for the bonus came not from the former service men, but from men and women who believed that the service men were entitled to it.

Also supporting the bill, Senator Ransdell, Democrat, Louisiana, told the Senate that if Congress wished to settle its obligations to the veterans it could find means to do so, and that if it did not there were "a thousand excuses to hide behind."

"Rich in War, Poor Now."

"It seems strange to me," he said, "that as long as the war was on there was no end to the amount of money the United States could raise to foot its bills, but now when victory is won and the national security assured, we suddenly become too poor to adjust the soldiers' salaries on an equitable basis. In the meantime, however, our Government has seen fit to repeal the excess profits tax, which yielded about $15,000,000 a year."

The Louisiana Senator argued that through the "dauntless courage and indomitable spirt" of the soldiers the war had been edded before any one had dared to hope it would be and that this speedy end had saved the nation many billions more than the bonus would cost it.

"The shameful conduct of this Government towards its soldier since the war," Senator Ransdell continued, "stands out in bold contrast when compared with the treatment of other soldiers at the hands of their countries."

COMPENSATION ACT ARGUED IN COURT

Injunction Is Sought to Prevent Measures From Going on Ballot.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 26.—The workmen's compensation referendum case was argued before the State Supreme Court in banc today. In this case, Thomas M. Sayman, head of a St. Louis manufacturing concern, and a numbers of others, have brought suit in Sayman's name for an injunction against Secretary of State Becker to keep him from allowing the workmen's compensation act, enacted by the last Legislature, to go upon the ballot at the November election, as sought in referendum petitions filed with Becker by Thomas J. McNamara and other leaders of the St. Louis Building Trades Council. McNamara is an intervening defendant.

Sayman, through former State Senator Alroy S. Phillips, his attorney, has charged that petitions circulated in the Twelfth St. Louis Congressional District were defective. James W. Walsh, special commissioner appointed by Circuit Judge Slate of the Circuit Court of Cole County to take testimony and make findings in the case, found that 1754 of the 3523 names on the Twelfth District petitions could not be counted, and hence the petitions for that district were 547 names short of the 2317 required to constitute the 5 per cent of the qualified voters of the Twelfth District, as demanded by law.

Claims Movement Null.

Walsh found that since petitions had been filed from only 11 districts, the minimum number under the law, that insufficiency of the Twelfth District petitions rendered the entire referendum movement null. He recommened that State issue the injunction sought against Becker.

Slate, however, saw a different light. He reversed the commissioner without setting out any reasons and found for the defendants. The suit was filed originally against Becker, but McNamara sought and obtained permission to become an intervening defendant.

Throughout trial of the action McNamara was represented by former State Senator Frank H. Farris of Rolla, but when the time came for the commissioner's report to be made to Judge Slate, Mark Eagleton and S. S. Rook, members of the firm of Foristel & Eagleton of St. Louis, appeared on the scene.

Foristel also came to town, though ostensibly on other business. When the brief for McNamara and Becker was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday, it was discovered that Foristel and Eagleton had come out formally in the case with their firm name signed to part of the brief along with that of Farris.

Rook was here today, but he and Assistant Attorney General Albert Miller, representing Becker, elected to allow Farris to take the entire 50 minutes allotted to their side. Phillips opening for Sayman stressed the fact that men who circulated the compensation referendum petitions also circulated at the same time a set of initiative petitions. By the initiative petitions repeal of the workmen's compensaton act and enactment of a new employers' liability act is sought.

Phillips contends that the Supreme Court in the judicial redistricting case held when the referendum has been invoked, the subject of the referendum must be held inviolate from interference until the people have passed on it. He contends that circulation of the double-barreled petitions has the effect of nullifying both sets.

About 53,000 names of the 54,000 on the referendum petitions are on the initiative petitions, Phillips said.

Walsh, in holding that the petitions were insufficient, found that names of dead men, nonresidents, minors and of persons who had not authorized use of their signatures on the petitions.

Unless a decision in this case is reached within the next two weeks no little inconvenience to the Secretary of State will result because of the publication of initiative and referendum measures which he intends to make and for which he desires to close contracts within two weeks.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

MRS. W. P. P.—The Sacred Films Co., Inc., is located in Burbank, Cal.

W. M. F.—We do not know the word in the English language with which no other word will rhyme.

MRS. J. P. C.—A recipe for making grape juice at home was published Aug. 12, under the name of Wildly.

O. L.—Write the Register of Copyrights, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., in regard to copyrighting a piece of music.

PICKNEYVILLE.—Address your question regarding the route to Alma, Kan., to the Reference Department of the Auto Club of Missouri.

MAY.—The quotation, "For of all glad words of tongue or pen, The gladdest are these: 'I can try again,'" is taken from Whittier's poem, "Maud Muller."

CONSTANT READER. — Quotations on the rate of exchange on the German mark are being published daily in the Post-Dispatch market reports. They are at present selling 10 for 1 cent.

MRS. BROWN.—At a formal dinner a fork may be used to eat canapes, but at an informal affair it is not improper to use the fingers. Canapes may be served with other relishes besides anchovy. Sardines may be used.

F. M. A.—We know of no monetary value attached to such a relic; however, you might consult the Missouri Historical Society, in the Jefferson Memorial Building at Forest Park, which might be interested in the glove from that standpoint.

M. L.—A subscriber suggests the following to remove varnish from the crepe de chine silk: Soak the spots well with kerosene, then rub butter on them. Allow the material to lie in this for several days, then rub with fresh butter, wash with a white naptha soap and the garment will be spotless.

INFO.—A "Rally Day" in the Sunday School is generally observed late in September or early in October. Its object is to mark a fresh start for the year's work. Children and adults alike have returned from vacations and are ready to settle down to study for the year ahead. Efforts are generally made to rally the full force of the school. Former scholars are sought out and urged to be in attendance, and new scholars eagerly solicited. Promotions, reforming of classes and changes in the organizations are some of the objects of the day.

INDUSTRIOUS.—In order to preserve plums without the skins, pour boiling water over them, cover until cold, then pull off skins. Make a syrup of a pound of sugar and a teacup of water for each pound of fruit, bring to boil, pour over the fruit, let the plums remain in this for a day or two, then drain off the juice and boil again; skim it clear and pour over the plums, allow to remain until the next day, then put them over the fire in the syrup, boil them very gently until clear. Take the plums from the syrup with a skimmer, put into jars; boil the syrup until rich and thick, take off the scum which may rise, then let cool and settle, pour over the plums, and seal.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

AMBITION.—A minor does not require a license to fish in the State of Missouri.

W. T. S.—You can do the proposed wiring provided that the work is properly done and the landlord consents to your doing it.

READER OF THE POST.—The second marriage would be illegal, but the party could not now be prosecuted for bigamy.

ROOD.—A storekeeper is not compelled to sell to anyone who wants to buy, unless he has previously agreed to do so.

READER.—There is no law compelling tenants on the lower floors to keep their windows closed. This is a matter of their own judgment.

HUSBAND'S VICTIM.—The wife could be prosecuted for forging a check against her husband, but it would be difficult to convict her.

H. M.—Consult a lawyer and show him your contract with the building and loan concern. It may be possible for you to sell your contract without any loss.

LOLA.—If you are making enough to support yourself you can leave home as soon as you are 21, if you are still sure that that is the best course to take.

W. G. B.—It is not necessary to have your first papers recorded here. You can apply for your final papers on Aug. 12, 1923, providing that you have lived in the State of Missouri for one year, at that time. You can obtain further information from the Naturalization Office in the Federal Building, Ninth and Olive streets.

MABEL.—Your husband and your child would each receive one-half of your share of the mortgage, upon your death. You cannot cut your husband off with $1 as long as you are married to him. If you divorced your husband he would then receive no part of your property at your death. If your husband bought the property in at Court sale, you could refuse to buy it in with him, and could compel him to pay you enough to satisfy your share of the mortgage. Our advice is to consult a lawyer.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

H. A. P.—We are not an authority on the bleaching or dyeing of hair, but suggest that you try combing the black patch with a comb dipped in a weak solution of ammonia.

PERPLEXED.—Such a condition as you describe calls for a thorough physical examination. Do not attempt self-treatment, as valuable time will be lost in locating and giving proper attention to what may be a formidable condition.

JUSTIN W.—From your description we cannot make out that you really have any trouble. An occasional itching is perhaps experienced by everyone. If there is a repetition of this irritation, use zinc oxide and calamine lotion, dabbing it on and allowing it to dry. Nothing in your case indicates a reason for worry.

AN ANXIOUS MOTHER.—We do not think such a remedy as you suggest would be of the least benefit. You do not state your or your husband's age, and this may have a bearing on the case. The intelligent procedure is to have an examination to ascertain if any local condition exists.

A READER.—Osteomyelitis is an inflammation of the marrow of the bone, or of the bone and marrow. It may be acute or chronic. The acute form, usually a septic condition, is marked by fever, chills and depression, with suppuration and extension to the neighboring parts, with abscess formation. The chronic form occurs after injury, or from rheumatism, syphilis or tuberculosis. This disease is not hereditary, although some hereditary condition, such as syphilis, could cause it.

In sad but loving memory of our darling daughter, Martha Marguerite Green Weber, who departed this life one year ago, Aug. 30, 1921, at the tender age of 12 years 7 months and 7 days.
Sadly missed by her mother and father,
MR. AND MRS. L. M. WEBER.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Edwin Rihg, who died Aug. 26, 1918:
Today recalls sad memories of our loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today are the ones who loved him best.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER AND SISTER.

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mary E. Dickenson, who died Aug. 26, 1921.
Mother has gone and left us,
And her voice we'll hear no more.
She has gone to dwell with Jesus,
On that bright eternal shore.
MRS. IDA WINBERG, Daughter.
MRS. FLORA PIESCHEL, Granddaughter.

In loving memory of our beloved son and brother, Frank Kern, who departed this life five years ago, Aug. 28, 1917:
A precious one from us has gone;
A voice we loved is still;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Sadly missed by parents and brothers and sisters.
KERN FAMILY. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear mother, Lottie Hubach, who departed this life five years ago:
Upright and just in all her ways,
Faithful and honest to the end of her days.
Forgotten to the world by some she may be,
But dear to my heart, dear mother, you will always be.
SON, HARRY HUBACH. (c)

In loving remembrance of Jacob Henry Bischoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bischoff, who departed this life just three years ago, Aug. 24, 1919:
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Sadly missed by parents, sisters, brothers and friends.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband, Frederick M. Dister, who departed this life Aug. 28, 1921:
Upright and just in all his ways,
Faithful and honest to the end of his days;
Forgotten to the world by some he may be,
But dear to my heart and memory he will always be.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and brother, Benjamin P. Shultz, who departed this life two years ago, Aug. 27, 1920:
Often our hearts do wander to the grave not far away,
Where they laid our Ben just two years ago today.
Sadly missed by his loving wife, Emma Shultz, and sister, Virginia Ogan.

In fond memory of Joseph H. Robben, who was killed Sunday, Aug. 28, 1921:
Upright and just in all his ways,
Faithful and honest to the end of his days;
Forgotten to the world by some he may be,
But dear to my heart and memory he will always be.
Sadly missed by brother and sister-in-law,
MR. AND MRS. BERNARD J. ROBBENS AND NIECE, VIRGINIA.

In loving memory of my beloved wife, our dear mother and grandmother, Wilhelmina Christ, who departed from us two years ago, Aug. 26, 1920:
She bid no one a last farewell,
She said good-by to none;
Her loving heart had ceased to beat;
Before we knew it she was gone.
Her cherished and kindly ways
Are pleasant to recall.
She had a kind word for each one,
And died beloved by all.
Sadly missed by Christ family and all who loved her.

In memory of our beloved daughter, Irma B. Schoessel, who departed this life one year ago, Aug. 23, 1921:
Do not ask if we miss her; oh, there's such a vacant place;
Oft we think we hear her footsteps, or we see her smiling face.
She has gone to brighter regions, safe from every grief and care;
We shall meet again in heaven and never more be parted there.
Angels guard you, darling daughter, and may your harp ring loud and clear.
Leaving notes of love behind you to the ones that love you, dear.
Sadly missed by PARENTS.

Automobiles For Sale—Miscellaneous

Clear Out the Cobwebs!

Don't get into a rut. There's something new going on all the time. Get next to the new ways. Last year's styles are dead—last year's business methods don't count today. The live question is—

What's Doing Today?

Answer—

Yahlem Is Knocking 'Em for a Goal

It's the pep of a live organization that does it. It's the swift execution of 1922 ideas that gives you service, quality and price.

Anybody can sell you a used automobile. You can buy one anywhere.

But it's only at Yahlem's that buying a used car comes under the head of pleasure. You feel the enthusiasm and ginger of the entire organization—and you'll get excellent service.

And besides, you might as well cache away the extra dough that you save. It won't rust.

Today every member of this organization is on his toes and we're going to bat 1000. Don't sleep on the job. Be at our store early and get yours while the getting is good. And don't forget—"If it comes from Yahlem, it's all right."

Exchange Car Department

3015 Locust St.

BOMONT 3080

Our Exchange Car Policy

Every car priced in plain figures at absolutely the lowest figure for which we will sell it.

It would be foolish to ignore the fact that in the past there has been some "jockeying" in the price of exchange cars, resulting to the disadvantage of the average customer.

From now on our Exchange Car Department will be positively ONE PRICE, just as our New Car Department has always been one price. Also every exchange car, unless otherwise stated, will be sold under the guarantee that it may be returned at the end of seven days if unsatisfactory and money refunded.

The Result: 1st—Every customer is guaranteed satisfaction.

2d—Every customer knows he is making his purchase at the lowest price at which he or anyone else can buy the car.

We believe ours is the finest, cleanest and lowest priced exchange car stock in the city. We believe we can offer values far better than can be found in new cars at the same prices.

Removal Sale

Due to the onrushing business of Maxwell and Chalmers cars, we have outgrown our present spacious building and are forced to move our Exchange Car Department to 3029-31 Olive street. Realizing that we will be cramped for room, we are offering to the public the opportunity to take advantage of one of the most sensational used car sales in the history of automobiles. You may come in and select any car we have at almost your own price. Prices range from $65.00 to $1500.00, with a small payment down and the balance in monthly installments. We feel sure that if you will spend a few minutes with us in looking over this wonderful line of used cars, it will not take you long to decide on buying a car. Although you may not be quite ready for it at the present time, you will buy it for the future. We have any make and model you may desire.

WEEKS APPROVES ARMY BILL PROVIDING FOR 12,000 OFFICERS

Measure Increases Maximum From 12,000 Retaining Larger Number of Higher Ranks.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Maintaining that the strength of officer personnel of the regular army should be 12,000, Secretary Weeks in a report to the House Military Committee today gave approval to the Curry bill, which, placing the maximum at 12,000 as provided in existing law, would retain a larger number of officers of the rank of Captain and above and not have in the military establishments as many Lieutenants as now are proposed.

It would be "gratifying" to the Department, Secretary Weeks declared, to have the Curry bill passed, because "It would be a material improvement over existing legislation."

Because adjustments are being made to reduce the number of officers under the law as it is, the Secretary suggested that if there were to be any modifications they should be made without delay.

The Curry bill, the Secretary insisted, would decrease the cost of maintaining the army during the present year and reduce the expense of the retired list.

A BOY SCOUT KNOWS A LOT

Every Eagle Scout knows what the average person knows, and then some—Otherwise he could not have reached the Eagle honor, which entitles him to wear 28 merit badges—Warren C. Buckland, for instance, can do the electric work around home, install or repair plumbing, plan and build a house, survey a plot of land, detect typhoid in water, and do ever so many other things, and he's hardly 16 yet. :-: :-: :-:

WHAT do you know about architecture, chemistry or surveying? Every Eagle Boy Scout in America knows what the average layman has picked up, and a whole lot more.

And that isn't half of it—every scout who attains the honor of Eagle has a good working knowledge of every out-of-door craft; nearly every manual art and many of the sciences that he would learn in no public school system and few private schools.

As an example, there is Warren C. Buckland of Flushing, Long Island. He achieved this high honor, passing twenty-one tests required, plus half a dozen additional honor examinations, requiring proficiency in both strength and skill, before he had reached his sixteenth birthday. Warren, who wasn't named after Mr. Harding, is in his second year in high school.

Reticent at first, Warren eventually thawed out and admitted having the right to wear twenty-eight merit badges, which are the insignia of the tests passed. They are worn on the left arm. Each suggests its particular significance to the initiate.

How near can you come to Warren's general, all-around knowledge? Here is what he knows, and remember that the majority of scouts know as much before they drop out—Warren is just an example:

Swimming—You say that you can swim, but do you know how to rescue a drowning person, and how to break all the possible holds he may grip you with, as well as swim expertly? An Eagle Scout can.

Electricity—An Eagle Scout can wire a house, locate a blown-out fuse and replace it; and, in short, he understands all about practical electricity.

Firemanship—After passing this test a scout knows as much theory as the average city fireman. He knows how to enter a burning building and leave it, bringing with him an unconscious person, and how to fight fire.

Carpentry—This badge on a scout's arm means that he is a carpenter in that he can plan a house and build it.

Machinery—This means that the scout has a working knowledge of all sorts of machinery and mechanical devices.

Painting—When this test has been passed, a scout isn't an artist, but he can mix and apply paint in the most efficient manner.

When Warren had told of his conquests thus far, he changed the subject to say that after passing the tenderfoot, second-class and first-class examination there are two honor grades to be overcome before being eligible for the grade of Eagle Scout—those of Life Scout and Star Scout. A Life Scout must know first aid, personal and public health, life-saving, pioneering and physical development. A Star Scout must have the right to five more merit badges than a Life Scout. These examinations are given by the scout's own scoutmaster. When these requirements are met with the scout may take the examinations for the highest honor, that of Eagle Scout.

The examinations for Eagle Scouts are different in that they are divided into two parts. The candidates are first quizzed by their scoutmasters and then by the local Honor Board, composed of experts in the different branches of scoutdom. These examinations are taken as the individual scout feels that he is able to pass them and more or less at his convenience.

There are 432,037 Boy Scouts in the United States, out of which number of scouts there are only 1306 Eagle Scouts.

Not only is Warren an expert in those subjects before mentioned, but he can cook and live in a camp comfortably; he can survey a plot of land and install all the plumbing in a house. He can tear a drop of water apart and tell you whether it was filled to capacity with typhoid germs or not. He is able to prepare a lecture on "Safety First" and tell why there are so many accidents in big cities. The chances are that Warren could instruct college students in civic government.

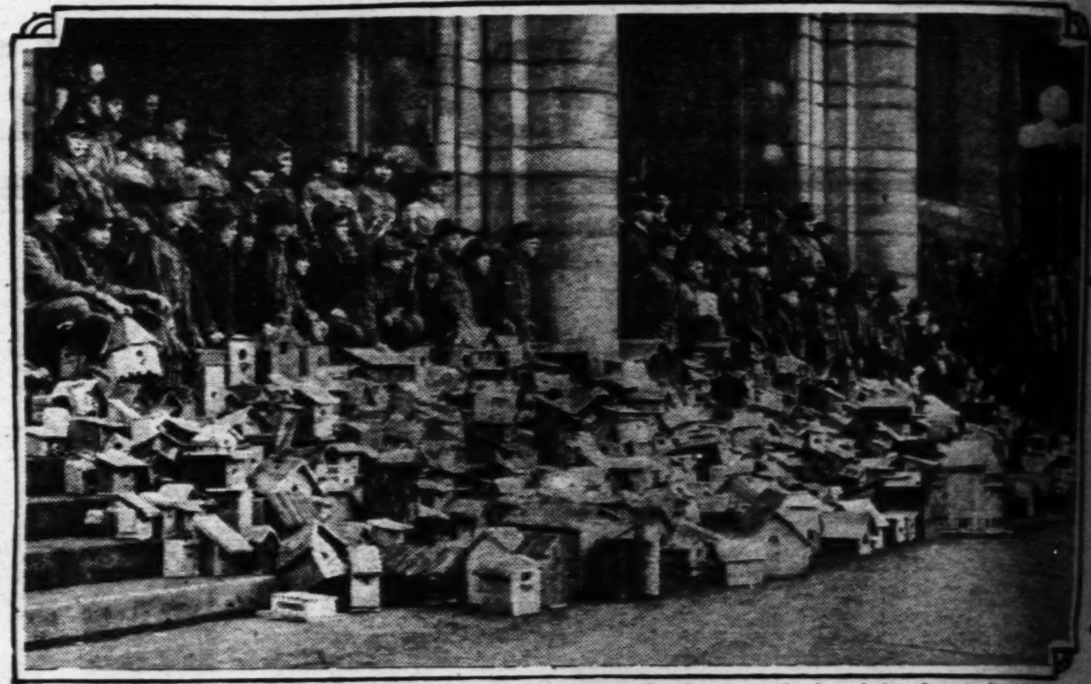
He also has a working knowledge of handicraft in the home. This means that when his father comes home from the office tired and needing rest and is told that the lock on the cellar door is broken, that the screen on the parlor is torn and that the faucet in the kitchen won't turn off, the father can rest and the jobs will be done.

Warren, as being an Eagle Scout, is on oath to do his "Good Turns Daily," and so has both the will and the ability to do almost anything. And Warren isn't exceptional in his capabilities and attainments; he wears his honors lightly—he's just a "Good Scout."

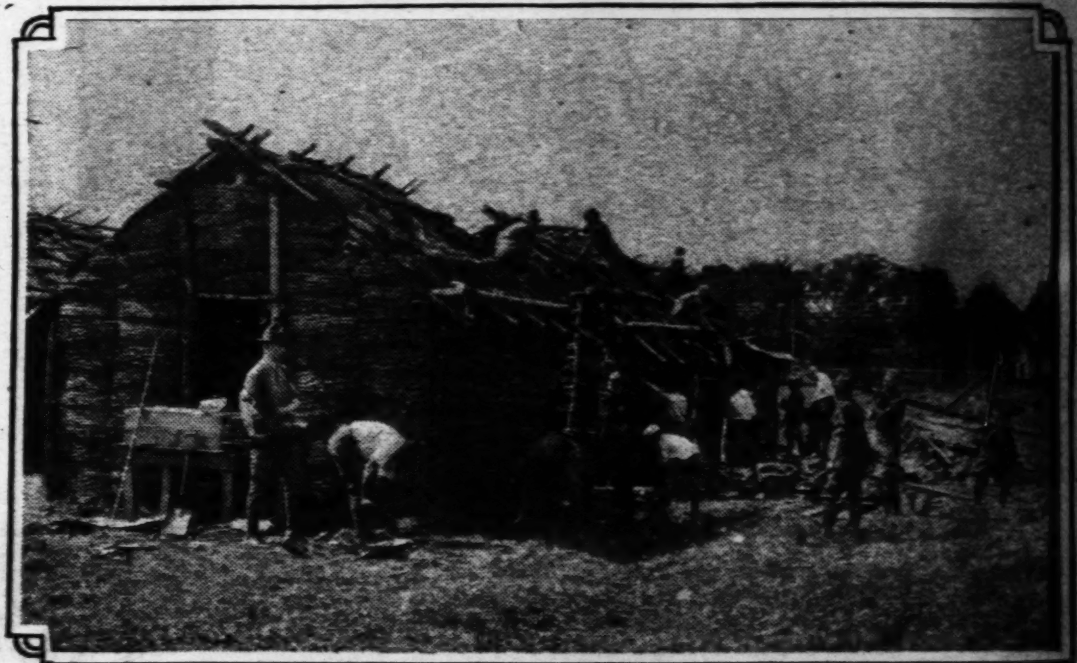
St. Louis has approximately 50,060 Boy Scouts. When Colin H. Livingston of Washington, president of the Boy Scouts of America, visited St. Louis last year he said in a speech:

"If we had all our boys in the movement we should have an organization that would be of great influence against the many 'isms' which are trying to gain a foothold in the world.

"If the Boy Scout movement goes ahead it will make America the greatest nation on the greatest foundation in the world. It is necessary for the future progress of the nation."



Bird houses which were made by Boy Scouts of St. Louis and placed in the parks.



Boy Scouts of Springfield, Mass., building a village. They used no nails, but lashed the bark to saplings.

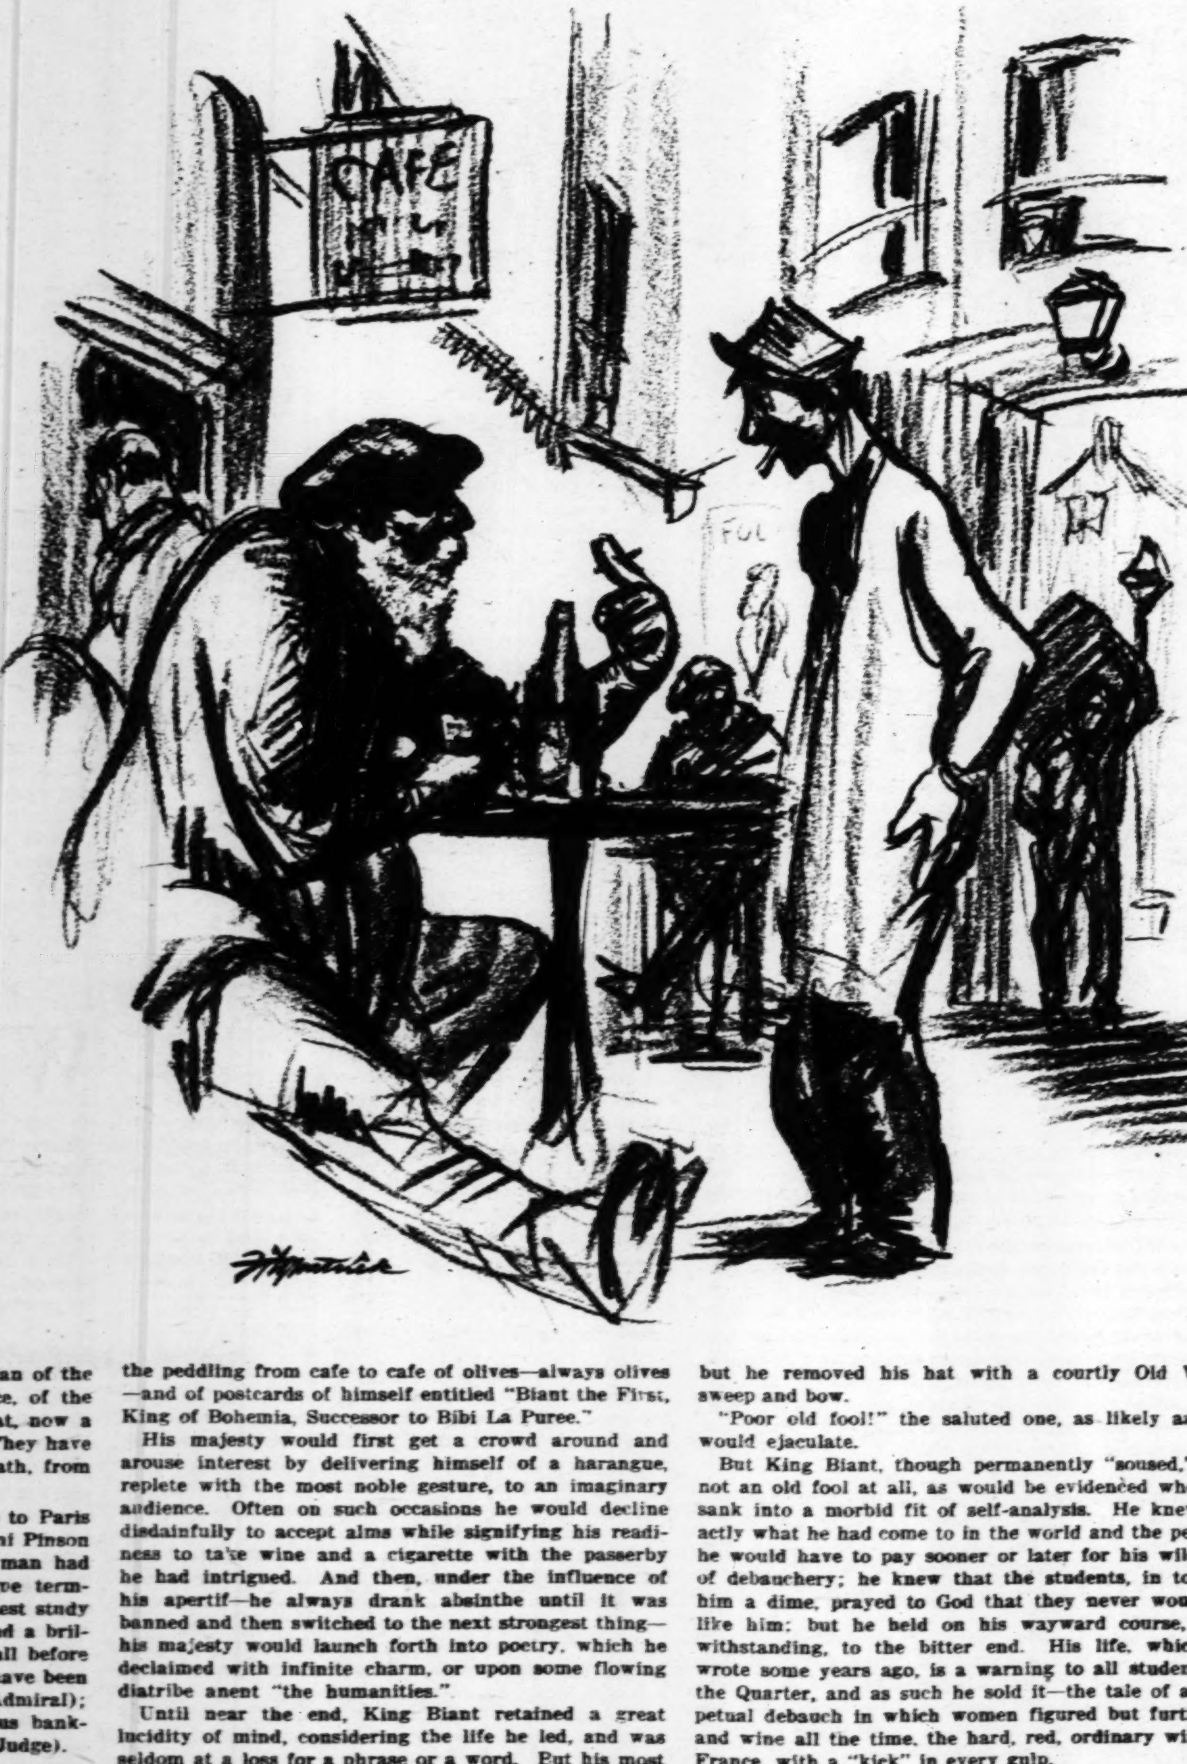
The Last of the Bohemians Passes

Viscount de Gheraldine, self-styled King of Bohemia, ends his 35-year debauch in the Latin Quarter of Paris by dying drunk—By birth a nobleman, "His Majesty" drifted from youth to old age a homeless derelict—Highly educated, he preferred to exist by his wits, his old-time courtliness of manner, and his reputation as the "last of the old guard"

By FERDINAND TUOHY.



VISCOUNT ADALBERT BIANT DE GHERALDINE, Breton nobleman, self-styled king of Bohemia, and recognized by students and frequenters of the Latin Quarter, Paris, as such, is dead.

The Viscount was only a beggar, a poor piece of flotsam who had gone wrong through drink, and yet his passing marks the end of an epoch, of a phase famous in life and letters, more definitely than does the demise of many a monarch born to the purple. For Gheraldine boasted that he was the last of the old guard, of that Bohemia sung by Murger and Du Maurier, and that we should never see his like again.

"Look at me!" he would declaim, "and be proud of me. For I belong to a better world than you shall ever know, to a world in which one was permitted to live according to one's philosophy without being trodden under foot."

And forthwith his majesty would relapse onto a bench, on the Boul' Mich' and, hiccoughing, swallow his red wine and munch his crescent roll, the royal nutriment of his declining days. And passing students, in response to his stereotyped "Give me a dime!" would drop coins into his outstretched hat.

The Quarter supported King Biant for five and thirty years and his majesty took the proffered wine, bread or money, not as alms or charity, but as rightful tribute And now he is no more, the giant sexagenarian of the riotous white locks and basso profundo voice, of the fantastical garb, now military, now frock coat, now a blanket, and the crimson, drink-seared face. They have buried him in Pere Lachaise, a solitary wreath, from the students of the Quarter, above him.

The Viscount, as a young man of 25, came to Paris in the '80's, era of Trilby and Svengali, of Mimi Pinson and Rodolphe. He came, as many a young man had before him, "to study the humanities," vague terminology which, in his case, left him the greatest study of all. For the derelict of after years had had a brilliant college and university career, carrying all before him in the classics, and had he chosen could have been either naval officer (his brother is today an Admiral); a financier (his brother-in-law is a prosperous banker), or a lawyer (his father was a provincial Judge).

But a horror of practical work, and love of a cynical independence, attributes of the true Bohemian, had early beset the Viscount. He preferred to laze and loaf around the Quarter, a character, than to be successful, but a cypher, in the ordinary jog-trot world. And so he mapped out his "career." Drunkard by accident and without will power by nature, his majesty just drifted downstream, from year's end to year's end, from youth to old age. For years he had no home, nowhere to rest his snow head save the billiard table of the Cafe du Pantheon. Or stretched out on three or four chairs on the terrace, all alone in the silence of the night, the last of the Bohemians would await the morrow and whatever it might bring.

Only twice in thirty-five years did he do any regular work, and on each occasion he was fired within a few days. Of irregular work he was fonder; this took the form of his offering to correct the Latin and Greek exercises of his student friends.

"I hold myself at the disposition of my college friends," he once circularized, "for the correction of their Latin and Greek exercises and of kindred literary bagatelles, always guaranteeing to leave in enough faults to persuade professors that Messieurs, my clients, have not been aided."

Official action had to be taken against his majesty to hinder him continuing to prosper in this role of students' aid. A second source of income would be the peddling from cafe to cafe of olives—always olives—and of postcards of himself entitled "Biant the First, King of Bohemia, Successor to Bibi La Puree."

His majesty would first get a crowd around and arouse interest by delivering himself of a harangue, replete with the most noble gesture, to an imaginary audience. Often on such occasions he would decline disdainfully to accept alms while signifying his readiness to take wine and a cigarette with the passerby he had intrigued. And then, under the influence of his apertif—he always drank absinthe until it was banned and then switched to the next strongest thing—his majesty would launch forth into poetry, which he declaimed with infinite charm, or upon some flowing diatribe anent "the humanities."

Until near the end, King Biant retained a great lucidity of mind, considering the life he led, and was seldom at a loss for a phrase or a word. But his most interesting impromptu boulevard disquisitions would be on dead or contemporary celebrities he had known, such as Verlaine, Bergson and Richepin; for, did he choose, his majesty had access to most of the literary salons in Paris that mattered. But he preferred to awaken each day without a cent, to pass the hours along his beloved boulevard, amongst his young friends, and to finish the day, either on the terrace of the Pantheon Cafe, in a police cell or in hospital.

King Biant usually reserved his visits to the police depot and the sick ward for the winter time, when it would become too cold to pass the night out of doors. Any gendarme in the Quarter, on being requested by his majesty to arrest the royal person, would acquiesce promptly in the royal will. Release would come as regularly next morning. Getting into hospital was rather a more tricky affair. During his early studies, and later through mixing with medical students in the Quarter, King Biant had acquired a close and expert knowledge of medicine; so much so that he could easily mimic the symptoms of this and that nervous ailment; and it was a long time before the local hospital authorities discovered that the patient they thought so intelligent in the comprehension of his symptoms was nothing else than a malingerer.

One trait in the royal character stood out above the rest—his majesty's exaggerated politeness to the fair sex. Never a woman passed him by on the boulevard but he removed his hat with a courtly Old World sweep and bow.

"Poor old fool!" the saluted one, as likely as not, would ejaculate.

But King Biant, though permanently "soused," was not an old fool at all, as would be evidenced when he sank into a morbid fit of self-analysis. He knew exactly what he had come to in the world and the penalty he would have to pay sooner or later for his wild life of debauchery; he knew that the students, in tossing him a dime, prayed to God that they never would be like him; but he held on his wayward course, notwithstanding, to the bitter end. His life, which he wrote some years ago, is a warning to all students of the Quarter, and as such he sold it—the tale of a perpetual debauch in which women figured but furtively, and wine all the time, the hard, red, ordinary wine of France, with a "kick" in every gulp.

So the last of the Bohemians eked out his life on a terrain once freely peopled by those of his kind. Begging, demanding, reciting, selling postcards, saluting the fair and slapping his student friends on the back. Commencing the day with a "hangover" and finishing it drunk.

"What a pity," his majesty would lament, in his closing days, "that they did not let me join up as a volunteer when the war broke out! I could at least have died decently" His wish—to die decently—has been granted him. Surrounded by his family, who never disowned him, and laid out like a person of note in a private ward, King Biant de Gheraldine breathed his last. For a month previously he had been virtually unable to move from the terrace of the Cafe du Pantheon, but the students came to his semi-paralyzed form with their offerings and his majesty continued his uninterrupted thirty-five years' "drunk." He was drunk when at last carried to the hospital, not vulgarly or loudly drunk, but in his customary poetic and declamatory manner; and he was drunk, quietly, subduedly drunk, when he died. At least so say the students, a delegation of whom saw their king laid to rest the other day at Pere Lachaise.

"The king is dead!" they proclaimed, in time-honored language at the graveside. But no one echoed "Long live the king!" For King Biant de Gheraldine was the last of his race.

Crusoe for Thirty Days

Reynard at a trading post last winter.

Old Frank Reynard, trapper in Canada's isolated North, rescued from Stone Island in Cormorant Lake after subsisting on roots and mint for a month—Canoe was washed away and the aged man could not swim—Friends searched many islands before he was found :: ::

Reynard's cabin.

MEN of Northern Canada are trained to endurance. Hardships which would appear insurmountable to their brethren of the cities further south mean little or nothing to the pioneers of the isolated regions north of the fifty-third parallel of latitude.

In the course of a year the people of the North hear many strange and thrilling stories of courageous fights for life against the fury of the elements; but it is seldom that the hero of one of these incidents is a man who has passed his allotted span of three score and ten years, and who comes out of a terrific ordeal with courage undaunted, as did old Frank Reynard the other day.

North of 53 stands the town of The Pas, the last real link between the civilization of the South and the wilds of the North. The Pas is the jumping-off place for the great unknown regions of Canada. It is the outfitting place for trappers and prospectors and is a busy little town inhabited by pioneers from the far corners of the world, men and women imbued with the wanderlust, whom civilization never could satisfy. Many strange characters pass through The Pas, some to return and others to be claimed by the northern snows.

Several years ago Frank Reynard, an elderly trapper, drifted into the North Country, and after spending a short time in The Pas headed into the beyond. On the banks of Cormorant Lake he built a cabin and began to ply his business of trapping during the winter months.

Subsequently a thin ribbon of steel known as the Hudson's Bay Railway was constructed out of The Pas, leading due north toward Hudson's Bay. The railway never has been completed to its ultimate destination, but twice a week a train leaves the town and slowly crawls along the buckling steel and rotting ties for a distance of 214 miles. The majority of the travelers on this train are trappers and fur traders. Stopping places are far apart. Every shack and trading post is known to the train crew and traders who make regular trips. Passing Reynard's cabin one day the train crew missed the old man. His door was open, but there was no sign of him and no smoke issuing from his chimney. It was thought that the trapper probably was out on the lake, fishing; but when, on the next trip of the train two weeks later, the shack still presented a deserted appearance and the vegetable garden in front an air of neglect, fear was felt for the safety of Reynard.

The police were notified, but no immediate action was taken. J. R. Kerr, a fur buyer who makes regular trips up the Hudson's Bay Railway, heard of Reynard's disappearance. The trapper's shack was visited and it was plain to see that it had not been occupied for some time. The old man had taken a great pride in his vegetable garden; it apparently had not been tended for weeks.

Kerr and others immediately started out to search for the missing man. The fur buyers thought it probable that Reynard had been marooned on one of the numerous islands with which Cormorant Lake abounds. The party began visiting each in turn.

There is one small, rocky reef, hardly worthy of the dignity of the title of island. This is known as Stone Island. As the boat neared this reef a human figure was noticed reclining on the rocks. It was old Frank Reynard. As soon as he saw the boat he struggled to his feet and began waving his arms eagerly.

"Here, fellers; here I am—right here! Come and git me," cried the trapper.

Kerr and his companions steered the boat to Stone Island and jumped ashore. They offered to provide the old trapper with some nourishment, but he begged to be taken off immediately. He was made as comfortable as the limited space in the boat permitted and at his request was taken back to his cabin. The rescuers tried to induce Reynard to go into the hospital at The Pas, but he resolutely declined, stating that he would prefer to remain in his cabin. A man was left to nurse the old trapper, who, while very weak, was in complete possession of his senses.

Reynard stated that, as was his custom, he had paddled in his canoe one afternoon to Stone Island to search for water fowls' eggs. He had pulled his canoe up onto the rocks and walked a little way off to look for eggs. While he was engaged thus a sudden windstorm came up and lifted the canoe bodily, throwing it into the water. Reynard looked around and saw his canoe some thirty yards out in the lake. He was powerless to retrieve it. A gale was blowing and the waves dashing onto the rocks.

Though only three-quarters of a mile from the mainland, the old man was as helpless as if he had been 100 miles from shore. He could not swim a stroke. Quickly he realized his predicament. Out of the usual travel route, it was highly improbable that anyone would come near the island unless he was missed and a search party organized.

Reynard, remarkably robust for his 72 years, did not give up hope, however. He found on the island half a dozen wild-bird eggs and on searching the shores discovered water snails and a few small crawfish under the rocks. He had absolutely no protection from the elements. There was no wood or material of any sort on the island with which he could make a fire. The only vegetation was wild mint and reeds. The old man ate sparingly of the mint and the roots of the reeds.

The days were hot. He had no protection from the sun beating on the bare rocks. Wind and rainstorms were frequent. At night the air became cold and the trapper had to lie shivering in his scanty clothing, which was fast becoming worn to tatters.

As day after day passed he relapsed frequently to unconsciousness, but during the whole period of 30 days between the time he landed on the island and his rescue he retained hope. He was confident that sooner or later he would be missed from his lonely cabin and was sure that some of his friends would seek him out. It was a mere matter of watching and waiting—and finding what food he could.

Safely ensconced in the rescue craft, Reynard told haltingly of his experiences. He attributed the fact that he still clung to life to the abundance of good lake water and to the heating property of the wild mint, which served as his principal food.

The Origin of Local Thunderstorms

WHERE does the local storm start? This question, which has been lurking in the back of most people's minds since childhood, has been studied by Charles F. Brooks, professor of meteorology at Clark University, Worcester, Mass.

Says Prof. Brooks: "Local thunderstorms tend to originate most often where large volumes of moist air are rapidly warmed and forced upward; that is, over broad expanses of meadowland or river flats, over cities, hills and mountains.

"Within a homogeneous area, however, the wetting of strips by local showers temporarily makes the dry strips the loci of thunderstorm formation. At College Station, Tex., during a rainy week in August, this phenomenon was noted very clearly and local forecasts of thunderstorm rains were successfully based on the widths and position of strips wet by thunderstorms on the preceding day.

"Daily rainfall statistics for stations within a homogeneous region for a period of local showers show marked differences in totals for any day. But less important differences are noted for the period taken as a whole. Any area that escapes rain on the first day or two heats more readily than the surrounding wet areas, and so becomes the center of greater expansion and inflow from the surroundings and in consequence is wet by the resulting shower.

"Or even if the shower produced by the local rising air is carried to the other fields before discharging, any approaching shower will develop most strongly over the dry area and therefore drench it more than those previously wet.

"Before a local thunderstorm can form, however, there must be large local upward streams of air, violent convection and abundant condensation of moisture. This makes the forecasting of storms a very complicated matter."

Menu at Genoa dinner, back of it showing Lloyd George's notes, and sketch of Premier made at Genoa.

How Lloyd George prepared for his speech at Genoa press dinner by scribbling a few notes on back of his menu—Problems of highest importance to the world indicated for ready reference by a few penciled words—And the peerless Premier did the rest :: :: ::

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE is admittedly one of the world's greatest orators. Sometimes he prepares his speeches, often his addresses are extemporaneous. Always eloquent, he has the art of consecutivity and finishes each phase of his subject before passing on to the next. Speakers expecting to be called on for a talk and who have not organized the discourse in advance have various ways of note making. Some scribble long headings or catchlines, others whole paragraphs, more trust to the spirit of the moment. The accompanying exhibit shows how the British Prime Minister meets an emergency of this kind.

The British and the American newspaper correspondents in Genoa gave a dinner to Lloyd George on April 28. While the toastmaster was delivering the speech introducing him, Lloyd George made on the back of a menu the notes for his own speech. Thousands of notes have been made on menus by after-dinner speakers and have not been preserved, but the menu here preserved will be treasured always by the guest to whom Lloyd George presented it with his autograph. Let us hope that never will the owner have cause to value it as bearing a prophecy that was fulfilled.

The notes betray the forebodings that filled the mind of the man who at the Genoa conference had the problem of reaching an agreement with Russia and with Germany, while at the same time keeping on friendly terms with France. He did not succeed; but he came nearer to it, probably, than any other man could have done.

The Associated Press reports of the speech, printed April 27, show how Lloyd George employed some of the notes. At first it was und stood that the speech was not to be printed, but later he is reported to have said:

"After all, you may quote me if you wish; it is better that my thoughts be published."

Perhaps a psychoanalyst might find deep significance in the apparently meaningless lines drawn by the Prime Minister of England in the upper left-hand corner of the menu, but probably they represent nothing more than the mechanical warming up of the pencil with which most men preface the writing down of their thoughts.

The word "imagery," which means figures of speech by way of decoration in discourse, might well have been written "possibilities;" and "Germany and Russia 2-3ds of Europe" is a reminder of the possibility expressed by Lloyd George when he said: "The world must recognize the fact that Russia and Germany combined contain over two-thirds of the people of Europe. Their voice will be heard, and the Russo-German treaty is the first warning of it."

His thought of the possibility of danger to the rest of Europe from an understanding between Germany and Russia is intimated in the words, "a hungry Russia equipped by an angry Germany." He cited as proof of this danger the fact that there was no accepted frontier line from the Baltic to the Black Sea, including the Rumanian, Galician, Polish and Lithuanian frontiers.

He continued: "Anybody who imagines you can permanently by any combination keep down two great peoples representing two-thirds of Europe must be either blind or blinkered. It is an impossibility. It is a folly. It is an insanity. You must arrive at an understanding which will include the whole of these people."

"Pact of Peace" was to remind him to refer to this understanding, of which he said he was amazed at people who ignored the portentous fact facing Europe today. Unless Europe reorganized—in other words, unless the Genoa conference succeeded in arranging a pact of peace—he was confident that in his own lifetime, certainly in the lifetime of the younger men present, Europe again would welter in blood.

The note "Where Napoleon failed I can't see the man to succeed" probably was to recall something he had in mind to say in emphasizing the danger from a hungry Russia, as in his speech he referred to Napoleon's reputed address to his soldiers when they were beginning their march on Italy. His soldiers were poorly equipped, were starving, and their morale was at a low ebb. Napoleon is reported to have pointed to a map of Italy and said: "There is bread, and there is wine." Lloyd George made the point that the starving hordes of Russia might overrun Western Europe in search of food and that the terrors of the great war might be repeated.

One might infer from the gloomy notes on the back of the menu that the dinner was a melancholy affair, during which a good cry was to be had by all. On the front of the menu, however, are cheerful words like Frou-Frou, Chianti Vecchio and Veuve Cliquot, to say nothing of Grande Fine Champagne 1865 and Fraises Sarah Bernhardt. It may be that these represented something that helped to avert that overwhelming depression.

That Lloyd George did not permit his forebodings and the heavy responsibilities of the conference to make his countenance sorrowful is shown by the pencil sketch, made in Genoa by Jo Davidson, the American sculptor. Perhaps Lloyd George, the Prime Minister, and his fears are sometimes dominated by Lloyd George the human being—courageous, hopeful, with an underlying belief that from the great war and its consequences other human beings have learned something that will cause them to stop short of the madness that would cause Europe "again to welter in blood."

The "Streamline" Model in Nature

FISH, birds, moths, snowdrifts and boulders all are forced to take similar shapes by the wind and the water, which have decreed the "streamline model" for all bodies moving or immersed in a moving fluid. At least this is the claim made by Dr. Enoch Karrer of the Nela Research Laboratories at Cleveland, O.

Streamline is a shape familiar to all persons who have seen illustrations of the Zeppelin airships. Finding his illustrations of the principle of streamline in geology, meteorology, physics and biology, Dr. Karrer determined that the adjustment of the shape of a body was very similar to adjustments directed by light and by gravity.

Two granite boulders lying 4000 feet above sea level, at the top of a rather bare mountain in Australia, show by their long axis the shaping influence of prevailing winds, much as the shape of snowdrifts is influenced by the same agency. The peculiar mushrooming of snow about tree trunks, it is declared, is due to pressure of moving air over the surface of the round tree trunk. Snowdrifts on the surface of the earth, it is shown, generally are streamline, and where obstructed by a fence or a house, such obstacles are molded into the streamline contour.

According to Dr. Karrer's view, any moving body of any shape immersed in a fluid is subjected to forces of restraint that diminish as the body has a shape approaching streamline. Familiar examples are found in birds, where not only the shape of the body, but the thickening of the front portion of the wing and the lay of the feathers are examples of this influence.

Dr. Karrer is inclined to believe that, in the case of birds and fishes, there is an adjustment for different conditions of living, and also that streamline contour will vary according to the different speeds of flight and of different relative speeds of current. In continuing the pursuit of facts from his new point of view, it is likely that Dr. Karrer will develop further interesting observations of the phenomenon which he has termed "stream adjustment."

SECRETS OF THE LOFT BUR

How thousands of dollars' worth of silks and furs are stolen without breaking locks or setting off electrical alarms — Seemingly inoffensive salesmen "size up" the "plant" in advance—Women sometimes used as allies in making arrangements for an "inside job"—The burglar who took his lunch with him and waited on the roof until the whistle blew :: :: :: :: ::

By EDWARD H. SMITH.

BENNIE KERNS, a loft burglar, was sent to Sing Sing the other morning, to serve ten years. His confederate, one Eddie Foss, went with him—for two years. The police knew that these men were pals, that they were guilty of the same crimes and were companions in obliquity; that one was "as bad as the other." Yet one man will be free in twenty months and one will haunt his cell for half as many years.

The key to this mysterious discrimination is at hand. Bennie Kerns was commanded to tell how certain puzzling robberies had been committed and refused to speak. He will pay with ten years of his life for keeping the secrets of the loft burglars.

A suggestion of what the police and court demanded to be told can be got from the story of Kerns' and Foss' crime. On a night late in April, 1920, these two men broke into the fur factory of Edgar Lehman, in a loft building in West Twentieth street, and carried away $53,000 worth of mink pelts. About $18,000 worth were sold to a New York receiver and never recovered. The remaining $35,000 in pelts was taken to the Grand Hotel by the robbers and there displayed as salesmen's wares, the intention of the burglars being to establish the goods as legitimate merchandise in this way and then to express them out of town to fences in distant cities. But there was what the underworld calls a tumble, with the result that the late Detective Cassassa and Detectives Lowenthal, Phelan and Ford, descended on the hotel and seized both the furs and the burglars. The men procured bail, fled, were recaptured after a long hunt and were finally brought to trial, with the result already set down.

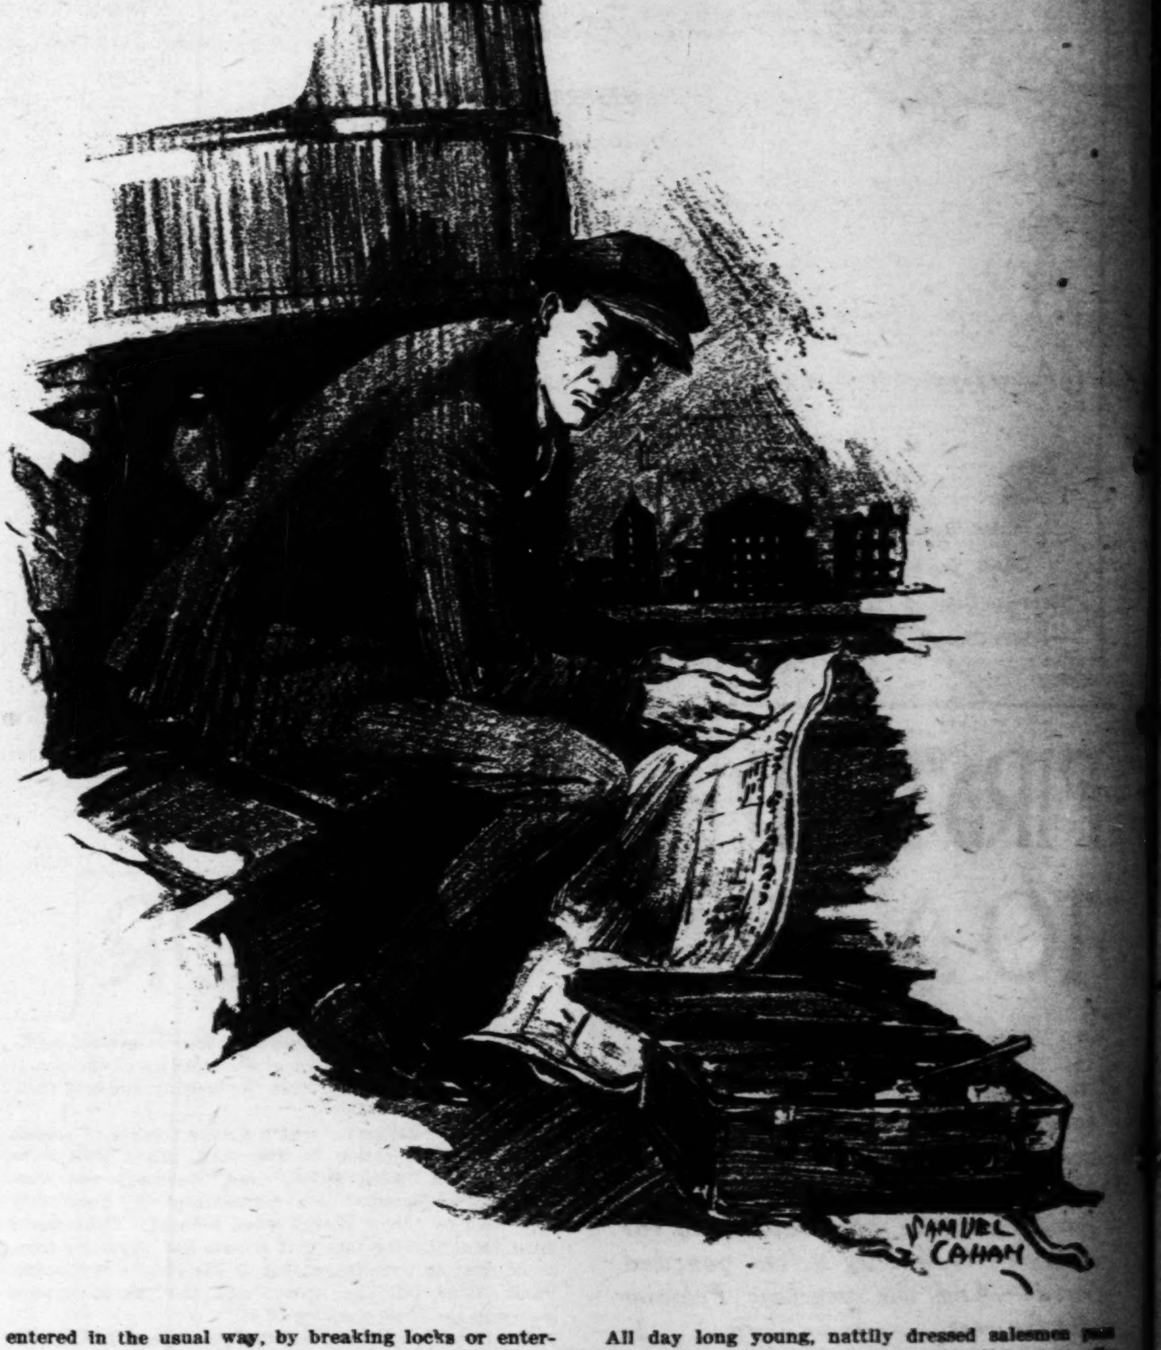
But there were two riddles in the case. The first had to do with the missing $18,000 worth of pelts. Detective Benny Levy was assigned to this angle of the affair by Jones & Whitlock, the William street underwriters, who carried the insurance on the Lehman factory. By going bail for the burglars and cultivating them, he found out that the pelts had gone to a local receiver, but recovery was impossible. The robbers would give no names.

The police were, however, far more interested in another feature. The loft building in West Twentieth street had been entered without breaking or picking a lock, forcing a window or setting off the burglar alarm. Again, the door to the Lehman factory, on an upper floor, had also been opened without resort to any known burglarious method. The thing smacked of the magical and uncanny. Had these heavily secured doors sprung open before an enchanter's wand? What subtle and strange substitute for the jimmie were these prowlers using? This was the secret Kerns took a ten years' sentence to keep.

On a rain swept Sunday night after the two men had gone to prison, Detective Levy routed me out of bed, took me a hundred miles down the Jersey coast to an obscure resort hotel and introduced me to a burglar who "had some things to tell." Without revealing his name or status or the reason for his revelations, this hidden marauder sat up with us half the night and told us the very things Kerns had refused to reveal to the police—the methods of the modern loft burglars.

IN THE heart of the mid-section of New York, coextensive in part with the old tenderloin, is the silk and fur district, roughly bounded by Fifteenth street, Thirty-eighth street, Fourth avenue and Seventh avenue. In this teeming square mile are stored and handled scores of millions of dollars' worth of the costliest apparel that women wear—mainly silks and furs, with a trace of laces and fine woolens for variety.

Burglars began to attack the lofts in these tall buildings a good many years ago. Silks and furs were always valuable and there was always a fair market for them. But with the coming of the submarine blockade and the consequent world-wide shortage, these materials became precious. Then the burglary business started in earnest. The buildings and lofts were entered in the usual way, by breaking locks or entering high windows. Sometimes the burglars let themselves down from the roofs on slender rope ladders and frequently they crossed the courts from adjoining buildings and entered those where the furriers and silk men kept their stores.



Robberies of this kind became so numerous that the surety companies raised the rates for burglary protection again and again. Still the stealing continued and at last the insurers refused to take the risks unless the merchants and manufacturers equipped their buildings and lofts with certain standard forms of protective devices and took precautionary measures of other kinds. Burglar alarms had to be installed and night watchmen employed in buildings where the silk and fur lofts were located. Burglary of lofts was immediately rendered much more difficult by these moves.

In addition, the police grew more active, many special patrolmen of the regular and irregular forces were stationed in the silk and fur district and the populous square mile was constantly under the eye of many detectives. It was soon impossible for the burglar gangs to go through the streets as formerly, use their jimmies and wedges on doors without much fear of molestation and work their will of the lofts, once they were inside. Special watchmen passed up and down the streets too frequently, burglar alarms were too numerous and strangers who passed through the streets of the district by day or by night were too likely to be stopped and searched by the detectives, at the first glint of suspicion.

Therefore, the burglars had to find a way to get into the buildings swiftly and silently, without breaking locks, without setting off the burglar alarms and without passing through the streets with weapons or burglars' tools in their possession. Two methods of getting into the building were quickly devised. Some gangs used one method, some another. The first and simplest plan was to approach and corrupt some employe of the building, a night elevator man, engineer, janitor or the watchman himself. This was, of course, an old trick, often employed in the past by apartment house burglars. The other had a bit more novelty in its makeup.

All day long young, nattily dressed salesmen pass through the streets of the silk and fur district, usually carrying bags and sample cases, filled with their wares. They pass out of that building and into this. They ride in the elevators, climb and descend the stairs, move about afoot or in motors. No one pays much attention to them, unless it be the men and women with whom they deal.

But one afternoon a young man of this type entered the street door of one of the biggest loft buildings occupied by the fur and silk trade, made his way to the upper floor in the elevator, climbed a couple of flights of stairs, opened a trap door leading to the roof, climbed up, closed it after him, deposited his sample case under the roof water tank, sat down in the shade of that girthy construction, got out a sporting paper and read. After dark he took a couple of sandwiches and a bottle of water from the case and regaled himself. Toward midnight he opened the case, poked a revolver into his pocket, strapped the case again, descended through the trap door, hid his sample case in a corner half-way down to the ground floor, went stealthily down the remaining stairs to the street door of the building and waited in the shadow for a signal, keeping an eye on his watch meantime.

A few blocks away a policeman stopped a motor car containing three young men, ordered the occupants of the car to step out and summoned another officer from the next corner to assist in searching them. The young men protested that they were merely out riding for pleasure and complained violently of the indignity of a search. No weapons were found in their possession and there was nothing in the car that might excite the suspicion of the most careful detective. The young men and their car were allowed to pass, with grudging apologies. They made a feint of driving in the opposite direction, turned a corner or two and drew up near the loft building, where their confederate was waiting inside the door.

Skulking in the shadows the men in the street watched the special patrolman pass and turn the corner. The moment he was out of sight one of them clambered up to the bell of the burglar alarm, with the aid of his two fellows, took out a pair of pliers and a special tool, quickly stopped the gong, detached the wires from the alarm and slid back to the walk. The three men went swiftly to the door, beat a soft tattoo upon it, heard the man inside turn the lock and saw the door to the building yawn open for them. They slid inside and the door was silently closed behind them.

The four men now skinned up the stairs as silently as cats, took a revolver for each of the newly joined trio from the sample case, rigged up their set of collapsible burglars' tools and went to work on the door of an eight-floor loft. Two attacked the door while one man stood guard on the floor above them and one on the floor below, to fend against any sudden intrusion by the watchman. In five minutes the door had been forced and the burglars had a roomful of precious silks before them.

Once more the salesman's case was opened and out came four large burlap bags. Into these the bolts and skeins of silk were stuffed till they would hold no more. Then the burglars took up their case and the four loaded bags, closed the broken door behind them, descended cautiously to the street, opened the door, looked carefully up and down the street, went out and closed the door behind them, made a swift run for their car, loaded the bags of stolen silks into the tonneau and drove swiftly away.

Thus the first of these new type burglaries had been committed. In a few days others of the same sort were experienced. In some of them the watchman had come upon the robbers at work, with the result that he was forced to yield himself, was tied up and gagged and left to explain matters in the morning.

Soon there came a gang which improved upon the technique of these burglars. If the street door could be entered without burglary there must be a way of entering the loft door as well. Two new methods for the accomplishment of this feat were soon revealed. (The reader will understand, of course, that these methods were not understood and that they form the important part of what was told us by the man in that little seaside hotel.) The burglars sent their pseudo salesman into the buildings by day to study the locks on the loft doors and get wax impressions, so that dummy keys were made, which were filed to fit in a few moments at the time of the actual burglary. So the doors of the lofts sprang open without the need of jimmies and violence and so the police puzzled and reasoned that the lock had probably been picked.

The other method? This involved the employment of a girl, or moll, an appeal to the waxing feminism of the New York underworld. The dodge is, of course, not new, but it is worth noting, for it examples the growing employment of women in all sorts of property crimes. Some young woman applies to the marked silk or fur manufacturers for a job and persists until she gets it. She works her way into the confidence of her employer until she can steal the key for long enough to have a duplicate made. This failing, she takes a wax impression of the key and the expert locksmiths working with the loft burglars have not the slightest trouble constructing something that will open the door without delay or violence.

The beating of the ordinary burglar alarm is, of course, not a new thing and New York City is plentifully supplied with concerns which offer a more complicated and effective alarm protection, usually based on some intricate patent device, which is supposed to be tamper proof. The insurance companies, alarmed by their losses, are now generally insistent upon the use of these more modern alarm equipments and a great many lofts are so protected today. Speaking broadly, these devices are electric systems which send an alarm to a central watch bureau, located in the district. The thing works like a fire-alarm box of the new kind. If a robber tries to enter a loft and disturbs the locks in any way or tries to lift a wired window, a gong begins to ring furiously in the central station and a number flies up on the call box indicating the scene of the robbery. Watchmen rush out to the point of trouble and capture the burglar, if luck is with them.

Where there has been a thorough installation of this type of burglar alarm the whole premises are elaborately wired, not only the windows and doors, but the walls and floor and even the ceiling of such a loft may be guarded by a network of wires, touching any one of which will start the alarm in the central station and bring out the patrolmen.

But even such careful and costly methods of protection have been matched by the skill, ingenuity and technical knowledge of the loft burglars. There are, once more, two general methods by which the thing is done. As in the previous instance, a girl may be put into the factory to make observations and report to her burglar associates. Such a girl must first undergo a course of criminal education. A burglar who is also an alarm expert, takes her in hand and teaches her how to tell at a glance, or after a brief examination, what type of alarm is in use, how thoroughly a place is wired and where the weak spot is. Having learned her technique, the girl gets a job in the marked factory, maps the place, finds out an area where there are no wires and calculates a way in which the loft may be breached at this point. Having accomplished this task, she usually resigns or breaks the rules in such a way as to cause her dismissal. And a little later the burglars break in.

Just a mongrel cur and a natural tramp, he became respectable and "settled" after Traffic Cop Charlie Clark saved his life—Now he has adopted the policeman and Charlie can't lose him :: :: ::

SPUDS AND CHARLIE.

SPUDS is not much of a dog when it comes to the social events of the 400 of the dog world. But when it comes to that greatest of all virtues, gratitude, Spuds' diminutive shoulders tower far above the heads of the milk-fed aristocrats who eye him disdainfully from the soft cushions of their motor cars.

Spuds is just an ordinary mongrel who makes a precarious living trotting around the streets of Newark, N. J. At least, he did at one time. Today he is probably the best known dog in the entire city. He is a success if there ever was one. He has had his picture on the front pages of the newspapers, he has been interviewed by star reporters and he is a celebrity in his own right. He is a self-made dog, and he carries his honors with dignity and modesty, just as self-made men do.

Spuds started out on his career in very inglorious fashion. No one knows just where he was born or anything about his ancestors except that they must have been very ordinary mongrels, if Spuds is a true son. One day Spuds decided to forsake the old homestead and strike out for himself. He seemed to find the world of streets, of alleys and garbage cans a fascinating one and he became a confirmed tramp.

For a short time he was adopted by the school children in one of the big public schools of the city, and was petted and fed until he waxed very sleek and elegant, but he soon tired of the soft life and struck out again. He avoided that school like the plague whenever his wanderings took him anywhere near it.

One day Spuds stopped in front of the city hall and eyed the imposing structure with interest. He never had seen such an imposing building before, with its white-stone trimmings and broad, shining stairs.

He had been in all kinds of hovels and shacks and tenement houses, where he had sometimes been received with open arms, but more often with curses and kicks. Still, his nomad soul had never been discouraged and he entered each new building with the spirit of the explorer.

Spuds decided he would explore the city hall. He eyed the tall, smiling traffic cop on the corner calmly as he trotted by him and stopped for a moment at the foot of the stairs. Then he wagged his stub of a tail and started up the stairs.

Nothing happened to him. He slipped through the great door and headed across the marble corridor. When he reached the center of the hall he sat down and looked about meditatively. It was so cool and comfortable on the marble floor. Spuds let out a yip of joy at the discovery. That yip was unfortunate.

He felt the tip of a broad toe pressed gently but firmly against his ribs. He looked up and found a watchman explaining politely, if forcibly, that the city hall was no lounging place for a mongrel pup on whose paws time hung heavily. Spuds looked resentful for a moment, and then headed for the door like a streak of lightning.

He didn't quite know what it was all about. A panic seemed to seize him; for once he was terrified. How he thanked his stars when he reached the top of the landing and caught a glimpse of the sunlight and the sky again! In his eagerness he whirled down the long flight of stone stairs like an animated ball of fur. Without stopping to look to left or right he sped across the street.

Suddenly Spuds heard a grating roar in his ears. Somewhere, dimly, he heard a woman scream. He caught just a glimpse of a huge trolley car bearing down upon him rapidly.

He gave one despairing howl and tried to stop. His feet slipped and he skidded, with claws vainly trying to grip the hard pavement. Just as the car was about to hit him, he felt a strong hand sweep him from the ground and he found himself clutched up to a hard chest. Spuds sobbed and buried his head in the khaki uniform he found around him.

He was dimly aware of voices that died away after a minute or two and he timidly looked out at the world again. When he lifted his head he found himself looking into the smiling face of Charlie Clark, traffic cop in front of the city hall.

"That was a narow squeak you had, my boy," said Charlie. "Never cross a street without looking to the right and left and watch out for the trolley cars. They'd clip you an awful shot if they hit you," he continued, gravely.

With that he carried Spuds to the curbstone and left him, while he went back to his job of guarding the crossing.

Spuds sat down with wonder in his eyes. After a time he got up and strolled across the street and sat down at Officer Charlie's feet. He had made up his mind. It was time he stopped roaming around the streets like a tramp. He would settle down.

And he did. He's been settled down ever since. He is as familiar a sight on the crossing in front of the city hall as Charlie ever was. Spuds adopted Charlie, and that ended the matter as far as he was concerned.

PLANNING FOR A LARGER REINDEER

ACCORDING to Dr. E. W. Nelson, chief biologist of the United States Biological Survey, arrangements are being made to begin the crossing of the reindeer with the native Alaskan caribou, so as to increase the size of the antlered animals, which are rapidly becoming an important source of meat supply.

The reindeer now being raised by the Eskimos in great numbers is an imported animal which strips about 150 pounds, while the caribou, the wild native Alaskan variety of reindeer, strips about 300 pounds. It is planned to capture wild caribou bulls and place them on an island with herds of reindeer cows, and so breed up the size of the reindeer.

It is estimated that there are now over 200,000 of these animals and that they are rapidly increasing. Most of them are owned by the Eskimos, but in recent years white herders have begun raising reindeers for the market in the United States. Experts of the Biological Bureau figure that there is enough grazing land in Alaska to support approximately 4,000,000 reindeer, and they believe the industry can be developed to a point where its annual yield will exceed in value that of the precious metals of the Territory and at the same time help to build up a more permanent population in Alaska.

A bill has been introduced in Congress by Senator Smoot of Utah to further this development by giving the Secretary of Agriculture authority to lease or permit the use of certain lands for grazing purposes.

The Will That Made a Whole Town Happy

Thomas Bradley, Civil War hero and cutlery manufacturer, left half-million dollar estate to his neighbors and the fife and drum corps of Walden, his native town—Odd difficulties of administration owing to changed conditions in twelve years—Puzzling circumstance of the second Mrs. Eli Ellis—Automobiles crowded horses out of the will

THIS is the idyll of Walden and the story of the great Thomas Bradley. He was the local magnate, the leading citizen; bands greeted his return from a journey, the fife and drum corps serenaded him. When he died it was discovered that he had bequeathed his entire fortune to his neighbors and to the town's various organizations, including the fife and drum corps.

The courts were recently called upon to apply the tests of probate for what for want of a better name was called a community will. It was an instrument providing for the distribution of an estate valued at more than half a million dollars, and the list of persons to whom bequests were made read not unlike the roster of a neighborhood. Of kinsfolk remembered there were practically none, but there were others by the score—workmen in various fields, small shopkeepers, amiable and familiar town figures, wives and widows.

Objection was made to the probate of the will because the letter of its plain and simple provisions, definite and not to be questioned at the time of its making, through the passing of years and changed conditions no longer represented the generally understood and widely approved desires of its author.

It was the will of Thomas Bradley, who, in a town possessed of the many excellences and few, if any, of the sordid phases of Main Street, for half a century occupied the unchallenged position of leading citizen, with all of the individual distinction that it gave and which by reflex gave distinction to the community.

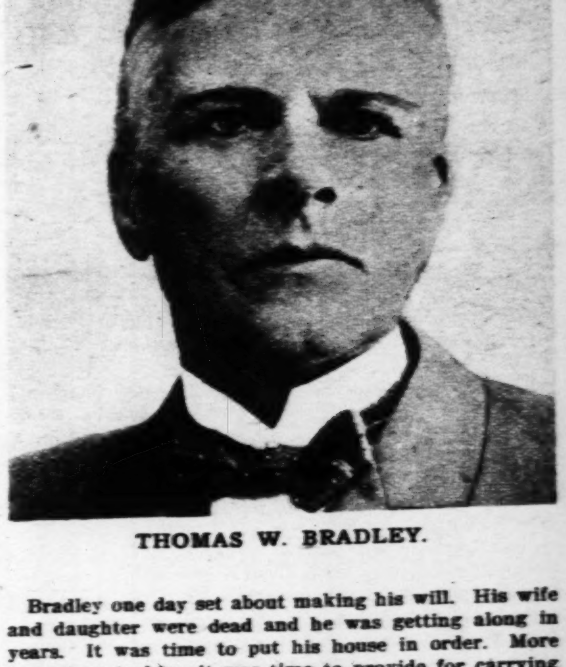
The town is Walden, N. Y., a brisk little village in the Wallkill Valley, with a Sheffield sort of fame for its output of cutlery and a bucolic pride in the fact that the herds which graze in the lush pastures thereabouts contribute no small share of the milk which the metropolis consumes.

Bradley was more than Walden's leading citizen; he was its industrial magnate. He had operated one of the great knife factories almost continuously from the time that he returned with the local regiment, known as the Orange Blossoms, from the Civil War, bearing scars of the conflict received at Gettysburg, in The Wilderness and at Petersburg and Chancellorsville and with the brevet of Major conferred for meritorious service. The Congressional Medal for gallantry came to him on his record and the Military Order of the Loyal Legion welcomed him to membership.

These things made him proud, but they did not make him forget that he was of Walden and that his real measure was his status among the home people. He had come to know every man and woman, chick and child in town. He commingled with them, refusing to accept for himself the aloofness which more often than not a man of wealth and position chooses to assume. He was "Col. Tom" to all.

As a natural outgrowth of this neighborliness, Bradley was sent to the Legislature, and, after a time, to Washington, one re-election to Congress following another until, with advancing years, he asked to be released, so that he might settle down among his friends and be sure that for the rest of his life he would know only the familiar faces and the scenes which he loved.

President McKinley, with whom he enjoyed the intimacy of a soldier friendship, urged him to accept the commissionership of pensions, but he declined it. His reasons again were Walden and its larger call. Thus the man.



THOMAS W. BRADLEY.

Bradley one day set about making his will. His wife and daughter were dead and he was getting along in years. It was time to put his house in order. More important to him, it was time to provide for carrying into effect the cherished desires of many years with respect to townsfolk whom he had loved, and to local institutions which had on many occasions contributed to his happiness. He summoned his lawyer, and together they went over his memoranda. One item after another was set down as Bradley read from his paper.

Because of his triple distinction as leading citizen, industrial magnate and representative in Congress several youngsters had been named in his honor, and as is customary in such cases, a way was found to bring the fact to the Colonel's attention. These namesakes were now grown up. Bradley Scott, son of the village butcher; Thomas Bradley Travis and Thomas Bradley McNamara were on the list, and to each was given $1000.

Then there were men—friends of Bradley's like the others—who at that time were talking about the dwellings they hoped some day to be able to erect in the village when they had decided upon just the right site. Desirable plots in the residential section were written into the will for these.

In another group were the Chief of Police, the station agent, the sign painter and Bill Rouk, the night watchman, all men with whom for years Bradley had been cheery and familiar. They, too, became beneficiaries.

Then came the fire company and the band and the fife and drum corps. This latter organization in particular long had enjoyed the Bradley favor. In the speed with which it assembled on occasion calling for its special services it was unsurpassed. Given a hint ten minutes in advance it could be at the railroad station with a welcoming te-ra-ra and rat-a-tat for the Colonel, and its facility for rallying on the Bradley lawn was equally rapid. His appreciation of these carefully timed and noisy visitations had been periodically made manifest in a substantial way. They were finally rewarded in the will.

Roughly, fifty employes of the knife works—men whom he called by their given names and who in turn knew him familiarly as Tom—were mentioned with a provision of $500 each. Then came a list of widows and wives, to each of whom he bequeathed $500, one of these latter being a "Mrs. Eli Ellis of Pleasant avenue."

He provided $15,000 for the erection on a main street site of a monument to perpetuate the memory of McKinley, directing that the inscription thereon should read, "Erected by workingmen of Walden," a harmless and pleasing fiction.

Solicitude for the well being of his horses prompted him to provide for their sale at a purely nominal price to a buyer who could be depended on to take the best of care of them in their declining years. His shares in the National Bank of Walden—a little fortune in value—were left to Mary F. Denniston, his housekeeper, and the residue of the estate was willed to Walden for the purpose of maintaining the town hall, which he had erected and given to the village.

The document, completed and signed in due form, was deposited in Bradley's safe deposit box. Once it was taken out to permit of the execution of a codicil revoking the appointment of certain executors and naming others, but no changes were made in the body of the paper. Twelve years thereafter, in May, [illegible], at the age of 76, Bradley was gathered to his fathers and his will became public.

The Citizen Herald, the alert and always enterprising village newspaper, printed an enlarged edition on that occasion to meet Walden's demand for information as to who had been remembered. The names ran into hundreds. The counters were cleared of papers in an hour.

Followed a handshake week, such as the little town never before had seen. All Walden was out with a congratulatory grasp for the people that had been remembered. The fire company boys, the loyal and efficient fife and drum corps, Bill Rouk and all the rest were cordially held up, slapped on the back and assured that the Colonel had exercised characteristic wisdom in making up his list. No one could point to an unworthy beneficiary.

It was not until the will was offered for probate that the nullifying work of twelve years became apparent. The village of Walden, in formal proceedings as residuary legatee, directed attention to the fact that the National Bank of Walden having ceased to exist as a corporate entity with the expiration of its charter, and the Third National Bank of Walden having become its successor, the legacy to Mary F. Denniston had lapsed. Turning to the Bradley stables on his estate on [illegible] avenue, the executors looked in vain for the horses mentioned in the will and for whose comfort he had expressed a fine solicitude. The box stalls and other stable equipment had given place to a garage and high-power cars throbbed on the concrete floor. Time had changed this feature of the will. The building sites which, with particularity of detail, had been bequeathed to a number of his acquaintances had found their way on the market in the regular course of operations of Bradley's manager and these no longer figured in the will.

Then came the various men and women to claim their money—Bradley's namesakes, the Police Chief, the night watchman and all the rest, including Mrs. Eli Ellis of Pleasant avenue, as the will mentioned. Question was immediately raised as to the right and title of this woman to the money. Was she the Mrs. Eli Ellis that Col Bradley had in mind when the name was written in the will? Admittedly she was not. The wife of Eli Ellis living at the time the will was executed had died before Col. Bradley and Ellis, after an appropriate interval, had paid court to another who now presided over his home. Mrs. Ellis based her claim to the bequest on the fact that, following the demise of the first Mrs. Ellis and after her marriage to the widower, Col. Bradley had executed a codicil to his will and that he had not on that occasion availed himself of the opportunity then offered to revoke the legacy.

Orange County once had a Surrogate who had studied law while working as a railroad clerk on the Erie. He was strong in common sense, and in his three terms as Probate Judge his decisions were never reversed. [illegible]wood C. Smith, the Surrogate before whom the Bradley will came, also is of the common sense school. He sustained the will, holding that the intent of its maker was quite clear in the cases both of Miss Denniston and of the first Mrs. Eli Ellis. As to the former, he held that the legacy had not lapsed because of the change of the stock from one bank to its successor. In the other instance he decided that the legacy had lapsed and that the present Mrs. Ellis was not entitled to a share in the estate.

The good people of Walden approve the Surrogate's decision. They say that is the way the Colonel himself would have had it.

The Godmother of Hattonchatel

Miss Belle Skinner of New York is paying the cost and superintending the work of restoring once beautiful French village destroyed in the world war—Excavators unearth a pot of gold and silver coins which she will place in the town museum—Sunken gardens and pleasing architecture included in the plans of young woman who sympathized with the villagers "from the bottom of her pocketbook"

Hattonchatel, picturesquely perched 600 feet above the Meuse Valley.

MISS BELLE SKINNER of New York is personally superintending the restoration and rebuilding of the war-wrecked French village of Hattonchatel, which she has adopted.

The adoption of this once beautiful hamlet in the Valley of the Meuse, near St. Mihiel and not so very far from valiant Verdun, was not merely one of kind thoughts and good wishes. It was real, legal and binding. It was from the bottom of the pocketbook as well as from the bottom of the heart. She said: "I will rebuild this village as my share toward the reconstruction of France."

Fifteen or twenty English cities and towns have likewise adopted French towns; some American cities have done the same; one, Holyoke, is rebuilding Apremont, in the valley below but hidden behind Montsec. Miss Anne Morgan's Committee for the Relief of Devastated France has collected millions in America and spent them to wonderful advantage in many villages. But the rebuilding of Hattonchatel is the work and joy of one woman, out of her own purse.

The new school was her first care and was occupied months ago. Then the church, the reservoir and pumping station for the water supply, long since put in operation.

During the Bastile holidays—on July 16, to be exact—Miss Skinner laid the corner stone of the new Mairie—town hall New Englanders would call it. The scaffolding is up and the walls are now rapidly rising.

A more important building, even, has just been finished—the new village lavoir—where the housewives now wash their clothes. Water had been unavailable on the hilltops and wash day had meant hard labor during the past centuries. The women had to carry their clothes down the precipitous hillside to the plain below, wash them, kneeling on the river bank and carry the load of wet clothes back up to the hilltop; no light task. Miss Skinner had arranged for a water supply, and while her architect was making the plans she talked with the women for whom the lavoir was being built. It was for them; what did they want? Some wanted the tank on the floor level, as nature had always provided it. Some wanted it waist high, on an improved plan. Did Miss Skinner decide for them? No. She said: "Take a vote." The "waist-high" laundresses won by three votes, and in the now complete lavoir shed through the open arches can be seen the tank, one compartment for suds and one for rinsing, waist-high. The women like it and were all smiles and jokes. "No corns on our knees now," laughed one. The other half of the lavoir, on the village street, houses the small but efficient fire department.

The church was another problem. Shells had caved in the roof here, the clerestory there and crumpled the walls badly. There's an old gray tower, called the Charlemagne Tower, hugging the chancel. It was part of the old fortification for the old Bishops of Verdun, who were the suzerains of Hattonchatel, dwelt there in the chateau and loved it, made a stronghold of the place. They built a wall across the narrow neck of land, with a strong guardhouse in the center. Though gates and walls have disappeared, yielding up stone to construct houses, the guardhouse remained, with its guard room and chapel above, until knocked about by allied shells, and perhaps German mines as well. This guardhouse, by the way, Miss Skinner will restore and turn it into a museum. Within the old walls were large cloisters long since picturesque ruins, with a noble Calvary in excellent preservation.

But the church was another problem. Built in 1510, it was dedicated to St. Maur, the venerated first Bishop of Verdun. The third Bishop, it seems, discovered that the arm of his sainted predecessor was the source of miraculous power, so he enshrined that holy relic in the church. This relic escaped the destruction of war and now rests in the curator's house. The church has been taken over by the Ministry of Beaux Arts and will be restored by the French Government—some time. That work must wait its turn for a share of the slow-coming reparation money. It has been shored up and boarded in for protection.

Meanwhile, Miss Skinner has provided for the spiritual needs of the people by roofing in and walling up what looks like a portion of the adjoining cloisters for a little church that will seat about 100. Yet this, plainly a makeshift, holds one of the art treasures of France—a reredos of carved stone in high relief and painted—the work of Ligier Richier and dated 1523. It is a triptich; the center panel rising high, with a curved roof, presents the crucifixion; on the left is Christ, staggering under the weight of the cross, beaten by a soldier as St. Veronica wipes his brow; on the right is the entombment. The composition is wonderfully balanced, the figures unusually well modeled and the faces exquisitely carved. There is a model of it in the Museum of Gothic Art in the Trocadero in Paris. The Germans appreciated it at its full value and took it from its place in the church and sent it to Metz. Perhaps this vandalism saved it from destruction, for it was brought back uninjured from Metz after the war, under the terms of the treaty, and will adorn this little church until a restored St. Maur is ready to give it a setting worthy of its artistic value.

Fifteen houses are now under construction in Hattonchatel at Miss Skinner's expense and two other good-sized dwelling houses are being rebuilt by their owners. Miss Skinner has secured the services of an American architect, John Sanford, who is making all the plans along a harmonious design based on the ancient beauties of the village. He is unhampered and the supervision of the French Government extends merely to satisfying its inspectors that proper regard is paid to the sanitary requirements and safety. He has not yet made plans for the rebuilding of the chateau on the vantage point of the prow of the hill because that must await the completion of the buildings essential to the life of the community—indeed, Miss Skinner has given as yet no serious thought to a residence for herself there.

Mr. Sanford has, however, taken for himself an old house that hung on the edge of the cliff and built into it a fine large living room with a bedroom and a bathroom that must have surprised the natives. His artist's eye pictured the beauty of a sunken garden, sheltered from the village street by a screen of pointed arches and protected from the sheer 400-foot fall of the cliff by a low balustrade. It will be worth the trip next year to take tea with him in the garden, with its wonderful view.

It was this very idea that brought Miss Skinner her happiest surprise in Hattonchatel. For while watching the men at work excavating the ground for the garden one June day, suddenly one man's pick crashed into an earthen jar; a flood of gold and silver coin poured out, over 400 of them.

"I had all a child's joy and delight in finding buried treasures," she said. "Think of it! It was hidden away in the fifteenth century, for none of the coins is of later date. Many are of the fourteenth century and earlier and all in a state of good preservation. I sent them to M. Babelon, curator of the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris, who found nine or ten of them were unique—hitherto unknown. I shall give to the Bibliotheque Nationale such as it needs for its collections, and the rest, which I am allowed to keep, will be put in the museum, which will be in the restored guardhouse."

Mr. Sanford has at work about all the men that can be profitably used in the small village and housed in the neighborhood. The French peasant one sees in motoring through the countryside is rather dour and looks overworked, as he undoubtedly is, for the losses of the war have left the farms everywhere undermanned. Small blame if he seems unhappy and sour. So the contrast was striking when one found here everyone smiling and joyous as well as hard at work in rebuilding Hattonchatel for themselves. They had had the right help. Everyone had a hearty welcome for the visitor. Women went out of their way to guide him. Laundresses joked and posed with a laugh for the camera; and in the stone yard one husky, well-formed, sturdy woman pushed a man aside with a jest and grabbed his end of the bucksaw and fell to work to show how much better she could do the work of cutting stone than he. It was a happy village.

Miss Skinner is as happy over the reconstruction work as they are.

How much is it costing her? She won't tell. It is enough that it is appreciated there where she is called the "Godmother."

France appreciates it and has officially given her the gold medal of French Gratitude (the Medaille de la Reconnaissance Francaise), and more recently the Cross of the Legion of Honor, a decoration bestowed on few women, and then only for most notable service to France.

Miss Skinner, though her home is at 36 East Thirty-ninth street, in New York, has taken the house of the Comptesse Chevreau d'Antraigues, 8 Rue Monsieur, not far from the Hotel des Invalides, for the summer and finds time to entertain frequently, as well as to visit Hattonchatel when needed there.

The “Melting Pot” Today—a[illegible] the Study of the immigration problem shows that since 1890, the character of incoming stream has changed, the peoples of Northern and Western Europe yielding in numbers to the Slavic and Mediterranean races, which form almost 70 per cent of the yearly total—Another fact is the differential birth rate between descendants of the older residents and the newer immigrants—In New York City, the birth rate is nearly four times as high among foreign-born as among native-born—Scientists say that Uncle Sam is turning brunette :: :: ::

WHOLE libraries have been written about the immigrant. He has been discussed from nearly every possible point of view—the industrial, the social, the political and the economic. And all these are important. But probably the most serious aspect of the immigration problem, in the long run, is the racial, or biological.

Until 1890, nearly all our immigration was from the countries of Northern and Western Europe, the same sort of people as those who came over in 1620. These newcomers belonged to our kind, were ambitious, easily assimilated—and the melting pot boiled away happily.

Since 1890, however, the character of our immigration has changed radically. During this latter period, nearly 70 per cent have come from such regions as Russia, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Greece and the Balkans. They have many excellent racial qualities and could, under better conditions, contribute much to the American nation. But their traits, many of them undoubtedly good, are different from those of Northern and Western Europe, which sent the early settlers here, and whose children now consider themselves the native Americans.

The people coming to us now belong to the Slavic and Mediterranean subraces of the white race. Their history, both racial and national, their ideals of life, their ideas of government and society, are so different from our own that their presence in large numbers constitutes one of the problems confronting America today.

For these two races, the Slavic and the Mediterranean, have never in their history shown the same capacity for self-government and the maintenance of free institutions that the Nordic race has shown, both in America and Europe.

What can the melting pot do for our new immigration? Is it the all-powerful instrument that many Fourth of July speakers proclaim?

The character of a nation is determined primarily by its racial hereditary qualities, and only secondarily by the physical environment of its people. These qualities are physical, mental and moral or temperamental. Consider merely the physical effect that vast numbers of peoples from Southern and Eastern Europe are destined to make on our physical type.

It is not by any accident that Uncle Sam, the typical American, is pictured as a very tall, slender man, with a fine, large nose, high forehead, keen eyes, intelligent face, light hair and blond complexion. This is simply a reflection or a composite picture of the typical American citizen of several decades ago. A real Yankee, if you please.

How did our Uncle Samuel get that way? Where did these physical characteristics come from? They are the distinguishing traits of the Nordic race, the race that settled America and gave to it its ideals and institutions. They are hereditary and therefore have been perpetuated within this stock.

How can these characteristics be changed? If it were thought desirable to make over our typical, everyday citizen, as represented in the figure of Uncle Sam, what process will most quickly and surely accomplish this result?

Italy, 1872. Blue eyes, dark brown hair.

Biologists are in substantial agreement that such a transformation could not be brought about by a change of environment. Living in the mountains, or by the seashore, or out on the prairie, or in Europe or in America, will not do it. Life in the slums of a great city or up on the avenue may leave their superficial marks, but the inherent racial qualities are untouched.

That this change can be made, however, and is, indeed, being made at the present time in America, is the claim of students of racial history and eugenics.

Through the very simple means of a differential birth rate between the descendants of the old settlers and the newer immigration, Uncle Sam is turning brunette and swarthy in complexion, has decreased his stature, while his fine nose is retreating into his face and his forehead creeping up under his hat.

In any large, mixed population such as ours, that group in the population which leaves in each generation the largest number of offspring will secure the future for its own. The birth rate of America as a whole, while falling, is not yet in a serious condition. It is the differential birth rate of the different groups within America that gives us pause.

Careful studies of immigrant and of native-born parents show unmistakably that the former have larger families. The importance of this is apparent. The immigrants are going to add to the American population in greater proportion than their numbers bear to the present total. The birth rate at the present time is in favor of the foreign-born and against the native-born.

It has been said that if the decline in the birth rate of the families descended from the Mayflower continues during the next 300 years at the same rate as the past 300 years, the Mayflower could easily carry them all back again in 2220 A. D.

At present there are more than 13,000,000 foreign-born whites here. In 1915 the population of Boston, so-called center of American culture and tradition, consisted of 238,000 native-born Americans of native American parentage, and 512,00 foreign-born and children of foreign-born. This ratio of native-born to foreign-born is even exceeded in New York City.

These two groups, the native American stock and the foreign-born stock, are in a struggle for the future possession of America. It is largely an unconscious struggle, but very real and far-reaching in its consequences nevertheless. The only weapon used, or possible to be used, in such a contest is the birth rate of the contestants.

All recent studies of the declining birth rate in America point to a most important feature, namely, that the size of the families among different classes of people is very unequally affected. Such contrasting classes as the rich and the poor, the educated and the illiterate, the socially superior and the socially inferior classes, the native American stock and the foreign-born stock—all show a marked differential birth rate in favor of the secondary groups compared. In none of the groups is this disparity more marked than in the last two mentioned.

In his recent book, “The Trend of the Race,” Prof. Holmes of the University of California gives the results of a first-hand study which he made of the differential birth rate between the older and the newer Americans. His investigation led him to study the decline of the birth rate in one important group of American stock, the Society of Mayflower Descendants.

By means of questionnaires he was able to show that in this society the size of the family decreased with the recency of the birth of the parents. Of the Mayflower descendants now living in California, those husbands and wives who were born between 1810-1830 had an average of six children to a family, but these parents themselves came from families in which the average of children to a family was nearly nine—a decrease of nearly three children to a family in one generation.

When the parents were born a decade later, or between 1830-1840, the average of the family decreased to 5.6 children; between 1840-1850, the children averaged 3.33; in the following two decades it dropped to 2.11; and in all families in which parents were born in the decade between 1870-1880, the average number of children born to a family was 1.5.

Among students of racial history it is a well recognized fact that an average birth rate of four children to a family is necessary to maintain the population at a constant level. These Mayflower families, descendants of the Adams, the Lowell, the Edwards families and others too numerous to mention, are fast disappearing as a source of power and inspiration in our national life.

Good as many of the newer stocks undoubtedly are, the loss of these [illegible] of New England, and the equally [illegible] of the South—the Lees, the Fai[illegible]ngtons—is a matter of great concern [illegible].

Other investigations [illegible] the same movement to be going on in [illegible] the country. In New York City, the birth [illegible] among native-born families is [illegible] while for an equal number of foreign-born [illegible], or nearly four times as large. At [illegible] differential reproduction, the certainty [illegible] group will eventually replace the [illegible] that comment becomes unnecessary.

Wherever we turn, [illegible] confront us. The Faces at Ellis Island.

THE accompanying photographs of newly arrived immigrants were taken recently at Ellis Island and were exhibited at the International Eugenics Congress in New York City. They figure in a new approach to our immigrant problem. This is the racial, or hereditary, approach.

The pictures were selected from representatives of all races and ages which sought admission to our shores that day. They are a typical cross-section of the never-ending procession at Ellis Island, and also a cross-section of the immigrant population of America.

That is to say, the people from Southern and Eastern Europe show a much higher birth rate than those of Western and Northern Europe. The great preponderance of our present immigration is from those regions of Europe which have the highest birth rate.

So the old native American stock is cut two ways, both by its own diminished birth rate and by the decreased birth rate of the relatively small percentage of new additions from the ancestral homes of the native Americans.

It may be said in passing that the above is set forth merely as ascertained scientific fact, and is not in any sense a reflection on the new immigration to our shores. Every nation has admirable qualities, without which America would be forever poorer if she refused to admit its people. On the other hand, these nations are contributing, in many cases, not of their best but of those undesirable elements that are found in all populations.

Secretary of Labor Davis, under whose department falls the direction of the Bureau of Immigration, was himself an immigrant from Wales when a small boy. Afterwards a labor leader, and now a member of the President's Cabinet, he is peculiarly well qualified to speak on the present situation as regards the immigrant seeking admission to this country.

Secretary Davis points out clearly that the early immigration to our shores consisted of the very bravest, the stanchest and most loyal citizens of their respective countries. It was so, he says, because of the great hardships and danger of ocean travel and life in a new, unsettled country. It took courage to sail the viking ships of the Norsemen across uncharted seas, and it took the same courage and strength in the days of the Pilgrim Fathers.

These founders of our nation are described by Secretary Davis as peace-loving, fearless and conscientious, as well as strong physically, ready to battle for what they believed was right, strong in Christian faith—these were the people who began the work of construction of the greatest nation of the world. A greater love for liberty and a greater respect for the rights of individuals, together with a determination and willingness to endure the hardships of pioneer life, drew to America the very best blood of every nation of Europe.

But this is obviously untrue of much of our immigration of today. Yesterday the best blood of Europe came here to found a free nation under God. Today the ease and cheapness of travel, the fabulous stories of golden-paved streets in American cities, the notorious laxness of our immigration laws, together with many other factors, have made this country a magnet for many classes other than the pioneer. So there has crept in upon us almost unawares a horde of unassimilables, choking the melting pot.

What is the solution of this problem, admittedly one of the gravest before the American people? Congress does not know the way out. As a temporary measure it passed the so-called "three-per-cent law," limiting the admission of aliens from any country annually to three per cent of the number from that country already here. There are also recent provisions such as the literacy test. That these restrictions solve the problem is not claimed by anybody. They are at best temporary measures to stem the tide somewhat until such time as Congress can make up its mind as to what our policy shall be.

But the three-per-cent law has been praised by Secretary Davis as cutting the immigration in half for the past year, and more than doubling the deportation of undesirable aliens. It has also admittedly worked unusual and severe hardship in individual cases, as instanced in the recent statement of the Secretary of Labor that he had intervened in more than 2000 cases to prevent hardship and the separation of families.

Congress has yet to pass an immigration bill which will give adequate protection to America, and do full justice to the immigrant as well. A bill which in the opinion of Secretary Davis would go a long ways toward this desirable end has been introduced in Congress.

There are two principal provisions of this bill, both especially sponsored by Dr. C. B. Davenport, the leader of the eugenics movement in America, and other biologists and eugenists, who are interested in the principle, not of cutting off immigration, as has been suggested by some, but of selecting our immigrants upon some rational scientific basis.

The bill provides for the examination of prospective immigrants before leaving their countries, for the establishment of a corps of immigration attaches, and for the establishment of an immigration passport system.

Under the provisions of the pending legislation, the examination of immigrants on the other side would include an examination of the hereditary history of the applicant with reference to the kind of qualities he will transmit to his offspring born in America—who will be American citizens.

This procedure would not only protect us from the introduction of socially unfit family lines, but it would save all the suffering and disappointment now experienced at Ellis Island. The new immigrant would be admitted to America and a passport would be issued to him before he left his home town. A small registration fee will defray the cost of administration of the new system.

The other provision of the bill creates the machinery for the enrollment of all aliens in this country and an enrollment fee, modest, but sufficient to bear the expenses of the work. Regarding this provision of the bill, Secretary Davis says: "We must know who is the alien, where he is and what he needs, and there is only one way in which we can properly survey the work—that is, by requiring each and every alien to report, or to enroll, at a specified time at a designated place and give us the necessary information to enable us intelligently to determine just what solvents we should place in our melting pot and just how much fire it will take to boil the pot."

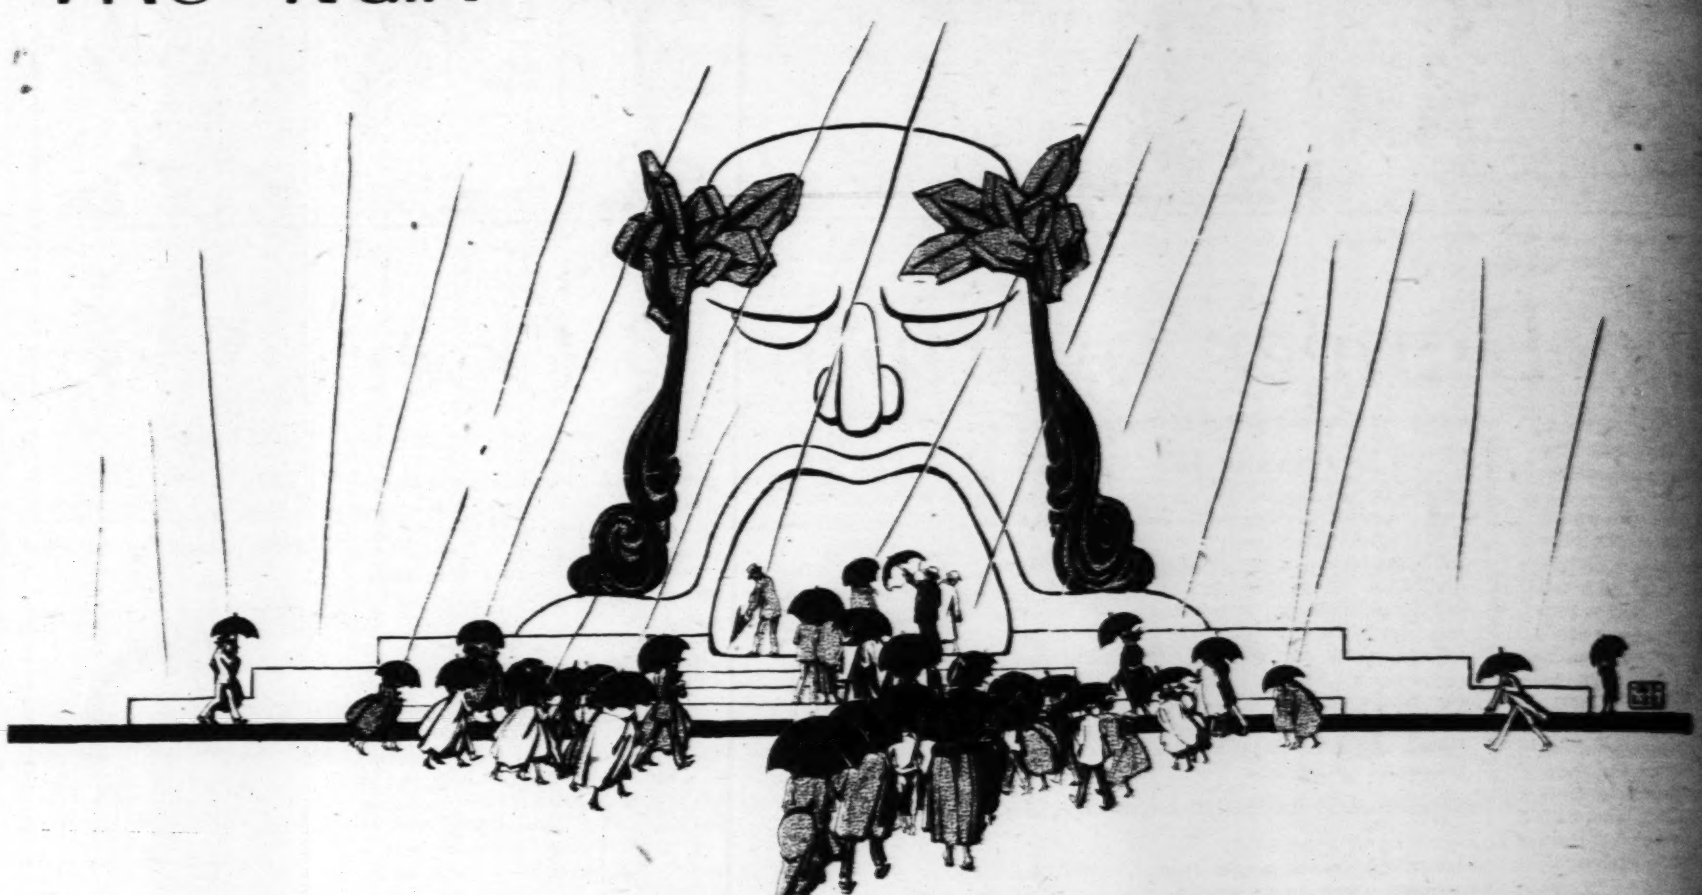
The Rain That Made a Millionaire



Lincoln J. Carter, father of popular melodrama, now seeing his thrillers filmed for the movies, is moved to tell how a Chicago rainstorm in 1889 put his first play over the footlights and put him on the road to a big fortune :: :: :: ::

By KARL K. KITCHEN.

THERE was a visitor in New York this summer who didn't complain about the weather. Although there were only three days out of June's thirty that were without rain, it didn't annoy him.

No, this visitor was not a manufacturer of umbrellas, overshoes or waterproof garments. He was no other than our old friend, Lincoln J. Carter, the daddy of popular-priced melodrama, come back to life after a dozen years.

It was because a rainy June had started him on his successful melodramatic career that Lincoln J. Carter is still grateful to the gods and goddesses who send down the showers. For he is frank to admit that if it hadn't rained on June 8, 1889—and kept on raining the rest of that fateful month—he wouldn't be the millionaire that he is today. For just as the rain the night before the battle of Waterloo was Napoleon's undoing—if you recall your Victor Hugo—the rain the day before the opening of his first melodrama was the cause of his success.

It was this way: Back in 1889—thirty-three years ago—Lincoln J. Carter, then a stripling, had written a melodrama called "The Fast Mail." He had only $700 to produce it and in vain he tried to get Lewis Morrison and others to aid him in presenting it. More out of pity than anything else a Chicago manager gave him the week of June 8 at his playhouse, with the understanding that the theater would get the first thousand dollars taken in at the box office, the show the second thousand and the remainder of the receipts divided 50-50.

Now, the second week in June, in a downtown Chicago playhouse—especially for the tryout of a new melodrama was, and still is, almost suicidal. The heat is so intense that it is almost impossible to give seats away. However, Lincoln J. Carter took the date and produced "The Fast Mail." Because of his limited capital he not only had to paint the scenery himself, but the posters announcing the attraction. And he played the "leading heavy" as well as supervising its stage management.

To make a long story short, a rainstorm descended on Chicago on the morning of June 8—a Sunday. It rained so hard that no one was able to leave for the beaches and as there was no place else to go, the people flocked to the theater. The first performance was not only a "sell out," but hundreds were turned away. And as it rained the following day—and night—the second performance was just as successful, from a box office standpoint. In fact, thanks to the rain, "The Fast Mail" sold out at every performance during the entire week and the money it made enabled him to build a good production in the fall, which earned more than $50,000 for him in its first season alone—and $50,000 in 1889 was a lot of money compared to the same amount today.

LINCOLN J. CARTER.

Some men would not be grateful to the gods and goddesses who sent the rain, but Lincoln J. Carter is not that kind.

"Let it rain," he said, cheerfully, as he looked out of the window of his suite at the Hotel Plaza and watched the procession of taxicabs and umbrella carriers on Fifty-ninth street. "If it hadn't been for that rainy June thirty-three years ago I'd probably be stopping at the Mills Hotel No. 3, instead of here. But do you know," he said, suddenly, "I've always played in luck."

"Let me tell you," he went on. "Some years ago I was told that one of my scenic effects—that I used in "The Heart of Chicago"—was being used in the Winter Garden in New York. I was living out on my farm near Goshen, Ind., but I came on here and I discovered that a couple of fellows had stolen my device—a locomotive that ran right up to the footlights—and were getting $500 a week for it from the Shuberts. I got out my patent papers, sent for my lawyer and I soon proved that they had stolen it."

"And you collected the money?" I interrupted.

"Much better," he replied. "I couldn't get the money that the Shuberts had paid them, but I got all the future royalties and Lee Shubert became so interested in some of my other scenic effects that I did more than $50,000 worth of business with him before I went back to my farm. If they hadn't stolen my device, I would not have picked up that loose change—so I'm grateful to them, in spite of what they did."

"And take my situation now," the father of popular-priced melodrama continued. "The movies put me out of business—I couldn't compete with them when it came to providing thrills—but now they're bringing me back into the business again. The change in public taste has brought the old-fashioned melodrama into favor and the Fox people have made a screen version of 'The Fast Mail.' I got a good price for it, and the movie people tell me they're going to film a whole series of my plays. If that isn't luck I don't know what luck is, for I thought my old thrillers were as dead as door nails. I had retired to my farm and had expected to spend the rest of my days in peace and quiet, but now I am back in the show business again—after all these years."

"Was 'The Fast Mail' the most successful of your melodramas?" I asked.

"By no means," the Indiana author answered, stroking his beard. "'The Heart of Chicago' was my greatest success. 'The Fast Mail' was famous principally because it was the first play in which a train of cars was run across the stage at full speed."

"What was the plot of it?" I asked, for although I had seen it many years ago, I was hazy about its story.

"Why, don't you remember," he began. "Its first act was in Memphis. The heroine had been wronged by a rich villain and her sweetheart and her father shoot him at the same time. That is, the father really shoots him, but as the sweetheart had drawn a revolver at the same time, he thought he had shot him. He runs away and the second act is on a Mississippi steamboat. A detective, who is following him, is on another steamboat and the climax of the second act is when the steamboat blows up. The third act is at a small railway station and that is where the fast mail comes in. The heroine wants to get a message to her lover, who is on the train, and she pins a message on the mail pouch that is picked up by the train as it rushes by. That's the big thrill and, of course, the villain is foiled. The last act takes place on the suspension bridge over Niagara Falls. The detective, disguised as the hero, meets the villain, who tries to throw him in the rapids, but his wife comes to his aid and they hurl the villain into the water below."

"Is that the way it is in the picture?" I asked, turning to an official of the Fox company, who was with us.

"Not quite," he admitted. "We have the steamboat race, but the fast mail scene is different. The hero jumps on the engine from an automobile, and then back into the car—and they're going sixty miles an hour, too. And we have the last act in a burning building. The hero throws the villain out of the third-story window."

"Well, it's easy to get the hero into the burning building," I observed.

"Of course," agreed the Indiana melodramatic author. "But all plays are changed when they're put in the movies. At least, I've got one thing to be thankful for, they haven't changed the name of my play."

From which it will be seen that Lincoln J. Carter is a grateful author. In fact, he confided to me before I left that nothing the movies could do to his plays would make him mad.

"They're clean plays—my plays," he said, proudly. "And if the movies can put in some more thrills—so much the better."

The Man From Nowhere Goes Home

After crossing America and leaving in his wake the trail of the tale of the season's only grade A sea serpent, Ernest Davies of the South Pacific island of R—— returns thither to spend the rest of his life in lovely loneliness —Keeps secret name and location of his Paradise because everybody wants to go down and share it with him :: :: ::

By REGINALD POUND.

A FEW days ago there slipped unnoticed across the United States, on his way to the West Coast and the Pacific, perhaps the luckiest and certainly the loneliest white man in the world—lucky because he has found something closely akin to peace and contentment; lonely because—well, who wouldn't be lonely in a home that is situated a thousand miles from the nearest chunk of land of any size worth mentioning, and over three times that distance from either of the five continents?

Let us make no mistakes, however—the loneliness of the loneliest white man is purely physical, geographical. He was far lonelier spiritually, he assured me, in London, New York and the other great cities which he visited during his recent temporary sojourn in the civilized wildernesses (the term is his own) of Europe and America than he has ever been on the thin strip of soil, lying like a necklace in the far-off South Seas, which he calls home.

Who is this man? His name is Ernest Davies, and he has spent a large slice of his life in the South Pacific, varied by occasional trips to Wales in search of relatives who never can be found, and more frequent voyages to San Francisco and other West Coast towns, undertaken in connection with the trading interests which he has developed down there over the southern horizon.

There, on a coral reinforced circlet of sand known as R——, a mere speck in that vast ocean, only eight feet of soil between his feet and the sea level, Mr. Davies proposes to spend the remainder of his days, communing with the sun, wind and waves, a handful of natives, and any odd traveler who happens that way—an event which, it may be noted in passing, has up to the present occurred on but three occasions, R—— not only lying well off the beaten track, but possessing no harborage of any sort for ships.

And if you are curious why I am suppressing the name of the island (it incloses the bluest of blue lagoons, by the way, and grows the biggest, milkiest cocoanuts you ever shied at) it is because its lord and master has expressly charged me not to divulge it. I did him the disservice of mentioning it in an English weekly newspaper, and lo, there came a deluge of letters from all parts of the globe!

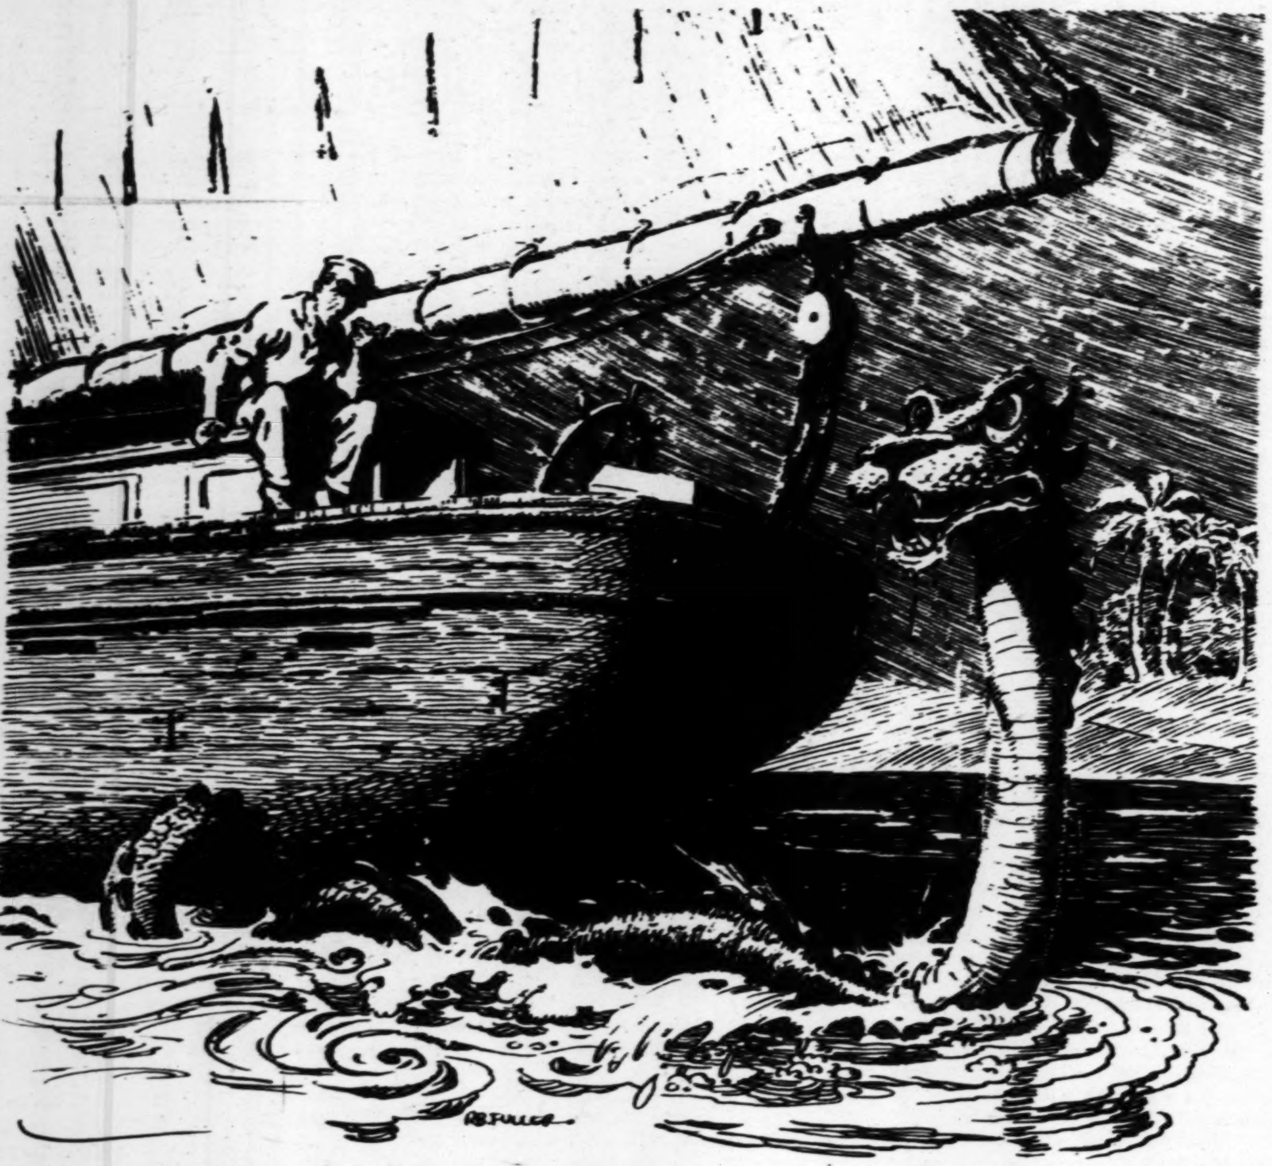
Half the population of this weary old world, it seems, is yearning for life on a Pacific island, especially this island.

Tired men and women in New York sent cables asking for the address and details "as to sailings"—how the uncrowned king of R—— did laugh!—by return; a St. Louis dry goods merchant wanted an option on a half share of Mr. Davies' interests, "with right of residence;" a Montreal woman wanted to be his housekeeper; "excellent cook; thirty-five years' experience; good references; used to roughing it;" a Chicago monumental mason was anxious "to go out immediately;" a romantically inclined girl in San Francisco begged to be allowed to meet Mr. Davies when he passed through that city on his way back home, "with a view of sharing the life, its hardships as well as its joys," while a shoal of similar requests came from people living as far apart as London, Bombay, Adelaide, and a town with an unpronounceable name in Czecho-Slovakia.

There are shocks in store for those get-there-in-a-hurry enthusiasts.

A journey to the island from this country, via either San Francisco or the Panama, occupies at least two months and not infrequently three, the last week or two of which may find you impatiently cooling your heels in Tahiti, while waiting for a schooner—schooners, unlike liners, know no servitude to time tables—to run you the thousand miles or so that still separate you from R——.

Letters take an equally long time, and often longer, as they may be delivered by native canoemen, who, between the time of leaving the mail-collecting station and reaching R——, may have spent a month or so in courting some dusky belle at an intervening place of call.



The creature reached the ship and I distinctly felt its huge bulk rasping along her side. Then the head suddenly reared itself out of the depths.

Although now that he has disposed of his trading interests Mr. Davies does not find himself overburdened with work, still there is plenty to keep his mind occupied. At the present he is trying to solve some of the minor problems of the Pacific, while the politicians and, of course, the scaremongers are busying themselves with the bigger ones.

One sultry night, for example, Mr. Davies was sitting smoking on the poop of a schooner which had paid him a friendly call when he was aroused from the somnolent state into which he found himself fast sinking by a shout of alarm from a member of the crew. It was one of those nights which it is physically impossible to experience outside South Pacific waters. The sky was deepening to indigo, shot with silver points; the sea was one vast sheet of glass, the air was hot and perfume laden (though, as Mr. Davies says; another problem of those parts is where the perfume comes from, as no flowers grow within hundreds of miles), while Mr. Davies' brain, I vouch, was functioning perfectly.

On this night, and from the poop of that schooner, Mr. Davies saw a sea serpent.

It broke upon his mental horizon so unexpectedly that even now the excitement of the moment has not lost its grip upon him. He exclaimed:

"The thing's head was visible at first just above the surface of the sea, twenty yards from the ship. Little plumes of foam spread out on either side of it. The creature reached the side of the ship and I distinctly felt its huge bulk rasping along her side. Then the head suddenly reared itself out of the depths, until it drew level with the main deck.

"By this time the three or four members of the crew who were with me were paralyzed with fright. I myself felt shaky, but I was not unnerved. The thing—you can safely call it sea serpent—surveyed us for what seemed an eternity of time, and then dropped sinuously back into the sea. I estimated its length as being at least forty feet and its girth ten feet or more—a sort of super-python, with a head shaped curiously like a horse's."

Previous to this experience Mr. Davies had often heard old natives speak of strange and fearsome monsters of this description and, knowing the people as he does, he believes that their stories are founded on fact. Following a tidal wave which swept over a neighboring reef, for example, there was washed up the body of a creature having an over-all length of fifty-three feet and a girth of twelve feet six inches!

The facts that the natives of R—— possess an uncanny faculty of being able to foresee coming events with startling clearness provides another first rate puzzle for the scientific world.

Almost every man and woman on the island is a reliable prophet. Minute descriptions of future happenings are common features of their conversation. For instance, one morning Mr. Davies was preparing to embark on a trading cruise, when his native "boy" came to him and, falling on his knees, begged his master not to go. The previous night, he said, his mother had seen a vision of Mr. Davies and his crew struggling in the sea, following which description she had given a detailed account of a terrible voyage, made without food or water, which actually befell Mr. Davies, who ignored the warning, a few days later. After drifting on the open sea, for six days and nights, the party, consisting of Mr. Davies and eight natives, were picked up by a British tramp.

Whence comes this remarkable gift of prevision? Why is it confined to a small group of Pacific islanders? These are more interesting problems than some of those on which many scientists seem to be frittering away their time and energies.

And here is a problem which, I venture to say, will make the eyes of the South Seas school of fiction writers fill with tears at recollection of their impotence in weaving mysteries comparable with those of real life.

While sailing one day among some outlying islands, Mr. Davies observed a curious, copper-colored figure crouching behind a rock.

The figure was that of a naked man, with tangled, unkempt hair hanging over his shoulders; long, hairy limbs, and hands shaped almost like talons, with sharp, pointed nails. When the boat got within a few yards of the man he leaped up, gave a cry of mingled wrath and apprehension, and dived into the sea.

The puzzle here is concerned not with the identity of the wild man of the sea; he is a mad descendant of a Bounty mutineer from Pitcairn Island; but with his mode of progression from one island to another. On leaving Pitcairn, he swam to an island forty miles away; and from thence to another island, and so on, until at length he reached R——. But the strangest part of his history is that he has been seen on islands and reefs separated by as many as a hundred miles, with no intervening landing place!

How does he cover these, comparatively speaking, prodigious distances? He has no boat or raft; and there is no doubt whatever in Mr. Davies' mind that he swims every yard of the way.

TRAILS TO SANTA FE

BY WILLIAM DUDLEY PELLEY

ON THE fifth day of last January, at a quarter before 6 in the afternoon, three men completed a certain legal task in a grubby lawyer's office in the town of Taunton, Conn.

The table top between them was strewn with memoranda, documents of sale and settlement, typed quitclaims and books of record. All three were mentally weary, but they had reached the last item, verified it, checked it off on a long list; and their afternoon's work—concluding a trusteeship of eighteen months—was ended. On the dusty red blotter before the senior of the three lay an open check book.

"Well," he demanded, "shall we write the boy a check now, and wind it up, or shall we put it off until tomorrow?"

"Write it now," ordered the stout, red-faced man. "What's the use waiting?"

"Yes," echoed the tall, hatchet-faced third man, "get the check mailed and let's see the last of the whole bothersome business."

The senior trustee raised tired eyes to the clock, fumbled for his dangling eyeglasses and reached for an old-fashioned gold pen.

It was quiet in the room as he pressed back the thick stubs, found the next consecutive blank check, dipped the gold pen in the ink and filled in the blank lines.

"Thirty-four thousand, five hundred and seventy-five dollars and fifteen cents!" he muttered. "And if the estate had amounted to a million it could hardly have given us more trouble or work."

The check written, he signed his name, blotted it and passed the book across to the stout man. The latter inked his pen and added his signature likewise. The technicality was triplicated by the hatchet-faced third. Receiving the book back, the senior lawyer penned beneath the names:

"For the Estate of Sarah Porter MacKane."

Blotting the whole again, he ripped out the momentous slip of paper, adjusted the nearby check protector, slid the document within its inky jaws and thumped the handle. Then he concluded:

"I'll inclose this in the envelope along with the letter and papers we dictated to Jane. I'll mail it on my way up to supper."

The three arose. The lean man gripped the sleeve-edge of his coat, preparatory to thrusting the arm into a heavy ulster.

"Only one thing about a job of this kind I regret," he declared, —"that after all the bother and work I can't see the legatee's face when he opens the envelope and discover's what's inside. Why, I wonder, in this particular case, did old Sarah bind us to keep it all dark until the money was ready for remittance?"

The senior lawyer was busy collecting the papers. But he answered:

"She probably didn't want to put temptation in her nephew's path. Boys who know they have a chunk of money coming sometimes plan to do foolish things."

Ten minutes later all three had descended to the street and separated. The letter with its inclosures was properly posted, and the senior administrator climbed the hill toward home and supper.

* * * * * * * *

At the moment when the three trust officials were signing their names to that check—to be exact, at ten minutes to 6 o'clock on the afternoon of Jan. 5, 1920—200 miles to the northward, in a little Vermont factory office, young Malcomb E. MacKane was staring at a ghost.

He had been alone in his office for nearly fifty minutes. Immediately the 5 o'clock whistle had blown, his factory had been deserted with a rush—except for a night watchman down in the boiler room who had just come on the job. At the end of those fifty minutes the young manager had heard a step in the outer room.

He had assumed for a moment that one of the office force had returned for some personal belonging, forgotten in the rush of closing time. The one who entered, however, was not an employe. Young MacKane had raised aching eyes—for he was ailing at the moment, physically and mentally. He had called out interrogatively. Immediately a figure was outlined in the open doorway of his private office. He peered beyond the circle of illumination given by the green drop-lamp above his desk. And he saw—the ghost.

The apparition took the form of a woman. She wore a neat turban, trimmed with fur, and a long coat. About her shoulders were other furs, matching the trimming on her hat, and she carried a similar muff. But of her dress the man took note afterward. His feverish eyes sought her face. Recognition came with a smash! From his lips broke a cry. He pulled himself to his feet.

For an instant the woman hesitated. Then she came silently across the floor toward him.

The desk separating them, she paused. The man repeated his cry of incredulity.

The girl's lips parted. Involuntarily she raised her arms, one wrist feather-weighted with the muff.

"Malcolm!" she whispered. It was as if she were uncertain how she would be received.

The man passed the back of a nervous hand across his forehead. Then he stumbled around the corner of the desk—put out a hand—touched her. Then in a sudden sweeping away of all barriers his arms enveloped—crushed her. The fragrance of her hair, her lips, her breath, rioted his senses.

"Malcolm! Don't!" She laughed.

It had transpired so suddenly that the man still could hardly credit the miracle, even after he had released her.

"Where did you come from—now?" he asked, hoarsely.

"I got in on the 5:23. I'm on my way to Montreal. I stopped off because I had to see you. After your last letter, I had to come!"

"Montreal?"

"An excuse—to come East, Malcolm, dear. I couldn't stand it any longer—out there—alone. Don't you understand, Muggsy?" It was a name she had coined for him the summer before. "Out there" meant California.

"You! Here—here in Paris, Vermont!" His fingers gripped the desk edge as though for balance. "I—can't believe—it!"

"I've got just two hours, Muggsy. The train for Montreal leaves at 7:45. Afterward, when I've seen my people there—accounted for myself—don't you understand?"

Silence.

"What's the matter, Malcolm, dear? Are you ill?"

"Yes," he conceded, with the same hoarseness, "I'm—ill." He tried to smile. The result was ghastly.

The girl dropped her muff on the desk and threw off her heavy neck fur. He had groped his way back to his swivel chair and lowered his forehead upon his wrists. The woman pulled a chair beside him.

"What's the matter, Muggsy? Aren't you glad to see me? Tell me the truth!"

"Glad to see you?" He raised his head and seemed about to break out in an explosion of sophomoric confirmation. But he checked himself, and the woman saw it.

"Malcolm! Something's the matter. It's not just this surprise I've given you. Can't you tell me what it is?"

"Tonight, Aggie," he said, "I was planning to leave everything here—and go to you!"

For an instant a look, half fear, half puzzlement, flashed into her eyes, then was gone. She drew her lower lip between her teeth.

"Leave everything here? Go to me?"

"I was planning to leave everything here and go to you! Don't you understand what I mean? I was planning to leave here, go to you, begin over again, and let everything here slide to—to hell!"

Again that look in her eyes.

"What a queer coincidence!" she exclaimed, lamely, as if she were not certain of her ground. "You mean you were planning to leave for California—tonight?"

"No, tonight I was only perfecting my plans to leave. I was meaning to start tomorrow night at 12:35. You see, if I'm going at all, I've got to be out of here surely by Thursday morning."

His eye fell, and in that moment hers searched his face.

"I haven't been happy a day since I returned, Aggie, with the memory of what real happiness could be. Things have gone from bad to worse here, until now there's no way out. Always the memory of that evening up Alamitos Bay has been with me. Out there—3000 miles away—happiness has called to me—and forgetfulness. I wanted other nights of stars like that—always. And so I had it all planned to go. I've got to wait until tomorrow afternoon, anyway—for several things. And yet Thursday morning will be too late." He swallowed perceptibly. Then he concluded: "And now, you're here!"

A silence fell between them, a silence broken only by the ticking of the old wall-clock in the outer office.

"But what if I am here? I've saved you the journey, haven't I?"

"Oh, don't you understand?" He gazed deep into her eyes. "Agnes"—it was little more than a whisper—"this is a husk of a business! Going away—to you—means starting all over. Now do you see what I'm trying to tell you?"

She looked about the office as though the substantial physical wall and furnishings contradicted his hopeless assertion.

"I've played my cards and lost," he went on. "I've tried my best to make this factory go—and failed. Day after tomorrow must come the inevitable crash—and I can't be here. I was going out to you—start all over out there in some new line, and try to forget. Nobody would know me there. It would be a new chance, with you to"——

"You mean you're"——

She gazed at him, blankly.

"I'm sick of everything! Seven years I've struggled to make things go. For seven years I've hunted capital, begged loans, fought for business, kept the organization together somehow. For seven years I've toiled and sweated and worked—overworked! I've met payrolls and found orders, always running just a bit behind and eating into my working capital, keeping the deficiency from the penny-pinching stockholders, hoping the tide would turn. It hasn't turned, Agnes. Production has always fallen just a bit behind. Little leaks have drained my resources that I seemed powerless to help. The time has come when I can't hold out any longer; the result can't be worth the price. Always the inevitable Nemesis—the knowledge that sooner or later the crash must come. So—I was going away!"

She leaned forward quickly and touched his arm.

"Malcolm—have you done anything criminal?"

"No! Thank God—No!" She searched his face again with her deep-seeing eyes.

"Then haven't you the right to go away?" she asked.

"Technically, yes; morally, no," he replied.

"Morally, no?"

"The stockholders!"

"What of them?"

"If you knew them as I do, you'd understand. There's Charley Pritchard: he put in $2000 of his father's insurance—borrowed it from his mother—and he's got that mother, a wife and three babies dependent on him. There's old Amos Pulver, the bookkeeper; he put in $1800. And there's Peter Whipple, cashier in a bank; he invested a whole lifetime of savings—money he and his wife had laid away dollar by dollar from each week's salary check—thinking this was a good business and ultimately he would have the opportunity to come into the office here and perhaps even head a business of his own. And there's the Wriston sisters, with their uncle's legacy invested in my stock. And the banks—they loaned me money largely on my industry and optimism." He sneered self-contemptuously.

"How much does it all total—this moral indebtedness?" the girl asked, quietly.

"Over $30,000."

"Twenty cents on the dollar."

"And there's—absolutely no way out?"

He was a long time in answering. She had to repeat her question twice. And finally, not facing her, he told her.

"There's a frail hope, a terribly frail hope, so frail it's nonsense to talk about it at all. In desperation I went to New York last week. I laid a proposition before a man named Longshore. He heads a chain of 25-cent stores all through the Middle West. Sometimes he finances small companies like mine and takes their entire output. I offered him my factory and business. This is a $50,000 corporation. I own $28,000 worth of the stock. The real money, however, is represented by the minority stockholders, Pulver, Pritchard, Whipple and the rest. I offered to turn all my stock over to Longshore if he'd finance me to the extent of [illegible], take all my product and pay the minority stockholders 7 per cent regularly every year."

"And what about you?"

"I'd stay and work on a salary of $5000 a year."

He did not see the faint smile that came into her eyes.

"What did he say?" she asked.

"He said he'd 'take it under advisement.' His board of directors were going to meet today—in New York this morning. He would lay the whole thing before them. If they acted favorably, I would get a letter not later than Wednesday, Jan. 6. If I had not so heard from him by that date, I would know he wasn't interested."

"Then why lose hope? There's still a chance."

"It's too slender, that chance. And there's no avoiding Preston's ugly ultimatum."

"Preston? Who's he? What ultimatum?"

"He's a local lawyer who's been instructed to file a petition for bankruptcy against me if I haven't paid a certain bill by 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. He'll do it, Thursday morning, as soon as he can interview Judge Harmsworth."

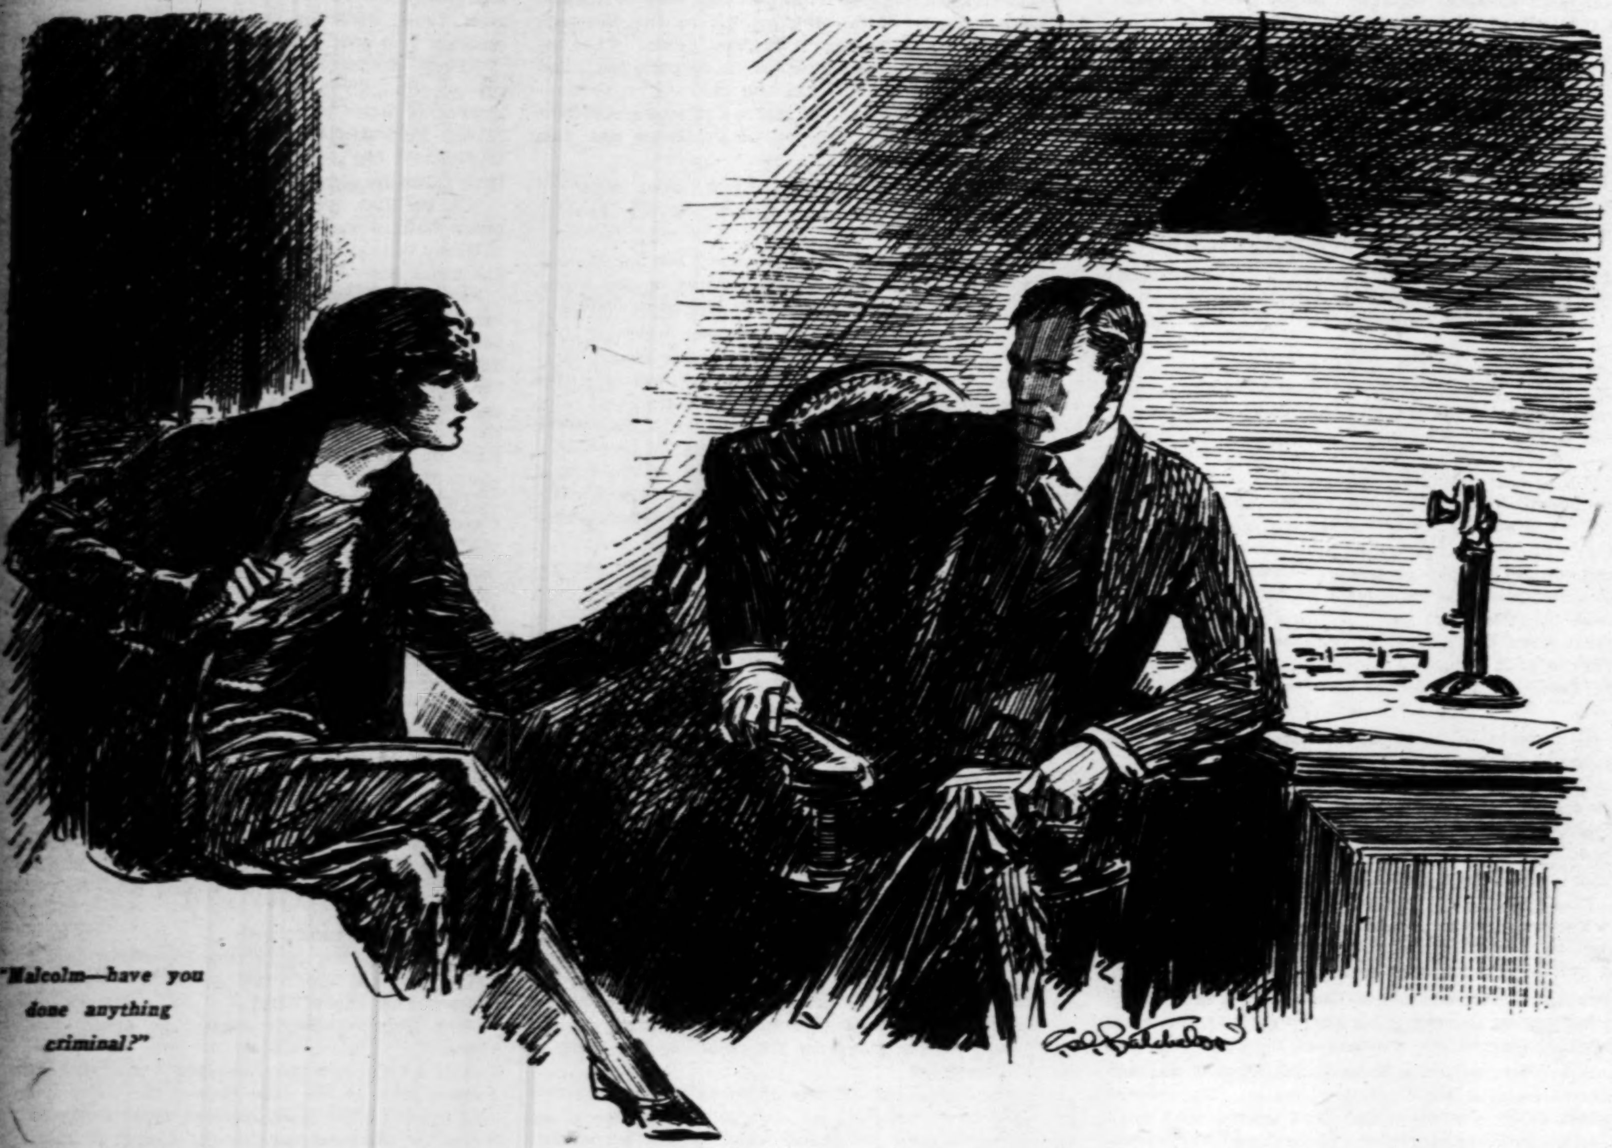
He waited in the silence that followed. Would she appeal to him to wait and take the chance—or to stand by to the end. But she did neither. Instead she pulled off both gloves slowly, unbuttoned the heavy coat and laid it aside. Then, still without speaking, she walked to the office window and stood looking out in the dark.

In the tensity the moment developed, the man cried out in protest:

"I want rest. I want peace. I want forgetfulness, happiness! All I've ever known is hard work and endless application—eternally making motions or concentrating on some problem that has taken its toll of a boy's priceless heritage—just boyhood. That trip to California last summer, when I met you for the first time—even that was partly business, but it was the first great relief from the grind I'd known for years. You don't understand. You can't understand. That evening when we rowed up Alamitos Inlet was a fairy time!"

The girl still stood by the window, staring out into the darkness. Behind her the man picked up a [illegible]

— Through Anguish of Spirit to the Heart's Desire



"Malcolm—have you done anything criminal?"

and began making aimless designs on a pad, while he ran on bitterly:

"I've lived those moments through a thousand times—the stars, the velvet, purple sky"——

Suddenly, with a little squaring of her shoulders, as if she had made up her mind, the girl turned from the window. "Well?" she asked.

"I want it all back again—and you. You were—you are—my Calypso, dear. Don't blame me, Aggie," he pleaded, brokenly. "It has been so terrible since my stars—calling, pleading, beckoning—and all I saw ahead was disaster. I couldn't stand it! I can't stand it now! I can't! I can't!"

The girl bent above him, one hand resting on his head. Over her eyes the lids drooped and a faint tremor passed over her little body. It was as if she were summoning all her strength for a great, final effort. She looked down at him then, and in her gaze was a sympathy and a greater pity. Then, bending lower and flinging one arm across his shoulders, she whispered:

"You called me Calypso! Yes—come with me, dear! Our Ionian Land is waiting"——

At 7:45 that same evening an agitated man helped a somewhat disheveled woman aboard the Montreal express after it pulled in to the Paris station from Boston. He had a few moments with her in the car before the heavy train continued on its way. Her parting words were:

"Grand Central Station—Thursday afternoon—at 1 o'clock near the information kiosk. Right down to the municipal building, a license, an Alderman—after that—there'll be happiness—together."

A pressure of hands, and they had parted.

The girl sat in one position in the seat, staring at her silhouette in the darkened car window, until the train had nearly reached Sherbrooke. Then her whole figure shuddered as though she was emerging from a trance.

MacKane was late at his office the following morning—the morning of that last day. Old Pulver, the bookkeeper, came to him as soon as Mac was ready for business, the company checkbook in his hand.

"We're getting frightfully short at the bank again, Mr. MacKane," he declared, hesitatingly.

"I know," returned the manager, with assumed indifference. "We'll fix it." When the old man had retired, MacKane sat staring at the door. Poor old Pulver! He did more worrying over his $1800 than all the rest of the stockholders lumped together. And yet, why not?

The young man's imagination ran morbidly riot as he visualized the probable events of tomorrow. The Sheriff would probably appear sometime during the early forenoon, but MacKane would be missing. The young man pictured the stopping of the machinery, the cessation of all work in the front office, the quandary of the employes, who would buzz around the cashier's window like angry hornets because there was no money to settle their jelly-bean wage accounts. He could see old Amos moving about in a daze, the white faces of many of the stockholders when the news reached them, the scandal that would spread over the town, the maelstrom in which the MacKane Woodenware Co. would meet its end.

The president and general manager raised troubled eyes to gaze through the window beside his desk. Across the cluttered factory yard, and farther, across Water street, his glance came to rest upon the billboard between Lem Batson's house and Walter Daley's blacksmith shop. A twelve-sheet poster pasted thereon announced the evening's attraction at the Olympic Motion-picture Theater: William S. Hardy, in "The Santa Fe Trail."

The big red letters of the title, the desert background, the mammoth lithographed "close-up" of the actor, the rough-and-ready girl on the horse by his side—these held MacKane's gaze.

"The Santa Fe Trail!" In another two or three days he—Malcolm MacKane—would be traveling the real Santa Fe Trail, for the kingdom of Heart's Desire—depleted bank accounts, stockholders' troubles, business worries forever behind him. And like the actor in the lithograph, beside him, too, would be a woman.

Bill Hardy's roles had always held an irresistible appeal for young MacKane. If more vital events were not impending, he would be going to see that film, but now—— He wrenched away his eyes.

• • • • • • • •

The afternoon dragged to a close. At 4 o'clock a girl in Lawyer Preston's office called on the phone to learn whether he intended "doing anything" about that account.

"Tell Mr. Preston I'm waiting for an important letter on the 5:23," was his reply. But he was not. He was really waiting for Bill Sheehan to appear with $600, Bill's last payment on the motor car MacKane had sold him. For not a penny of the company's cash was he taking on his flight.

Sure enough, as soon as he was released from work, Bill met his wife, came over to the MacKane plant and laid thirty $20 bills on the young president's desk. He received his bill of sale in exchange.

MacKane pulled a deep breath when the transaction was completed and he was again alone in his office. Nothing hindered now. With $200 more up in his room he was financially free to catch the midnight train. Promptly at 5 o'clock he left the office.

When, at 5:23, the afternoon mail train came up the valley on schedule, Mac was in his room at his stepsister's home, packing the last few articles in his bag. The moral absconder did not care to eat a last meal with his sister and her family. He donned hat and overcoat, picked up his bag and a well-filled suit case, and toted both of them to the station, where he left them in the care of the baggage clerk.

It was 6:40 when he sauntered moodily down Main street smoking an after-supper cigar. He had eaten in Ned Farrel's lunchroom. The front of the Olympic movie show was illuminated. People were going in and out of the postoffice, procuring their evening mail.

The evening mail! In the tension of leaving, Mac had almost forgotten about it. He entered the office lobby. His company box was No. 366, directly opposite the door. The young man drew a long breath before he looked in. The arrival of the Longshore letter, the contents of his postoffice box on this night, would change the entire course of all his days! He bent over, peering through the square of glass.

The box was empty!

Realizing that, after all, it really mattered little now, he moved around to the window where Jim Ruggles was selling stamps.

"Evening mail all distributed, Jim?"

"All up!" But as Mac turned away, the postal clerk called: "Hey! Wait a minute, Mac! Got a registered letter for you here, and I ain't had time to shove the card in your box."

Mac's heart turned over. If Longshore forwarded important documents, he would, of course, send them by registered mail. In poignant excitement, MacKane signed the receipt book and return card. He was handed a long envelope.

He steeled himself to look at its corner card as he had steeled himself to look into his postoffice box. Would it read: "Suite 547, Woolworth Building, New York City?"

It did not. The corner card was that of a firm of attorneys in Taunton, Conn. Smithsail & Son, he recalled, one of his largest creditors, had their factory in Taunton.

A dun! By registered mail! A notice before suit, sent thus in order that his "Personal Receipt Desired" card might be shown as evidence that he had been duly notified.

Well, he had waited for the 5:23 mail! And what of it? Only another claim against the business. There was no saving it now. This dun was the last goad, driving him from this swiftly complicating business dilemma.

He turned his steps down toward the station—where he would wait alone for the midnight train. By the billboard he paused. Well, why not? It would help pass the time, and he'd always liked Bill Hardy. He retraced his steps until he came within the radiance of the theater's blazing entrance.

The second show of the evening was just starting, the "feature film" of the evening, prefaced by a comedy. When the feature flickered on, the man was ready for the story it narrated. Would he not, in three days, be traveling down that trail himself—he and the one woman? Perhaps that is why the film had more of his attention this night than it might have had on any other evening. Then it would be merely pleasure. Now it was prophecy.

Bill Hardy, as a type, had always held a peculiar fascination for the young manager of the MacKane Woodenware Co. And the actor was in one of his happiest roles this evening—a scout in the days of the 'forty-niners. He had been elected to guide a wagon train and a hundred pioneers through the multitudinous dangers of the old Southwest, along the Santa Fe Trail. The lives and destinies of his followers were completely in his care. And he was competent to command that trust. Of course, there was a girl——

But why repeat the story of a current movie? The point is this: that one man in that little Vermont theater that night was moved by the portrayal as one in a hypnotic trance. For the time being he lived on the old Santa Fe Trail of yesterday. He became Bill Hardy!

Ah, those were the days! The glory of those pioneers of an unconquerable race, that had pushed on through precipitous mountain ranges, over the death floors of alkali valleys and blistering toll-taking deserts, advancing, ever advancing—it had departed. In place of such men were today milk-and-water creatures, of street cars, automobiles and night lunch carts.

Came the great scene in the reel, the climax. The girl, for whom at first the hero would have abandoned the task that fate had set him, had been captured by marauding Indians. The scout had one of two alternatives: He could desert the hundred souls depending upon him to lead them through in safety to the end of the trek, and could go after the woman he loved better than he loved his life; or he could leave her to her fate—the fate of one—in order that a hundred might reach the end of the journey in safety. Banal and trite as the situation was, the moment was no less tense, the audience no less electrified. Yet every man, woman and child knew there could be but one outcome. With the flicker of a long-ago campfire playing upon his mobile face, the man fought out his battle with self and won.

He gave orders for the wagon train to move—himself at its head. Fighting every inch of the way—Indians, drouth, treachery, pitiless desert forces—with no further thought of self, but with every thought for those who had put their trust in him, he came through clean! He stood by his followers to the end of the trail!

A moving-picture story—admission 20 cents and war tax. That's all. But the God of Things As They Are has witnessed greater glories—unwept, unhonored and unsung—in long-forgotten actualities, than the scenario writers of a hundred generations might conceive.

From that screen, straight to the soul of a small-town manufacturer on the eve of running way from a trouble to solve it, pierced the message of the fable.

At 10:30 that night MacKane found himself wandering round outside the Olympic Theater. He crossed the street to the Commons and sank upon a cold, hard iron settee in the shadow of the Soldiers' Monument. Somehow, there in the cold of that midwinter night, it all became as clear as the frosty light to him. It came smashing home to young MacKane—the great comparison! Had not he also been placed in charge of a wagon train? Had not its members placed the same simple faith in his guidance?

And the girl?

Malcolm MacKane rose from that cold iron bench and proceeded slowly down Main street to the Western Union office next Murray's harness store. The operator was new, transferred from Bennington, and wouldn't understand. It was the only thing to do—now. And so, that night the singing wires carried to a girl waiting, wondering, across the Dominion line, this message:

> Cannot keep my promise to you. Shall stick by the ship and see it through. If only you could understand.

Twenty minutes later Malcolm MacKane let himself into the office of his factory and, turning on the green-shaded desk light, sank into his swivel chair saddle.

How long he sat there, his mind racing back over the actualities behind and the possibilities ahead, MacKane never knew; but suddenly his eye was attracted by an envelope lying on the floor. It was the same he had signed for earlier that evening and must have slipped from his overcoat pocket, where he had thrust it, as he threw his coat over the chair at the end of his desk. Indifferently, he tore off the end and withdrew the contents in a fold of papers, a letter, and a check, payable to himself, for $34,575.15.

Dazedly he examined the envelope. He read and reread the accompanying papers and the letter. No, there was no mistake—a legacy from his aunt, his dead mother's only sister, of whose death, nearly two years before, he had scarcely taken any notice. Stupidly, he gazed about the dingy office, but always his eyes came back to the check. Thirty-four thousand dollars!—in one check!—and made out to him!

"The Trail to Santa Fe." His train! He'd bring them through—he'd show them! He'd bring them through—in spite of hell!

And back on the straight trail again, the first thing MacKane did was to indorse that check for $34,575.15 and mail it, with an explanatory note, to the People's National Bank, where it would be entered for collection with the first business of the coming morning.

Then, with the stockholders' book in front of him alongside the ledger of creditors' account, he began to write checks. He wrote checks totaling $32,800 in the succeeding half hour. All were dated six days ahead, giving his legacy check time to travel to Taunton and the money to be placed to his credit at the bank to make them good.

He uncovered one of the office typewriters. With two fingers he punched out two and three line statements, explaining the check which would accompany each. Thus he settled all the claims of his creditors which the business lacked the assets to cover. He sealed the envelopes and affixed the stamps.

Old Scotty Sampson, the night watchman, discovered him working feverishly at his desk as the hour drew toward midnight. He coughed apologetically.

"Mr. MacKane," he began, "my ol' woman's sick and couldn't pack me no pail o' grub tonight. If you're goin' to be here for the next half-hour, could I run upstreet and grab a snack of the lunch cart?"

"Yes," consented MacKane, "and swing around by the station. Drop this big packet of letters into the mail-train letter box so they'll go down-country on the 12:35. This single letter to the bank, drop in the box in front of the postoffice, where it'll be collected the first thing in the morning."

"I'll do that, sir," replied the watchman—"and I'm much obliged."

When the door closed behind the old man, Malcolm MacKane leaned back in his creaking swivel saddle.

"And this," he muttered aloud, "is how it feels to be a hero! After all, no man's a hero unless there's someone to applaud. I guess heroism, after all, is just duty with the spotlight turned off. Preston won't start his bankruptcy proceedings, but there's little future for the business now, any more than there has been in the past. I've saved only salvage—a mass of junk! And for this, Bill Hardy, you're responsible!"

At 12:35 old Scotty returned.

"I mailed your letters," he announced. "Comin' back, I met Tim Medbury just goin' home. Tim's postoffice box is directly under yours. Tim said that darned Jim Rugglers was always sticking mail into his box that belonged in yours. And he gimme this. It belongs to you! And that new Western Union feller from Bennington was at the lunch cart and said a telegram came for you a spell ago that he cal'lated to deliver in the mornin'. I told him you was here and he went back and unlocked an' "——

MacKane tore open the telegram and spread it under the cover of light to read:

> I do understand. I prayed that you would stay, but if you had come I never would have let you know. So I am coming to you for always. We shall win together. It was the test.
> AGNES.

With a choking sob MacKane's chin sank upon his breast.

Old Scotty leaned closer.

"Bad news, Mr. MacKane—somebody dead?"

The younger man lifted his radiant face to the old, seamed one above him.

"No, Scotty—nobody dead!" he cried. "Somebody living!"

And as the old man skipped out of the room, the reborn man at the desk opened the letter lying there and read: "We have decided to accept your proposi*ion in recontracting for the output of your factory. We are sending Mr. Warner to make such arrangements"——

But Mac read no farther, because he could not.

SWIMMING ADVICE FOR BEGINNERS

By MRS. ALICE AUSTIN, English Expert

ONE of the first essentials in swimming is to acquire a feeling of confidence in the water. Beginners should get the whole body and face properly wetted before essaying to do anything further. This rids novices of the desire to gasp, and breathing is made easier.

In practicing any movement, care should be taken that the body is supported just on the surface of the water—not above it.

Artificial supports, such as water wings, should be used by a beginner only when under supervision. Otherwise they are inflated more fully than is necessary, and during the somewhat uncertain movements whilst learning, they are apt to become displaced, causing an upsetting of balance which may be disastrous to confidence and progress.

An excellent device consists of two discs of cork about 2 inches in thickness, with a diameter of about 8 inches to 10 inches, connected by a belt of webbing. This gives the amount of buoyancy necessary to keep the body on the surface and the chin above the water.

The best place for instruction is a public swimming bath, where there is generally adequate supervision.

The strokes which are of the greatest physical benefit are the breast and back strokes. The former is used when the body is lying in a straight line along the surface of the water, arms extended side by side in front of the head, and legs touching at knees and ankles. The legs remain quite still and the arms are swept outwards in a rounded and somewhat downward movement until they are about nine to twelve inches below the surface, and at right angles to each other.

The elbows are then bent and brought close to the sides just under the chin, palms downward. As the elbows are bent, the leg movements begin, the knees being bent outwards, with heels together, until a diamond shape is formed. The arms are now carried forward until they are lying side by side, palms downward, along the surface, and the legs are straightened by kicking out sideways, the soles of the feet being forced against the water. Then, without pause, the legs are brought together smartly. They should touch at knees and ankles, and lie parallel along the surface, the feet pointing in a line with the body.

Breath is inhaled as the arms are swept round, and exhaled whilst they are being thrust to the front.

The downward pressure caused by the arm pull tends to lift the head, and makes the inhaling of breath easier. Great care should be exercised in developing a good leg kick, as the greater portion of propulsion is derived from it. All the movements should be performed smoothly and steadily. Frenzied, jerky movements retard speed and use up much energy.

As soon as the difficulty of regaining the feet from the position of lying on the back is mastered, the novice should practice the art of floating. This is of the greatest value in gaining confidence, and is a means of awaiting help if in difficulties.

The beginner should hold on to the rail with the toes, and straighten the body, forcing the chest and hips toward the surface of the water. The arms should be extended level with the shoulders, with the back of the head resting on the water. The hold on the rail should then be loosened. Generally speaking, women find floating much easier than men.—London Tit-Bits.

How About Running Automobiles By Dynamite?

WRITING of possible new sources of power, in Science and Invention, H. Gernsback mentions that contained in explosives. He says: "We are today already making use of the gasoline engine, which is an explosion engine. The heat stored up in gasoline is made to give up its energy. If we could utilize dynamite or nitroglycerine, both fairly cheap—and there are others that are cheaper—we should have an ideal fuel. The reason, of course, is that, pound for pound, dynamite and other explosives, as compared to coal and gasoline, are vastly more powerful. Thus, for instance, the energy contained in a pound of dynamite, if we could release it gradually, could propel an automobile for over 100 miles. Unfortunately, we have not reached the point as yet where we could utilize high explosives in such a way where the stored-up energy can be released gradually instead of almost instantaneously.

"There is no question, however, that the time will come when it will be possible for us to carry 50 horsepower in a watch. Dynamite, nitroglycerine and other high explosives, if manufactured in large quantities, can be sold cheaper than gasoline is today. So far, however, no means have been found to handle these explosives, but the inventor who solves this problem will certainly be one of the benefactors of humanity. This invention, when it does come, will revolutionize all our present modes of travel. It is certain that an automobile using a dynamite motor would not weigh more than one-quarter of the present ones. It is a problem worthy of the thoughts of our best inventors."

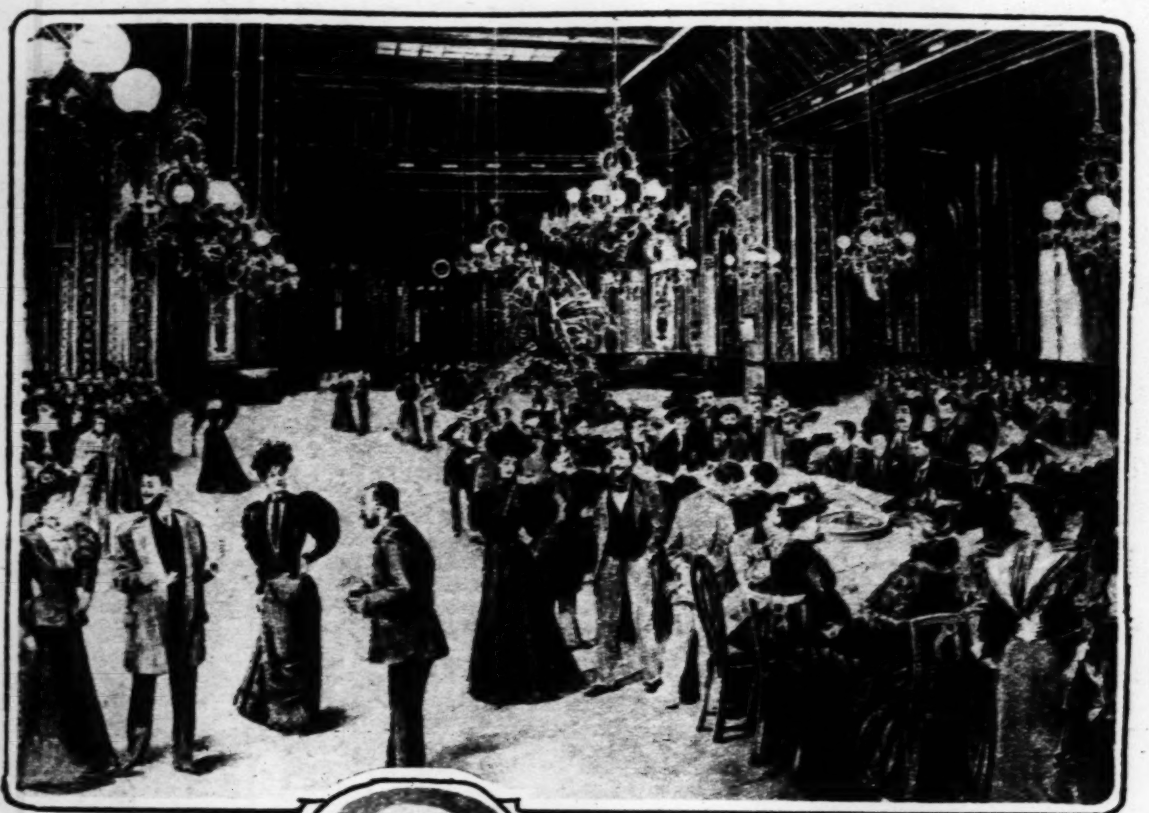
Man That Broke Bank at Monte Carlo and Swindled Thousands, Paid Up

"Hero" of old song dies at 81, after 21 years in prisons as a swindler—Estate, chiefly annuities, seized, creditors received income—But after he was freed they had to pay him a salary to keep him alive, and he got a raise by threatening to kill himself :: :: :: ::



Grand salon in Casino at Monte Carlo, at period when "the man that broke the bank" gambled there.

DYING in such obscurity that the fact of his death did not become known to the general public until he had been in his grave more than a month, "the man that broke the bank at Monte Carlo" and then went broke himself lived almost long enough to repay all his creditors. But Charles de Ville Wells, otherwise known as "Monte Carlo" Wells, who died in Paris, and in poverty, June 22 last, did not make restitution of his own accord. Fate took full charge of the old gambler's affairs and made him pay up, in spite of his personal inclinations to the contrary, for Wells was a crook as well as a gambler. Tragedy, in his case, put on the mask of Humor and laughed at his discomfiture.

It was in the early '90's of the last century that Wells first flashed into fame. A London music hall ballad bore him suddenly into the limelight. Charles Coburn wrote the song, of which the chorus begins, "I'm the man that broke the bank at Monte Carlo." The song made Coburn rich and made Wells poor.

Wells, who was past 50 and old enough to have sidestepped such a fate, lost his head, as the phrase runs, over the notoriety into which the ballad plunged him. Such, at any rate, was the explanation offered by his friends to account for his financial failure. It was a failure from which he never recovered—that is, never legitimately. He came up again, financially, but through crooked means, and went down again. Then once more he came up and again went down, like McGinty, "to the bottom of the sea, dressed in his best suit of clothes," to quote another popular song of the same period.

Wells was an obscure gambler until he went to Monte Carlo and tackled the roulette wheels. For five days he had an amazing run of luck. He won something more than $200,000, putting one of the "banks" out of commission for the time being. In Monte Carlo lingo that is called "breaking the bank." The story got into the newspapers and gave Charles Coburn his lyric opportunity. There was a follow-up vaudeville hit sung by "the girl that broke the man that broke the bank at Monte Carlo."

Wells returned to London in 1893, shortly after he broke the bank. He was pointed out everywhere as "the man that," etc. He seemed to like the notoriety. He plunged again, not in ordinary gambling, but in business, and soon was adjudged a bankrupt under the English laws. His liabilities were about $175,000 and his assets virtually nothing. Subsequently he was prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretenses. Eight years' penal servitude was the immediate result. After his release from the English prison he went to Paris to carry on again in true Wellsian method.

Presently the pre-Ponzi plunger fell into the hands of the Paris police and received another long sentence for fraud. He served that term and dropped into obscurity. But Charles de Ville Wells was not the man to remain long submerged. In 1912 the public again heard much about the "hero" of the old ballad. He and a comely young Frenchwoman known as Jean Parris, said to be the wife of a physician, were discovered living luxuriously in a yacht belonging to Wells. The vessel was called the Harbinger. It was in Falmouth harbor when the police swooped down upon it.

Wells and the woman were returned to France. Protracted proceedings in the courts divulged the fact that after regaining his liberty in that country Wells had opened an office in the Place Boreldieu, Paris, where he carried on a business called La Rente Bi-Mensuelle. He offered, and for a short period paid, 1 per cent per day interest on sums sent him for investment. Money poured in, just as it poured in when Ponzi of Boston some years later wigwagged a similar bait before the eager eyes of the American gull brotherhood and sisterhood. Gallic brethren and sisters gobbled the bait with gourmand glee.

It was shown at the trial that more than 600,000 investors came forward with small sums. Within less than six months more than 2,000,000 francs, which, translated into American money, meant $400,000 plus, were received by Wells. The swindler paid back in interest, to keep his game going, about 900,000 francs. Considerably more than $200,000, it is seen, was retained by Wells, who invested the greater part of the sum in the purchase of British annuities and mortgages in favor of his mistress, the woman of the Harbinger episode.

Wells was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in France, the woman getting off with thirteen months. Harry Wilson, a well-known Bow street solicitor, had acted for the French Government throughout the extradition proceedings; and Wilson was keen enough to take advantage of his opportunity to handle the legal end of the Wells creditors in England—the gulls Wells had plucked in his London get-poor-suddenly scheme nearly twenty years earlier. During all those years the surviving creditors never expected for a moment that any one of them would get a penny back.

Charles de Ville Wells.

The astute Harry Wilson suddenly astounded the poor boobs with the revelation that, inasmuch as Wells was a British bankrupt, his estate was subject to seizure by or for those whom he had swindled away back in 1893. But over in France was another body of creditors, and it was their money which comprised the Wells estate at the time when he became legally dead—again—as a convict. Monte Carlo Wells, it seems, had a faculty of dying several times and, as a natural corollary, coming alive again. He was a most peculiar person, was Wells.

"Why worry?" said Harry Wilson to the English creditors. "Stand by—I'll get your money back for you."

But it was no easy task. Those French creditors clamored. After a long series of negotiations it was arranged finally that the income from the Wells investment in England should be divided equally between the French flock of gulls and the English flock.

During Wells' second incarceration in France, those five years completing a total of approximately twenty-one years in prison, the income from the annuities and mortgages, including the rental of houses in London upon which the Wells estate had foreclosed, was paid out regularly to both the French and the English creditors. It required a tedious process of bookkeeping to allot the dribbles, but Harry Wilson saw that that point was attended to and that the lawyer's fee was paid.

Now approaches the point where Tragedy assumes the mask of Humor and howls hilariously. Wells got out of prison, for the last time, in 1916, in the very midst of the World War. He was 75 years old. Gone from his step was the springiness of youth—long gone; gone from his eye was the keen vision that saw great gobs of easy money waiting eagerly to be lifted out of the extended beaks of gulls; but not gone by any means was the shrewd mentality that had been able, through many years, to get, if not to keep for himself, much more than ethically was coming to him.

Old Charles de Ville Wells had gambled with fate and lost at several turns of the wheel. But the picturesque and despicable old villain had no thought of losing out altogether. "Man wants but little here below, but wants that little long," sang our illustrious executive, John Quincy Adams. Monte Carlo Wells had seen times when he wanted much, and got it. Now he had come upon the days when he wanted but little, but wanted that little as long as he could get it; that is to say, as long as he lived.

"I am old," said Charles to Harry Wilson in London and to the legal end of the gull brotherhood in Paris. "I am old, yet I must live until I die. If I should die now—starve to death, for instance—I should be of no further use to you. My annuities will die with me. Get the point?"

They got it. And so it happened—and here comes in the initial burst of laughter—that his creditors put old Charles upon a salary—a pitifully small one, to be sure, a mere pittance, and yet enough to hold body and soul in partnership. Monte Carlo Wells began to draw one pound, or about $5, a week.

The old man could live in Paris on that dribble at the time. He could get bed and board and the few replenishments of wardrobe required by a simple old gentleman gone into retirement whilst the world all about him was wriggling like maggots in the fierce white publicity of the hell of war. So the old man got his weekly stipend and his creditors really didn't miss it.

Came then, as all of us know to our imperishable vexation, the high cost of living. Paris felt it considerably more heavily than did we in America. Paris was located right were H. C. L. outclimbed the Eiffel Tower and soared into empyrean indigoes. Paris became a place where $5 a week to a man who had sailed his own yacht and maintained his mistress in champagnic magnificence, looked somewhat like a franc piece mashed into unrecognizability by the hoof of a Missouri army mule. Thereupon arose old Charles de Ville Wells upon the platform of protest, speaking thus his little piece to Harry Wilson of Bow street:

"M. Wilson, attention! I am old—older now than when last I spoke. I require more income. I demand a raise in my salary."

There was a brief buzz of protest on the part of the Executive Committee of the English creditors, a similar buzz being heard faintly from the French committee, above the thunder of the guns along the Hindenburg line. But high over all arose the octogenarian treble of the man who broke a bank at Monte Carlo:

"If you do not pay me more money I shall kill myself!"

That was enough. Wells living was worth money to many. Wells dead was worth not a farthing to any. Another pound was added to the weekly salary of the debtor who was hired to do nothing save exist. For a time all went well again with Wells and with his Franco-British employers. For a time this tale of two cities and two countries moved smoothly in the midst of war. But not for long. H. C. L. soared like a helicopter, straight upward.

"More! More!" demanded the man that broke the bank and the multitude.

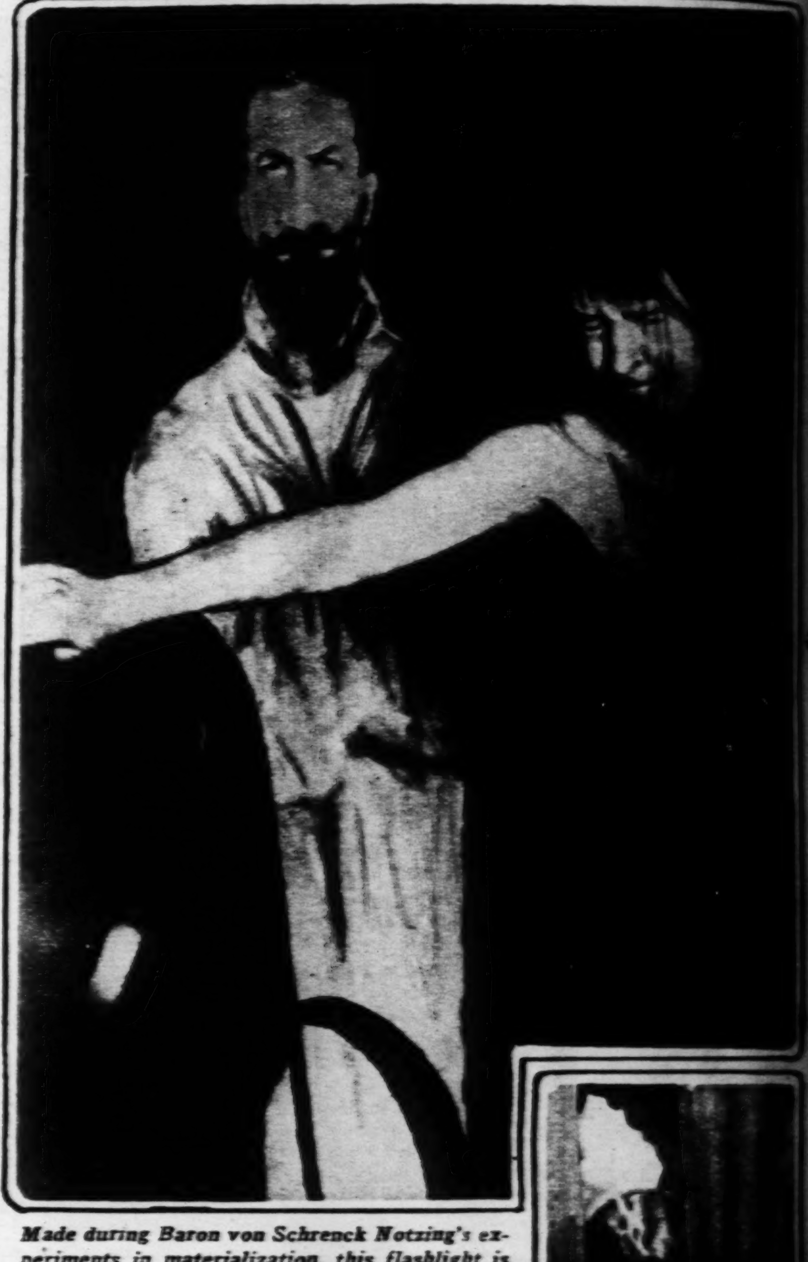
And more was forthcoming. When Wells died, just four days before the death in the same city of Prince Albert of Monaco, the man who ruled over the tiny principality where Monte Carlo flourishes, and who continued to draw a heavy lease income from the bank that Monte Carlo Wells broke thirty years ago, the crafty old rogue was drawing five pounds a week.

"As recently as June 17 last," says a recent issue of the London Telegraph, "Mr. Wilson remitted 1098 pounds to the French authorities as their moiety of the year's income of the Wells estate, and yesterday he received an official intimation that 'the bankrupt died on June 22.' The effect will be that there will be little or nothing available for the creditors in the future."

However, Wilson stated that the gulls got back almost their 20 shillings to the pound before their joint employe ceased to draw breath and salary simultaneously.

THE CASE AGAINST ECTOPLASM

Investigator declares that alleged phenomena, explained as being wrought with strange substance said to come from the body of a medium, are frauds and that the mediums concerned therewith are fakers—The most spectacular of the experiments have been the so-called materializations of spirits, of which numerous photographs were made—Something about the trickery exposed in several cases



Made during Baron von Schrenck Notzing's experiments in materialization, this flashlight is said to be a great rarity, showing a full-length spirit and the medium, on the same plate. The medium is Eva C.

Another flashlight picture, also made while medium Eva C. in her cabinet was giving a demonstration, purports to show on her head a quantity of ectoplasm.

NONE of the current psychic manifestations have aroused more interest in recent years than those which have the mysterious substance, ectoplasm, for their basis. The ectoplasm theory has seemed to offer an explanation of phenomena which otherwise, to most people, were incredible. It was hard to believe that immaterial spirits could produce such physical effects as the levitation of very solid and heavy tables, for instance.

But ectoplasm has seemed, in the opinion of some earnest investigators, to be a point of contact between the spiritual and physical worlds, a sort of frontier partaking of the properties of both.

A most delicate and wonderful substance, which was of psychic origin, but really existed under favorable conditions in the world of matter, is, perhaps, the general conception of ectoplasm, among those who have read some of the numerous recent books dealing with the subject, especially the alleged "materializations" of spirits of the deceased.

Now comes James Black, a psychic authority of Montreal, Canada, and says in effect that there is no such thing as ectoplasm, and that the seances at which investigators believed they saw and touched the substance, and even analyzed bits of it following the seances, were frauds and swindles, the work of dishonest mediums.

"In investigations extending over more than twenty years," says Black, "the writer has yet to meet with a medium whose manifestations have stood the test of critical examination. The most useful apparatus that can be used in psychic investigations simply constructed—just a plain flashlight." His article appears under the title of "Ectoplasm and Ectoplasm Fakers," in the September issue of The Scientific American. He says, in part:

"Many reports of the remarkable nature of this substance are current, but little definite information is to be had. * * * All agree that ectoplasm is a plasma of psychic origin, extruding from the medium. Most add that it is the stuff of which perambulating spirits from the great beyond are made. It is unanimously possessed of some power or force that enables it to tip tables, rap floors, fabricate faces and limbs, and indulge in varied and remarkable phenomena.

"Here agreement ends; when our scientific friends endeavor to set out in scientific style the results of their research, and to state just what ectoplasm is and just what it does, it becomes plain that the investigations have been conducted in anything but a scientific manner; and any ordinary science student would be pardoned for considering that ectoplasm, in view of the nature of the evidence for it, is principally inflammation of the imagination.

"Dr. Geley and Baron von Schrenck Notzing are the two most quoted authorities, with Dr. Crawford as a support. According to Dr. Geley, the plasma extrudes from the head of the medium in knobs, ribbons and fringes, of different colors; sometimes it is stiff and sometimes soft and elastic; and at all times it shrinks from any contacts. Yet Geley, with the assistance of Franck Kluski, a medium, took wax casts of ectoplasmic hands and feet!

"Dr. Crawford's ectoplasm extruded from the lower part only of his medium's body and would strike sledge-hammer blows on the floor, lift tables and several times poked him in the ribs so forcibly that he likened it to being poked with the blunt end of a metal rod.

"Geley has it luminous, and the action of light causes it to be reabsorbed instantly by the medium. But Crawford in all his 87 experiments never saw the plasma, and is at pains to prove that it is neither luminous, phosphorescent nor fluorescent. Crawford and Doyle agree that the mystery stuff instantly dissolves in light, yet both Geley and Von Schrenck Notzing have taken flashlight photographs of it.

"The most alarming contradictions appear when the scientists come to the question of analysis. Geley states definitely that the plasma cannot be analyzed, for to detach a portion from the medium would 'grievously harm and probably kill her.' Then Von Schrenck Notzing gives an analysis and the contents are reported as mainly cellular matter, such as is found in the mouth and throat.

"Stanley de Brathe, the translator of Geley's book, tells us that analysis shows the contents to be at least 50 per cent water, some sulphur and albumin, and gives the chemical formula.

"Lebiedzinski, a Polish scientist, has ectoplasm analyses showing the contents as fats and human cellular matter, and the appearance like that of well-beaten white of egg. Then, presumably to clear up any confusion of opinion, Conan Doyle assures us that science knows absolutely nothing about ectoplasm, and improves on this statement by adding that analysis proves it to be composed of carbonates, phosphates and other matter unknown to anyone!"

Dr. Geley and Baron von Schrenck Notzing, in their research work, used the same medium, named Eva Cariere, says Black. "Geley assures us that there was no possibility of trickery on the part of the medium, but he fails to mention any adequate precautionary measures that were adopted. When Von Schrenck Notzing makes some attempt to guard against fraudulent methods the results indicate quite clearly that fraud was not only possible but highly probable.

"Dr. Geley's investigations took place in darkness. The medium took her place in a cabinet and went into a trance. Extrudations of the plasma began and were built up into spirit hands, faces and sometimes heads complete, topped with real hair, through which Dr. Geley ran his fingers—forgetting for the moment that the plasma must not be touched. The heads and faces always appeared in the vicinity of the medium, in no case more than twenty-seven inches from the cabinet—just about arm's length.

"The development of the plasma took place behind the curtain of the cabinet. The partly formed head or face would suddenly appear in an opening of the curtain, disappear and then reappear in a short time in a further state of development. The same thing happened in reverse on dematerialization.

"Too much happened behind the curtain. It seems a pity that Dr. Geley did not hold on to the hair he had his fingers in; he might have found Eva in the neighborhood.

"Baron von Schrenck Notzing's experiments were conducted in a similar manner to Geley's, and showed like phenomena. On one occasion when Eva was searched before entering the cabinet, there was a marked diminution of phenomena, both in kind and degree. Two spirit faces, phosphorescent in appearance, were seen hovering near the cabinet, and a small blob of ectoplasm on the lips of the medium.

"One of the observers took a flashlight photograph of the faces, and on development the plates showed them to be photographs of two well-known men, touched up with luminous paint to give the spirit-like effect.

"The British Society for Psychic Research invited Eva Cariere to London to demonstrate her mediumship. At a seance under the auspices of the society, Eva underwent searching tests and rigid conditions.

"Eva went into a trance and produced—absolutely nothing, neither heads, faces nor ectoplasm! Eva blamed the London atmosphere! It seems pretty well established that if Eva takes no 'props' into the cabinet, nothing out of the ordinary happens. Briefly stated—no search, spooks; search, no spooks."

The writer in The Scientific American inquired into the matter of Eva Cariere's record, and says that as far as can be ascertained she was born in France as Marthe Beraud and for some years practiced there and in Algeria as a clairvoyaht and medium under that name.

Attracting considerable attention by her manifestations, and especially her extrudations of ectoplasm, she finally was investigated by Eugene Marsaut, a French notary and member of the French Society for Psychical Research. The latter made no effort to prevent fraudulent methods being employed by the medium, but during the seance he turned a flashlight on the operations and Marthe was caught red-handed.

"Her spirit faces were just 'props,' her ectoplasm nothing more supernatural than gossamer veiling," says Black. "M. Marsaut obtained a signed confession that her whole gamut of spirit and ectoplasmic manifestations were produced by fraudulent means, and a record of the frauds and exposure is to be found fully set forth in the proceedings of the society."

This incident occurred in 1914. Marthe laid low for a time, says Black, then came forth from retirement under her present name.

Then skeptic Black in his article names Ada Bessinet of Toledo, O., who, he says, "produces practically every phenomenon known to psychic science — spirit faces, voices, levitations and so forth. The means she employs are 'ectoplasmic soul exteriorizations,' which no doubt is quite right—if you know what it means."

The British College of Psychic Science arranged a series of seances, at which it was noticed that when her hands were shackled the phenomena became more limited, and when she had been searched and placed in a cabinet which had been searched the results were negative.

At the last seance, however, when she had been tied to a chair by one of her controlling spirits, there was a wonderful materialization of a spirit face, clear and radiant with ectoplasmic light, which appeared in the darkness close to the table at which the investigators were sitting. One of them flashed a light.

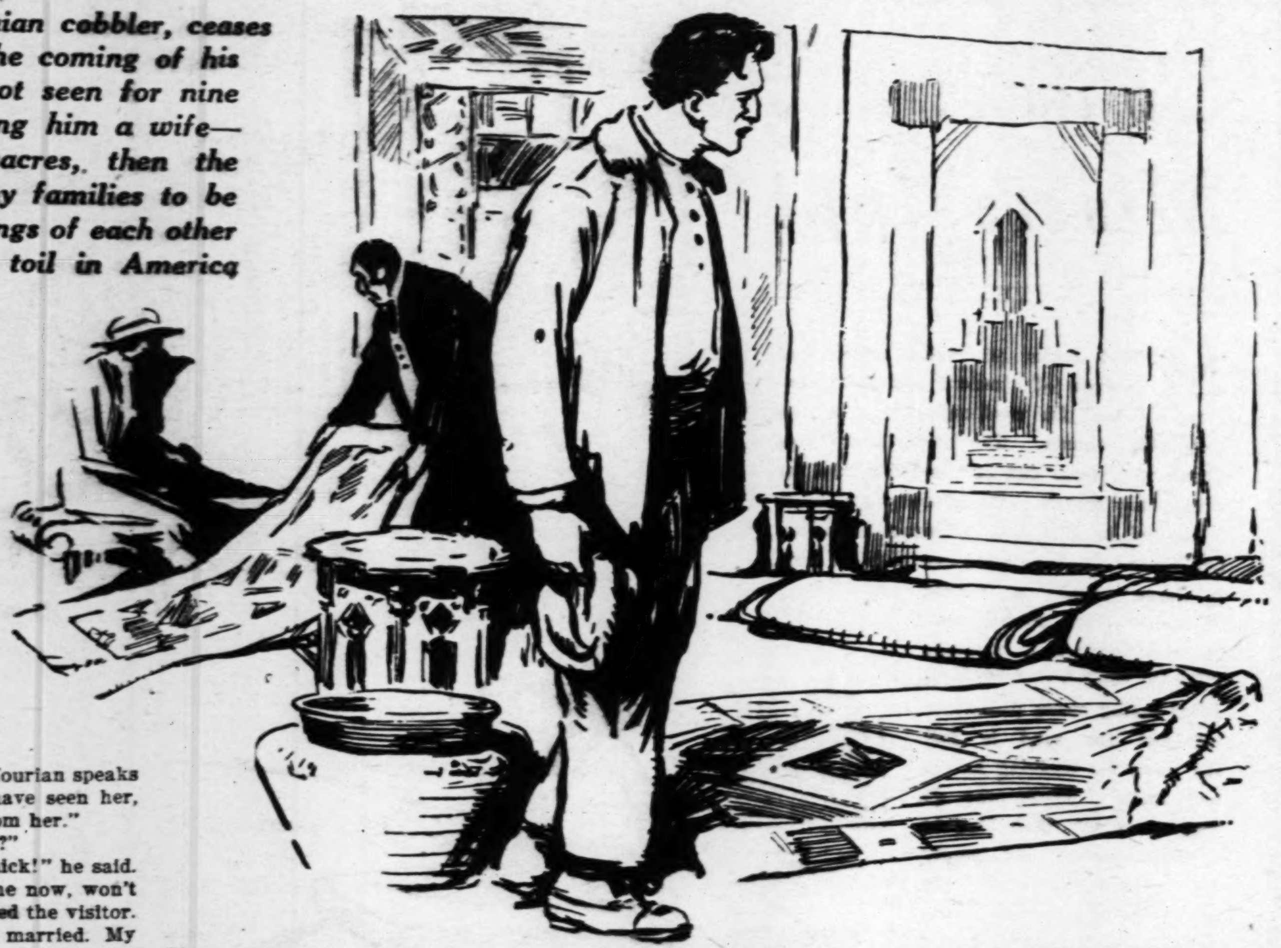
Finds America the Land of Happy Endings

Arshag Nourian, an Armenian cobbler, ceases whistling to tell about the coming of his mother, whom he has not seen for nine years and who is bringing him a wife—First the Turkish massacres, then the World War, caused many families to be scattered and without tidings of each other for years—Savings from toil in America are bringing women across the ocean. :-:



Nourian looked with envy on the stores that dealt in Oriental rugs. But he had no capital to embark in merchandising.

ARSHAG NOURIAN, who resoles shoes and affixes rubber heels to them in his little basement shop on Second avenue, New York, is learning new songs to accompany his labor. On a recent day he was whistling "Feather Your Own Nest," and he flashed a row of brilliant white teeth with his welcoming smile. Last year, he hummed only odd, minor, monotonous Armenian songs, which are the saddest songs in the world.

"So she is on her way at last?" inquired a visitor.

"Yes, she will come in two weeks." Nourian speaks perfect English. "Nine years since I have seen her, and seven years when I did not hear from her."

"Will you know her when you see her?"

"You don't forget your mother that quick!" he said.

"You will be renting a flat for a home now, won't you? She will keep house for you?" asked the visitor.

Nourian grinned. "I am going to get married. My mother is bringing a wife for me, a girl of our village. She was a child when I came to America, but I remember her. They call her Aghavni—that means 'love.' She is like the name."

Arshag Nourian, of a race that might be called Children of Tragedy, has found America truly the land of happy endings. Nine or ten years ago he joined the steady stream of emigration to America. His uncle had come to this country earlier, in 1895, the massacre year.

"Before that time there were only a few students and travelers of my people here," Nourian explained. "Then, all in one year, thousands of us came over. It was the time, you remember, when the Turks desired to abolish Christianity throughout their empire. They found the Armenians obstinate, and so they started to abolish the Armenians. All who could get out of the country fled to America. Why America? Because missionaries had come to us with schools and hospitals and stories of a wonderful country where there was no oppression.

"My father's brother was among these first Armenian immigrants."

In twenty years, from 1895 to 1915, more than 70,000 Armenians flocked to the United States. Nine-tenths of them were men, mostly young men, eager to make good, anxious to save enough money to send for their relatives. They came to America to stay. Less than 5 per cent returned to their native land.

Rather a small proportion settled in New York. It is estimated that at this time there are between 10,000 and 12,000 Armenians resident in the city. Most of them live on the East Side, between Seventeenth and Thirty-fifth streets.

To continue with Nourian's story. He considered what line of business to enter. The field of common labor was open, of course, but offered little reward for personal initiative. He looked with envy on the stores that dealt in Oriental rugs. He had a natural eye for color, common among Armenians, and he loved the gorgeous blue and rose and ivory of the beautiful rugs from the East.

Half a dozen Armenian merchants in New York handle almost 70 per cent of the annual import business in this line. Some of them are of families rich and prosperous in Armenia, merchant princes before they ever came to America. Others built up their trade with very little capital, starting in a modest way with rug cleaning and repair work, and gradually branching out into dealing and importing. The 30 per cent of rug firms not owned by Armenians practically always employ Armenians as buyers.

Nourian had no capital to embark upon anything so ambitious as merchandising. Tailoring and cobbling were popular occupations among his countrymen. His uncle decided the question for him. He had a little shoe repair establishment, and he took his young kinsman in with him.

Nourian worked early and late. The diligence of these recruits to our citizenship is a reproach to Americans who have abandoned the strenuous program. Theirs is no eight-hour day. With a definite purpose in view, they have no regard for the clock, but coin their hours into cash to the limit of their ability. Nourian had almost achieved his first goal, the passage money for his parents, when the war broke out.

At first a few letters trickled through, then abruptly all correspondence ceased. The years 1915 and 1916 were troubled ones for many peoples, but probably for no one so much as the Armenian race. When you consider the disasters of the war, think of a race, not simply decimated, but cut down 25 per cent. One-quarter of the total population killed, hundreds of thousands deported, shifted about and lost.

Scarcely an Armenian in America but has been involved in some way in this terrible confusion. Of the married emigrants who came here prior to the war, half had left wives and families in Armenia. Practically every one had parents, brothers and sisters in the home country.

Nourian's savings continued to accumulate with the war boom in prices, and his native thrift which saved him from war extravagances, but there was only irony in the good fortune that came too late. He served two years in the American army, and returned to his small shop in 1919 with an honorable record, a little doughboy knowledge of French and a citation for valor.

The business was now all his own, for his uncle had died. He wanted to settle down in a home of his own. He cast about for a bride, but the field was limited. Many of his friends who had been in America some years were marrying Irish and German girls, but their brides could not cook the tasty Armenian dishes, and Nourian did not care for sauerkraut and ham from the delicatessen.

Of Armenian girls there were practically none of marriageable age. If he had not lost trace of his parents, he would have written to them to select a bride for him.

Letters written in the Turkish language, subjected to strict censorship, were allowed to pass when peace was restored. Nourian wrote to his home village, and received word that his father was dead, his mother gone, no one knew where. The Near East Relief offered its resources, and to this organization he turned for help in locating his mother. Two more years passed and there seemed little hope.

Then came the word which set Nourian to whistling gay American tunes, and laying plans for a home and women folks. His mother had been found at last among the polyglot refugees in Constantinople, where the lost, strayed and stolen of Russia and the Balkans and all the Turkish Empire gather.

He wrote to arrange for her passage and sent money for her immediate needs. He intimated also that if she should know of some attractive young lady she might fancy as a daughter-in-law he would be glad to forward passage money for two. The reply to that was the promise of Aghavni.

By the time Aghavni and mother arrive, Nourian will have his home ready for them. It will be on the top floor somewhere in the neighborhood of his shop. It is an interesting fact that Armenians always live on the fifth floor of the tenement houses, high up where there is sunshine and air and access to the roof. That is a relic of their outdoor life in their own country.

He is already planning for his wedding. It must be a very grand affair, for he feels like celebrating now, after all these years of loneliness. It will be held in the Armenian Church of St. Gregory the Illuminator, and all the elaborate Armenian ceremony will be performed.

Most young married couples consider outside advice quite dispensable, but at Armenian weddings two married friends of the bride and groom stand up with them through the ceremony and have a right to offer arbitration and advice to them ever after.

There is no wedding cake, but the lack is not felt. There is plenty to compensate. Even at the humblest weddings there is always provided a huge dish of candy, Jordan almonds, colored rock sugar and little hard candies of all sorts. Nourian intends to have a very fine feast as well, with all kinds of Armenian dishes.

Cooking is a fine art among the Armenians, and eating is an esthetic exercise, not merely a matter of getting fed. The distinctiveness of their dishes lies not so much in the ingredients as in the exceeding excellence of their preparation. Lamb is the favorite meat, almost exclusively so. Lamb and vegetables cooked together and flavored with just the right dash of spices and herbs appear with infinite variations.

In little Armenian restaurants along Lexington avenue you may order shish kefab, which is lamb broiled in bits on a skewer, or pilaff, which is buttered rice with pignola nuts, or enguinar bassdi, artichokes stuffed with chopped meat; or paklava, delicious nut pastry; or lokma, a sort of fritter served with lemon-flavored syrup; or matzoon, which is simply sour milk. Matzoon is highly estimated as a beverage, and is being introduced at soda fountains by an Armenian firm.

The Armenian church is the oldest national church in the world. It was adopted as the state religion by King Tiridates in the year 301 A. D., but long before that time it had gained many followers in the country. It was introduced by the Apostle Thaddeus three years after Christ's death. In New York there are two Armenian apostolic churches, one on East Twenty-seventh street and one on East Seventeenth. The oldest Christian liturgy is performed here every Sunday in the Armenian language. On Christmas and Easter the churches are thronged.

The richness of imagery in the service is not equaled in any other. The music is pitched in a minor key, often an almost inarticulate wailing, but the vestments are full of vivid color.

Although Armenian immigration in estimable numbers dates back only twenty-eight years, there were Armenians here earlier than that. To one of them, a student and chemist, Dr. Seropian, every American is indebted for the formula for the green ink which makes our greenbacks difficult to counterfeit.

So far as our records reveal, the first naturalized citizen on American soil was an Armenian. In the history of the Jamestown colony, founded in 1607, it is set down that "Martin, ye Armenian," became a naturalized British subject while he was in residence in Virgina.

Week-Ending Up the . . . Mississippi

MOTOR boats of various sizes and degrees of comfort are being extensively used for week-end parties on the river this summer. The bluffs near Piasa Chautauqua form one of the landmarks for which they watch. Occasionally the craft is moored to give the fishermen a chance, but there are tales of small fish as well as large ones. A shelter of willow poles, roofed with branches, makes a pleasant place for supper, on a sandbar. After eating comes dish-washing—and the sand is just the thing for cleaning knives and forks. Those who go jugging attach their line to a little, brown and empty vessel—and watch for the downward dip which means a "bite." A familiar figure is the solitary fisherman on his row boat near shore with wide straw hat, bamboo pole and can of bait. Cartoonist Fitzpatrick sketched these typical scenes during a house-boat cruise.

Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director of the Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, B. C., and the huge 72-inch reflector telescope with which he recently discovered and measured the twin suns which have been named the Plaskett star. These suns are believed to have a temperature of 30,000 degrees Fahrenheit; one of them has seventy-five times the bulk of our sun, and the other sixty-three times the same bulk. One of the twins is 15,000 times as bright as the sun, and the other is 12,000 times as bright. So far away from us is Plaskett that its light, traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, requires about 5000 years to reach the earth.

FORTY MINUTES!

A clay of such amazing powers no less than a dozen imitations have sprung into being; applied in a moment; starts its work in ten more minutes; and—

—In forty minutes, wiped away, the clay has forced the clarity and color of youth to any human skin on which it is applied. A new triumph of dermatology

A New Skin in 40 Minutes with this Astounding Beauty Clay!

How a Pleasure Trip to Sunny Wales Uncovered a Secret of Mother Earth's That Forever Ends Any Woman's Need for a Complexion Beautifier

By MARTHA RYERSON

I HAVE brought to America the greatest news women ever heard about the skin. From Wales where I spent a month without seeing a single bad complexion! I went there with a complexion that had been my despair since childhood. One afternoon I left it in the hills; exchanged it for one of absolute purity and undoubtable natural color.

Except that I can now let you prove it for yourself, I would never tell the story—a story my own father found it hard to believe!

Hardest of all to believe is this; the transformation took just forty minutes! Here are the facts:

About the first thing one notices in this southern English province, is the uniformly beautiful complexions. The lowliest maid—and her mother, too—has a radiantly beautiful skin. Mine, lacking lustre and color, with impurities nothing seemed to eradicate or even hide, was horribly conspicuous.

It was a happy thought that took a most unhappy girl on a long walk through the hills one afternoon. I had stopped at the apothecary's to replenish my cosmetic—to find it was unknown. They did not have even a cold cream. The irony of it! In a land where beauty of face was in evidence at every turn—the women used no beautifiers! Do you wonder I "took to the hills?" I didn't want to see another peaches-and-creamy complexion that day. But I did.

At a house where I paused for a drink from the spring, I stepped back in surprise when the young woman straightened-up to greet me. Her face was covered with mud. I recognized the peculiar gray clay of that section; very fine, sleek, smooth clay it was. Seeing my surprise, the girl smiled and said, "Madam does not clay?" I admitted I did not!

I Decide to "Clay"

In a moment, she wet the clay which had dried on her face and neck, wiped it away, and stood in all the glory of a perfect complexion. I think I shall never again envy another as I did that stolid maiden of the hills. Her features were not pretty; they did not need to be, for no woman ever will have a more gorgeous skin. She explained that this amazing clay treatment did it. The natives made a weekly habit of "claying" the skin, quite as one cares regularly for the hair.

I was easily persuaded to try it. Had I not done ridiculous things in beauty parlors where many could see my plight? We tucked a towel over my blouse, and from the spring's bed she took the soft, soothing clay and applied it.

As we sat and talked, the clay dried. Soon I experienced the most delightful tingling in every facial pore; the impurities were being literally pulled out. Half an hour more, and we removed the clay mask. Hopeful, but still skeptical, I followed into the tiny house to glimpse myself in a mirror.

My blemishes were gone!

I fairly glowed with color that spread down the neck to the shoulders. My cheeks were so downy soft, I felt them a hundred times on the way home. Father's surprised look when I entered the rooms of the little inn that evening was the most genuine compliment a woman ever received. In a basket I had two crocks of the precious clay. I thought father's questions would never end: where did I find it; could I take him to the spot; what was its action, and reaction, and lots else I didn't know. Father is a chemist.

Suddenly it dawned on me. He wanted to unearth the secret of that clay's amazing properties, and take it to America! For two weeks we staid on; he worked all day at his "mud pies" as I called them. Back home at last in Chicago, he worked many weeks more. He experimented on me, and on all my girl friends. At last he scientifically produced clay identical with that Welsh clay in its miraculous effects—only ten times more smooth and pure.

Anyone May Now Have This Wonderful Clay

News of the wonders performed by this clay has brought thousands of requests for it. Women everywhere (and men, too, by the way) are now supplied Forty Minute Clay. The laboratory where it is compounded sends it direct to the user. A jar is five dollars, but I have yet to hear of anyone who did not regard it worth several times that amount. For mind, in over six hundred test cases, it did not once fail. It seems to work on all ages, and regardless of how pimpled, clogged or dull the skin may be.

The application is readily made by anybody, and the changes brought about in less than an hour will cause open-mouthed astonishment. I know.

When I see a woman now, with a course-textured skin that mars the whole effect of her otherwise dainty care of self, it is all I can do to refrain from speaking of this natural, perfectly simple way to bring a skin and color such as Nature meant us to have and has given us the way to have.

Keep your skin pores clean, open, tingling with life! My father has made you a remarkable offer below. Read carefully:

FREE DISTRIBUTION OF $5.00 JARS

(Only One Jar to a Family)

The general public is entitled to benefit by a discovery of this importance. So, for a limited time we will distribute regular, full-size $5.00 jars of Forty Minute Clay without profit—at only the actual cost, which is $1.87.

You may have your first jar for only this bare cost of getting it in your hands! The expenses of compounding, refining, analyzing, sterilizing, packing, printed announcements, and shipping in large quantity has been figured down to $1.87 per jar, plus postage.

Even the small laboratory cost price of $1.87 for ingredients, shipping, etc., is not really a payment; rather, a deposit that we will promptly return if you are not unreservedly satisfied that this miracle clay is all we claim.

Send no money now. Pay postman the net laboratory charges of $1.87 plus postage, when he brings your jar. Or, if unlikely to be home at mail time, enclose $2.00 and jar will arrive postpaid, with the same money-back guarantee.

I can assure any man or woman who will try this miracle of Nature's own chemical laboratory a re-made skin.
